PREFACE

This volume is a thorough revision of The Nag Hammadi Library in English. The first edition, published in 1977, marked the end of one stage of Nag Hammadi scholarship and the beginning of another. The first stage was concerned with making this library of texts available; the second stage has been characterized by the discussion and interpretation of the texts.

The library of fourth-century papyrus manuscripts consists of twelve codices plus eight leaves from a thirteenth and contains fifty-two separate tractates. Due to duplications there are forty-five separate titles. Because the majority of the library's tractates derive from the Hellenistic sects now called gnostic, and survive in Coptic translations, it is characterized as the Coptic Gnostic Library. Scholarly rivalries and the situation in Egypt in the years following the library's discovery in 1945 hindered work on the manuscripts. Twenty years after the discovery only a small percentage of the texts had been edited and translated, mostly by European scholars, and less than ten percent had become available in English translations. In 1966 the team responsible for the present volume began to come together into "The Coptic Gnostic Library Project" under the auspices of the Institute for Antiquity and Christianity, Claremont, California.

The editing and translating of the library could only proceed as the manuscripts became accessible. In 1970 the Ministry of Culture of the Arab Republic of Egypt, together with UNESCO, named an International Committee for the Nag Hammadi Codices. The representative of the United States, James M. Robinson, was elected secretary. The primary task of the committee was to oversee the publication of photographic facsimiles. Between 1972 and 1977 the entire library was thus published by E.J. Brill of Leiden as The Facsimile Edition of the Nag Hammadi Codices. These were followed in 1979 with the publication of the Cartonnage volume and in 1984 with an Introduction volume, completing the twelve-volume Facsimile Edition. That edition was facilitated by members of The Coptic Gnostic Library Project working in the Coptic Museum in Old Cairo between 1971 and 1977 to reconstruct and conserve the manuscripts.

In 1977, coinciding with the availability of the library's complete contents in facsimile form, E.J. Brill and Harper & Row published the first edition of The Nag Hammadi Library in English. The one-volume English translation was brought out as the project was beginning to publish its major scholarly work, a complete critical edition, The Coptic Gnostic Library. This series of volumes contains the edited Coptic text with English translations, introductions, notes, and indices. It includes the entire Nag Hammadi library plus three similar manuscripts housed in Berlin, London, and Oxford. The volumes and the editors of The Coptic Gnostic Library, published by E.J. Brill, are as follows: Nag Hammadi Codex I (The Jung Codex), Volume 1: Introduction, Texts and Translation; Volume 2: Notes, volume editor Harold W. Attridge, 1985; Nag Hammadi Codices II,1 and IV,1: The Apocryphon of John, Long Recension, edited by Frederik Wisse, forthcoming; *Nag Hammadi Codex II,2-7, together with XIII,2*, Brit. Lib. Or. 4926 (I) and P. Oxy. 1,654,655*, Volume 1: Gospel of Thomas, Gospel of Philip, Hypostasis of the Archons, Indexes; Volume 2: On the Origin of the World, Exegesis on the Soul, Book of Thomas, Indexes, edited by Bentley Layton, in the press; Nag Hammadi Codex III,1 and Papyrus Berolinensis 8502,2: The Apocryphon of John, Short Recension, edited by Peter Nagel, volume editor Frederik Wisse, forthcoming; Nag Hammadi Codices III,2 and IV,2: The Gospel of the Egyptians (The Holy Book of the Great Invisible Spirit), edited by Alexander Böhlig and Frederik Wisse in cooperation with Pahor Labib, 1975; Nag Hammadi Codices III,3-4 and V,1 with Papyrus Berolinensis 8502,3 and Oxyrhynchus Papyrus 1081: Eugnostos and The Sophia of Jesus Christ, edited and translated by Douglas M. Parrott, in the press; Nag Hammadi Codex III,5: The Dialogue of the Savior, volume editor Stephen Emmel, 1984; Nag Hammadi Codices V,2-5 and VI with Papyrus Berolinensis 8502,1 and 4, volume editor Douglas M. Parrott, 1979; Nag Hammadi Codex VII, volume editor Frederik Wisse, forthcoming; Nag Hammadi Codex VIII, volume editor John Sieber, forthcoming; Nag Hammadi Codices IX and X, volume editor Birger A. Pearson, 1981; Nag Hammadi Codices XI, XII and XIII, volume editor Charles W. Hedrick, in the press; Nag Hammadi Codices: Greek and Coptic Papyri from the Cartonnage of the Covers, edited by J.W.B. Barns †, G.M. Browne, and J.C. Shelton, 1981; Pistis Sophia, text edited by Carl Schmidt, translation and notes by Violet MacDermot, volume editor R. McL. Wilson, 1978; The Books of Jeu and the Untitled Text in the Bruce Codex, text edited by Carl Schmidt, translation and notes by Violet MacDermot, volume editor R. McL. Wilson, 1978.

In 1981 and 1984 respectively, Harper & Row and E.J. Brill published paperback editions of The Nag Hammadi Library in English. These included an addition to the translation of The Dialogue of the Savior based on fragments (144,15-146,24) discovered by Stephen Emmel in the Beinecke Library at Yale University.

At the time of the publication of The Nag Hammadi Library in English more than a decade ago, only one title in the Coptic Gnostic Library series had appeared in print. Now, with that series nearing completion, the present book has been extensively revised to bring the translations into conformity with the critical edition's final translations. In the case of the earlier volumes to appear, an occasional improvement on the critical edition has been made. Research in the field of Gnosticism, greatly stimulated by the work of The Coptic Gnostic Library Project, has also developed during the past ten years. New tractate introductions have been written to acknowledge the ongoing discussion. Since several titles appear in the library in more than one version, it has been possible to combine fragmentary versions of some texts to produce more complete translations. Two titles from the closely related Berlin Gnostic Papyrus are also included.

Since the original manuscripts of the library are fragmentary in many places, ellipsis dots (. . .) are included to indicate the place, but not the extent, of all lacunae. The page and line numbers of the papyrus codex, given in the translations, should indicate the extent of the damage. A complete portrayal of the physical condition of the manuscripts is given in The Facsimile Edition and in the critical edition, The Coptic Gnostic Library. The textual signs that appear in The Nag Hammadi Library in English are those found in the critical edition; the reader is referred to those volumes for more scholarly matters. An ongoing bibliography in the field of gnostic studies is provided by David M. Scholer, Nag Hammadi Bibliography 1948-1969, volume one of the series Nag Hammadi Studies, published by E.J. Brill in 1971, with annual updates in the journal Novum Testamentum. All these supplements are soon to be merged with each other and published in Nag Hammadi Studies in a volume entitled Nag Hammadi Bibliography 1970-1985. Two books recently published by Harper & Row present discussions of ancient Gnosticism and its modern scholarship: Gnosis: The Nature and History of Gnosticism, 1983, by Kurt Rudolph; and The Jesus of Heresy and History: The Discovery and Meaning of the Nag Hammadi Gnostic Library, 1988, by John Dart.

The Coptic Gnostic Library Project has been generously supported over the years by many organizations which we would like to thank: The Egyptian Antiquities Organization, UNESCO, the American Research Center in Egypt, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation, the American Philosophical Society, the Smithsonian Institution, and The Claremont Graduate School. In final appreciation, it should be said that the preparation of this thoroughly revised new edition was rendered considerably easier by the work done in the preparation of the first edition by its Managing Editor, Marvin W. Meyer.

References to the Nag Hammadi tractates, and to the texts in Berlin Gnostic Papyrus, are to page and line number, except for references to The Gospel of Thomas, which are to saying number.

TEXTUAL SIGNS

Small strokes above the line indicate line divisions. Every fifth line a small number is inserted in place of a stroke; the frequency of these numbers, however, may vary in tractates which are quite fragmentary. A new page is indicated with a number in bold type. When the beginning of a new line or page coincides with the opening of a paragraph, the line divider or number is placed at the end of the previous paragraph.

- [ ] Square brackets indicate a lacuna in the manuscript. When the text cannot be reconstructed, three dots are placed within the brackets, regardless of the size of the lacuna; a fourth dot, if appropriate, may function as a period. An exception to this rule is the occasional use of a different number of dots to estimate the extent of the missing portion of a proper noun. In a few instances the dots are used without brackets to indicate a series of Coptic letters which do not constitute a translatable sense unit. A bracket is not allowed to divide a word, except for a hyphenated word or a proper noun. Other words are placed entirely inside or outside the brackets, depending on the certainty of the Coptic word and the number of Coptic letters visible.
- < > Pointed brackets indicate a correction of a scribal omission or error. The translator has either inserted letters unintentionally omitted by the scribe, or replaced letters erroneously inserted with what the scribe presumably intended to write.
- { } Braces indicate superfluous letters or words added by the scribe.
- ( ) Parentheses indicate material supplied by the editor or translator. Although this material may not directly reflect the text being translated, it provides useful information for the reader.

JAMES M. ROBINSON

1. The Stance of the Texts

The Nag Hammadi library is a collection of religious texts that vary widely from each other as to when, where, and by whom they were written. Even the points of view diverge to such an extent that the texts are not to be thought of as coming from one group or movement. Yet these diversified materials must have had something in common that caused them to be chosen by those who collected them. The collectors no doubt contributed to this unity by finding in the texts hidden meanings not fully intended by the original authors. After all, one of them, The Gospel of Thomas, begins with a word to the wise: "Whoever finds the interpretation of these sayings will not experience death." Thus the texts can be read at two levels: what the original author may have intended to communicate and what the texts may subsequently have been taken to communicate.

The focus that brought the collection together is an estrangement from the mass of humanity, an affinity to an ideal order that completely transcends life as we know it, and a life-style radically other than common practice. This life-style involved giving up all the goods that people usually desire and longing for an ultimate liberation. It is not an aggressive revolution that is intended, but rather a withdrawal from involvement in the contamination that destroys clarity of vision.

As such, the focus of this library has much in common with primitive Christianity, with eastern religion, and with "holy men" (and women) of all times, as well as with the more secular equivalents of today, such as the counter-culture movements coming from the 1960s. Disinterest in the goods of a consumer society, withdrawal into communes of the like-minded away from the bustle and clutter of big-city distraction, non-involvement in the compromises of political process, sharing an in-group's knowledge both of the disaster-course of the culture and of an ideal, radical alternative not commonly known — all this in modern garb is the real challenge rooted in such materials as the Nag Hammadi library.

To be sure, these roots, fascinating and provocative as they are, can also be confusing and even frustrating, not only for the person scarcely open to what they have to say, but also to the more attentive who seek to follow the light glimmering through the flow of language. For the point of the Nag Hammadi library has been battered and fragmented by the historical process through which it has finally come to light. A salvage operation is needed at many levels if that point is to be grasped clearly today. The ancient world's religious and philosophical traditions and mythology were all that was available to express what was in fact a quite untraditional stance. Indeed the stance was too radical to establish itself within the organized religions or philosophical schools of the day, and hence was hardly able to take advantage of the culture's educational institutions to develop and clarify its implications. Gnostic schools began to emerge within Christianity and Neoplatonism, until both agreed in excluding them as the "heresy" of Gnosticism. Thus meaningful and eloquent myths and philosophic formulations of that radical stance became in their turn garbled traditions, re-used by later and lesser authors whose watered-down, not to say muddied, version may be most of what has survived . . . though there are several "classics" in the Nag Hammadi library.

The texts were translated one by one from Greek into Coptic, and not always by translators capable of grasping the profundity or sublimity of what they sought to translate. The translator of a brief section of Plato's Republic clearly did not understand the text, though it obviously seemed edifying and worth translating. Fortunately, most texts are better translated, but when there are duplications one can sense what a difference the better translation makes in comparison to the poor translation – which leads one to wonder about the bulk of the texts that exist only in a single version.

There is the same kind of hazard in the transmission of the texts by a series of scribes who copied them, generation after generation, from increasingly corrupt copies, first in Greek and then in Coptic. The number of unintentional errors is hard to estimate, since such a thing as a clean control copy does not exist; nor does one have, as in the case of the Bible, a quantity of manuscripts of the same text that tend to correct each other when compared. Only when the error can be detected as such in the sole copy we have can it be corrected. In addition there is the physical deterioration of the books themselves, which began no doubt before they were buried around 400 C.E., advanced steadily while they remained buried, and unfortunately was not completely halted in the period between their discovery in 1945 and their final conservation some thirty years later. When only a few letters are missing, they can often be filled in adequately, but larger holes must simply remain a blank.

The reader should not be misled by such impediments to understanding into thinking that the stance inherent in these essays is unworthy of serious consideration. Rather, we have to do here with an understanding of existence, an answer to the human dilemma, an attitude toward society, that is worthy of being taken quite seriously by anyone able and willing to grapple with such ultimate issues. This basic stance has until now been known almost exclusively through the myopic view of heresy-hunters, who often quote only to refute or ridicule. Thus the coming to light of the Nag Hammadi library gives unexpected access to the gnostic stance as Gnostics themselves presented it. It may provide new roots for the uprooted.

Those who collected this library were Christians, and many of the essays were originally composed by Christian authors. In a sense this should not be surprising, since primitive Christianity was itself a radical movement. Jesus called for a full reversal of values, advocating the end of the world as we have known it and its replacement by a quite new, utopian kind of life in which the ideal would be real. He took a stand quite independent of the authorities of his day . . . and did not last very long before they eliminated him. Yet his followers reaffirmed his stand – for them he came to personify the ultimate goal. Yet some of his circle, being a bit more practical, followed a more conventional way of life. The circle gradually became an established organization with a quite natural concern to maintain order, continuity, lines of authority, and stability. But this concern could encourage a commitment to the status quo, rivaling, and at times outweighing, the commitment to the ultimate goal far beyond any and every achievement. Those who cherished the radical dream, the ultimate hope, would tend to throw it up as an invidious comparison to what was achieved, and thus seem to be disloyal, and to pose a serious threat to the organization.

As the cultural situation changed with the passage of time and the shift of environments, the language for expressing such radical transcendence itself underwent change. The world of thought from which Jesus and his first followers had come was the popular piety of the Jewish synagogue, focused in terms of John the Baptist's rite of transition from the old regime to the new ideal world whose dramatic arrival was forthcoming. In this way of thinking, the evil system that prevails is not the way things inherently are. In principle, though not in practice, the world is good.

The evil that pervades history is a blight, ultimately alien to the world as such. But for some, the outlook on life increasingly darkened; the very origin of the world was attributed to a terrible fault, and evil was given status as the ultimate ruler of the world, not just a usurpation of authority. Hence the only hope seemed to reside in escape. Because humans, or at least some humans, are at heart not the product of such an absurd system, but by their very nature belong to the ultimate. Their plight is that they have been duped and lured into the trap of trying to be content in the impossible world, alienated from their true home. And for some, concentrated inwardness undistracted by external factors came to be the only way to attain the repose, the overview, the merger into the All which is the destiny of one's spark of the divine.

Christian Gnosticism thus emerged as a reaffirmation, though in somewhat different terms, of the original stance of transcendence central to the very beginnings of Christianity. Such Gnostic Christians surely considered themselves the faithful continuation, under changing circumstances, of that original stance which made Christians Christians. But the "somewhat different terms" "under changing circumstances" also involved real divergences, and other Christians clearly considered Gnosticism a betrayal of the original Christian position. This was the conviction of not just those who had accommodated themselves to the status quo, but no doubt also of some who retained the full force of the original protest and ultimate hope. The departure from the original language could be exploited to unite opposition across the breadth of the church. Thus Gnostics came to be excluded from the church as heretics.

In the New Testament two such Gnostic Christians are repudiated at the beginning of the second century (2 Timothy 2:16-18):

Avoid empty and worldly chatter; those who indulge in it will stray further and further into godless courses, and the infection of their teaching will spread like a gangrene. Such are Hymenaeus and Philetus; they have shot wide of the truth in saying that our resurrection has already taken place, and are upsetting people's faith.

This view, that the Christian's resurrection has already taken place as a spiritual reality, is advocated in The Treatise on the Resurrection, The Exegesis on the Soul, and The Gospel of Philip in the Nag Hammadi library!

But the Nag Hammadi library also documents the fact that the rejection was mutual, in that Christians described there as "heretical" seem to be more like what is usually thought of as "orthodox." The

Apocalypse of Peter has Jesus criticize mainstream Christianity as follows:

They will cleave to the name of a dead man, thinking that they will become pure. But they will become greatly defiled and they will fall into the name of error and into the hand of an evil, cunning man and a manifold dogma, and they will be ruled heretically. For some of them will blaspheme the truth and proclaim evil teaching. And they will say evil things against each other . . . But many others, who oppose the truth and are the messengers of error, will set up their error and their law against these pure thoughts of mine, as looking out from one (perspective), thinking that good and evil are from one (source). They do business in my word . . . And there shall be others of those who are outside our number who name themselves bishop and also deacons, as if they have received their authority from God. They bend themselves under the judgement of the leaders. These people are dry canals.

With the conversion of the Roman Empire to Christianity of the more conventional kind, the survival chances of Gnostic Christianity, such as that reflected in the Nag Hammadi library, were sharply reduced. The Bishop of Cyprus, Epiphanius, whose main work was a “medicine chest” against all heresies, describes his encounter with Gnosticism in Egypt about the same time the Nag Hammadi library was being collected:

For I happened on this sect myself, beloved, and was actually taught these things in person, out of the mouths of practising Gnostics. Not only did women under this delusion offer me this line of talk, and divulge this sort of things to me. With impudent boldness moreover, they tried to seduce me themselves . . . But the merciful God rescued me from their wickedness, and thus – after reading them and their books, understanding their true intent and not being carried away with them, and after escaping without taking the bait – I lost no time reporting them to the bishops there, and finding out which ones were hidden in the church. Thus they were expelled from the city, about eighty persons, and the city was cleared of their tarelike, thorny growth.

Gnosticism was ultimately eradicated from Christendom, except for occasional underground movements, some affinities in medieval mysticism, and an occasional tamed echo that stays just within the limits of propriety, for example within English romanticism:

Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting:
The Soul that rises with us, our life's Star,
Hath had elsewhere its setting
And Cometh from afar.

The world is too much with us; late and soon,
Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers.

Gnosticism of sorts was also able to continue beyond the frontiers of the Roman-Empire-become-Christendom. It is still extant in the war-torn area of Iraq and Iran in the form of a small sect called Mandeans, which is their word for “knowers,” that is to say, “Gnostics.”

This same withdrawal to inwardness or despair of the world from which the Gnostic stance emerged, swept not only through early Christianity to produce Christian Gnosticism, but also through late antiquity in general, thus producing forms of Gnosticism outside of Christianity. There is a long-standing debate among historians of religion as to whether Gnosticism is to be understood as only an inner-Christian development or as a movement broader than, and hence independent of, and perhaps even prior to Christianity. This debate seems to be resolving itself, on the basis of the Nag Hammadi library, in favor of understanding Gnosticism as a much broader phenomenon than the Christian Gnosticism documented by the heresiologists.

There is, to begin with, the question of Jewish Gnosticism. It would seem that there is considerable historical truth to the view of the heresiologists, to the effect that some Christian heresies go back to Jewish sects. After all, Christianity itself grew up within Judaism, and it would be surprising if it did not reflect various strands of the Judaism of the day. Primitive Christianity was itself not a unified movement. The Jewish Christianity of the first generation in Galilee that developed the collection of sayings imbedded in the Gospels of Matthew and Luke may well have been considered heretical even by Paul and the Hellenists, and the feeling may have been mutual. Paul clearly rejected as heretical the Christian “Judaizers.” Then later in the first century all the various strands of Jewish Christianity were excluded from Judaism, as “normative” Judaism emerged in response to the threat to Jewish identity posed by the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 C.E.

Some of the gnostic essays in the Nag Hammadi library do not seem to reflect Christian tradition, but do build upon the Old Testament, which was of course also the Jewish Bible. But the very idea of Jewish Gnosticism is at times rejected as a contradiction in terms. How could Jews designate their God as the malevolent force whose misguided blunder produced the world, a God who was ignorant of the hidden good God beyond? Since Christians worship the same God as do Jews, this argument could also be made against the very idea of Christian Gnosticism. But since the early Christian heresy-hunters clearly identified Gnostics as Christians, though of course heretical Christians, the concept of Christian Gnosticism is firmly established. To use another analogy, Simon Magus, one of the earliest known Gnostics, was from Samaria, although the Samaritans worshipped in their own way the same God as did the Jews and Christians. Hence the concept of Jewish Gnostics is intelligible, even if, from a given normative point of view, the validity of using the word Jewish, Christian, or Samaritan for such a person or text may be contested. Of course we do not actually know the Gnostics who built upon Jewish or Old Testament traditions, other than through the texts containing such traditions, so that all one really has in view in speaking of Jewish Gnosticism is just Jewish cultural traditions lacking visible Christian overlay, without necessarily any further identification of the bearers of these traditions.

The discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls has already drawn attention to the fact that first-century Judaism was quite pluralistic in its theological positions, and contained a number of divergent groups or sects. The Essenes, prior to the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls, were in a situation much like the Gnostics prior to the discovery of the Nag Hammadi library: they too were a movement about which too little was known to be treated with the seriousness it deserved. Now we know that the Essenes were a Jewish sect that had broken with the official Judaism of the Jerusalem temple and had withdrawn to the desert at the Wadi Qumran. They understood their situation in terms of the antithesis of light and darkness, truth and lie, a dualism that ultimately went back to Persian dualism – and then moved forward toward Gnosticism. The history of Gnosticism, as documented in the Nag Hammadi library, takes up about where the history of the Essenes, as documented by the Dead Sea Scrolls, breaks off. Later Jewish mystical traditions, traced especially by Gershom Scholem, have shown that, inconsistent though it seems, gnostic trends have continued to carry on a clandestine existence within the context of normative Judaism.

Some traits previously thought to be characteristic of Christian Gnosticism have been shown by the Nag Hammadi library to be originally non-Christian, though a Jewish ingredient is unmistakable. Irenaeus presents Barbelo as the leading mythological figure of a Christian Gnostic group designated “Barbelo-Gnostics.” But The Three Steles of Seth is a Gnostic text without Christian ingredients that nonetheless gives Barbelo a prominent position. Hippolytus cites a “Paraphrase of Seth” as a Christian Gnostic text. But a very similar Nag Hammadi text, The Paraphrase of Shem, lacks a Christian ingredient. It is understandable that Christian heresiologists were primarily concerned to refute the Christian form of gnostic texts and movements. But this should not be taken to indicate that the Christian form is the original form, especially when the Nag Hammadi discovery gives documentation of a non-Christian form.

Another instance, though in this case not necessarily gnostic, is the mythological birth narrative in Revelation 12, which commentators have had the greatest difficulty in deriving from any version of the birth stories about Jesus. But The Apocalypse of Adam has a series of non-Christian narrations of the coming of the savior that have much the same outline, and thus show a shared mythological background that is not Christian.

It is especially the Sethian texts in the Nag Hammadi library that as a group attest a non-Christian Gnosticism that had not been previously documented so clearly. The Sethian corpus spans the transition from non-Christian to Christianized Gnosticism, as has been summarized by the leading expert on Sethianism as follows: "Most writings of our text group contain no Christian elements at all (The Three Steles of Seth, Allogenes, Marsanes, The Thought of Norea); others contain barely Christian motifs (Zostrianus, The Apocalypse of Adam) or display only here and there a Christian veneer (Trimorphic Protennoia, The Gospel of the Egyptians); while only a few (The Hypostasis of the Archons, Melchizedek, The Apocryphon of John) come near to being what is called Christian Gnosis."

In none of these Sethian instances can one derive the texts or their mythology primarily from Christian tradition. For the Christian ingredient seems so external to the main thrust of the text that one is inclined to think it was added by a Christian editor, translator, or scribe to what had been originally composed as a non-Christian text, even though the purely non-Christian form is no longer extant. For example, the Trimorphic Protennoia, where a secondary Christianizing has taken place, has nonetheless its roots in the same Jewish wisdom speculation as does the Prologue of the Gospel of John. It is also part of this Christianizing trend when "the Holy Book of the Great Invisible Spirit" is given by some scribe the secondary title "The Gospel of the Egyptians." Thus one concludes that though the Sethian corpus was obviously usable by Christians (as were other non-Christian texts such as the Old Testament), it derives from non-Christian "Jewish" Gnosticism.

The Nag Hammadi library even presents one instance of the Christianizing process taking place almost before one's eyes. The non-Christian philosophic treatise Eugnostos the Blessed is cut up somewhat arbitrarily into separate speeches, which are then put on Jesus' tongue, in answer to questions (which sometimes do not quite fit the answers) that the disciples address to him during a resurrection appearance. The result is a separate tractate entitled The Sophia of Jesus Christ. Both forms of the text occur side by side in Codex III.

Some of the Nag Hammadi texts, and again often the Sethian traditions, seem to have appropriated a philosophic and Neoplatonic orientation. Plotinus, the leading Neoplatonist of the third century C.E., does in fact refer to Gnostics within his school: "We feel a certain regard for some of our friends who happened upon this way of thinking before they became our friends, and, though I do not know how they manage it, continue in it." But the school turned against Gnosticism, as Plotinus' polemics indicate. His pupil Porphyry reports in his Life of Plotinus:

There were in his time many Christians and others, and sectarians who had abandoned the old philosophy, men . . . who . . . produced revelations by Zoroaster and Zostrianos and Nicotheus and Allogenes and Messos and other people of the kind, themselves deceived and deceiving many, alleging that Plato had not penetrated to the depths of intelligible reality. Plotinus hence often attacked their position in his lectures, and wrote the treatise to which we had given the title "Against the Gnostics"; he left it to us to assess what he passed over. Amelius went to forty volumes in writing against the book of Zostrianos.

The Nag Hammadi library contains treatises with two such titles, Zostrianos and Allogenes, which hence may well be those refuted by Amelius and other Neoplatonists. And such Nag Hammadi texts as the Trimorphic Protennoia and Marsanes are quite similar in philosophic orientation. Plotinus' own attack on gnostic "magic chants" addressed to the "higher powers" may have in view hymnic texts like The Three Steles of Seth. Thus the Nag Hammadi library makes an important contribution not only to the history of religion, but also to the history of philosophy.

The Nag Hammadi library also includes material drawing upon other religious traditions than the Judeo-Christian heritage. There are, for example, Hermetic texts that build on Egyptian lore. Typically they present dialogues of initiation between the deities Hermes Trismegistus and his son Tat. The Discourse on the Eighth and Ninth in the Nag Hammadi library is such a previously unknown Hermetic text. And, whereas one could debate whether a good number of texts in the library are actually gnostic or not, depending on how one defines Gnosticism and interprets texts, a few, such as The Sentences of Sextus, clearly are not gnostic. But, just as a gnostic interpretation of the Bible became possible, one may assume that these moralistic maxims could also be fitted into a gnostic orientation.

Since the Nag Hammadi library seems to have been collected in terms of Christian Gnosticism, it is sometimes difficult to conceive of some of the texts, such as the Hermetic ones, being used by persons who thought of themselves as Christian. One text even claims a Zoroastrian heritage, in that it is ascribed to his grandfather (or, possibly, uncle) Zostrianos and in a cryptogram even mentions Zoroaster. Yet Gnostics were more ecumenical and syncretic with regard to religious traditions than were orthodox Christians, so long as they found in them a stance congenial to their own. If they could identify Seth with Jesus, they probably could produce Christianizing interpretations of Hermes and Zoroaster as well.

Thus Gnosticism seems not to have been in its essence just an alternate form of Christianity. Rather it was a radical trend of release from the dominion of evil or of inner transcendence that swept through late antiquity and emerged within Christianity, Judaism, Neoplatonism, Hermetism, and the like. As a new religion it was syncretistic, drawing upon various religious heritages. But it was held together by a very decided stance, which is where the unity amid the wide diversity is to be sought.

2. The Manuscripts

The Nag Hammadi library is important for the content of the many lost Greek works it has preserved in Coptic translation. It also sheds significant light upon the production of the Coptic books themselves, and hence upon those who copied, read, and buried them.

The Nag Hammadi library consists of twelve books, plus eight leaves removed from a thirteenth book in late antiquity and tucked inside the front cover of the sixth. These eight leaves comprise a complete text, an independent treatise taken out of a book of collected essays. In fact, each of the books, except the tenth, consists of a collection of relatively brief works. Thus there is a total of fifty-two tractates. Since a single book usually contains several tractates, one may suspect that, like the books of the Bible, the texts were composed with a small format in mind, but that a larger format had come into use by the time these extant copies were made. This can be explained in terms of the history of the manufacture of books.

The roll was the usual form of a book up until the first centuries C.E., when it began to be replaced by a more economical format that permitted writing on both sides, namely the modern book with individual leaves. Technically speaking, a book in the form of a roll is a "scroll" or "volume" (from the Latin verb meaning "to roll"). But a book in the form of a modern book is a "codex" (plural: "codices"), the Latin word for a set of wooden waxed tablets tied together as a scratch pad, which was the ancestor of the book with papyrus, parchment, or paper leaves. Whereas literary works continued to be written in the more prestigious form of the scroll, Christians (but not Jews) soon came to prefer the more economical codex. The codex was also more practical than the scroll, as anyone who has worked with microfilm knows. The inconvenience and wear-and-tear of unrolling and then rerolling the scroll every time one wanted to resume reading or look up a reference led to the replacement of the scroll with the codex, just as today there is a trend away from rolls of microfilm and toward microfiche.

In Egypt the most common writing material was papyrus. The triangular stalk of the papyrus plant is filled with fibrous pith that can be cut or peeled off in long thin strips. These strips are laid side by side and then a second layer is placed at right angles on top. When this is pressed, dried, and polished it becomes a flexible, smooth, and durable writing surface. Whereas these papyrus sheets were usually only about twenty centimeters long, those used in the Nag Hammadi library were often over a meter in length. Since this was a technological feat for that time, it indicated the importance of the books for those who made them.

A series of such papyrus writing surfaces was placed side by side so as to overlap a couple of centimeters where they were pasted together. The result was a papyrus roll, often about three meters long. Sheets ranging in breadth from twenty to forty centimeters would be cut from such rolls, from the right end of the roll to the left. Enough rolls would be thus cut up to produce a stack of from twenty to forty sheets, which, when folded down the middle, formed the quire of a codex. The fact that from two to six rolls were used to manufacture a single codex helps to explain the fact that a codex could contain more than one text, if each text had originally been composed with the size of the roll in view.

Since each strip of papyrus has a fiber pattern as distinctive as a fingerprint, the more fragmentary books in the Nag Hammadi library were reassembled by locating the position of the fibers of a fragment or a leaf on the original papyrus sheet that had been made from the papyrus strips. Then its position within the roll and ultimately within the codex could be calculated.

The Coptic Museum in Cairo, where the Nag Hammadi library is kept, has assigned a number to each book. At the time this was done, the numeration was thought to be the order in which they would be published, which in turn reflected a value judgment in terms of their importance and state of preservation. Only the very fragmentary fourth book is an exception to this tendency – it was given its relatively high position because the two tractates it contains are duplicates of tractates in the third book. For convenience of reference the tractates are numbered consecutively in each book. Although the numeration systems used for the books, tractates, and even pages have varied widely over the past generation, the numeration used here is that of the Coptic Museum and of The Facsimile Edition of the Nag Hammadi Codices and hence should supersede older numerations.

Of the fifty-two tractates, six that are duplicates (III,1; IV,1 and 2; V,1; XII,2; and XIII,2) are not included in the present work since there is a better copy that is included. Six more were already extant when the Nag Hammadi library was discovered, either in the original Greek (VI,5 and 7, and XII,1), or in translation, in Latin (VI,8) or Coptic (II,1 and III,4). The two in Coptic are from a papyrus codex, now in Berlin, called BG 8502, which to this extent is a codex similar to the Nag Hammadi library. For this reason the other two tractates it contains are included at the end of the present work. To get an impression of the amount of literature that has survived only in the Nag Hammadi library, one may subtract the total of twelve duplications inside or outside the Nag Hammadi library and thus reach the figure of forty newly recovered texts. To be sure, a few fragments existed of three of these, one in Greek (II,2) and two in Coptic (II,5 and VII,4), but they had not been identified as such until the complete text became available in the Nag Hammadi library. Now that the whole library is accessible, fragments of still others may be identified. But such vestiges of a tractate are more tantalizing than useful. Hence a more serious limitation on the figure of forty new texts is the fact that some of these are themselves quite fragmentary (VIII,1; IX,1, 2, and 3; XI,1, 2, 3, and 4; and XII,3). It would be safe to think of the Nag Hammadi library as adding to the amount of literature that has survived from antiquity thirty fairly complete texts, and ten that are more fragmentary.

Although the Nag Hammadi library is in Coptic, the texts were originally composed in Greek. Hence the fact that they were discovered in Upper Egypt may be misleading. Some of course have been composed in Egypt, for several contain specific allusions to Egypt: Asclepius calls Egypt the “image of heaven”; On the Origin of the World appeals to “the water hydri in Egypt” and “the two bulls in Egypt” as witnesses; and The Discourse on the Eighth and Ninth instructs the son to “write this book for the temple at Diospolis (Magna near Luxor or Parva near Nag Hammadi) in hieroglyphic characters.” Yet the Greek-writing authors may have been located anywhere in the ancient world where Greek was used, such as Greece itself (VI,5), or Syria (II,2), or Jordan (V,5). Much the same is the case with the Bible and other ancient texts written in various parts of the ancient world and preserved in the “dry sands of Egypt.” Thus the Nag Hammadi library involves the collecting of what was originally a Greek literary productivity by largely unrelated and anonymous authors spread through the eastern half of the ancient world and covering a period of almost half a millennium (or more, if one takes into consideration a brief section of Plato’s Republic, VI,5).

Almost nothing is known about the different persons who translated the tractates into Coptic, or those who copied, used, and buried them, other than what may be inferred from the books themselves. The Egyptian reading public in this period was largely familiar with Greek, and hence Greek literature was imported and copied extensively. A Roman garrison town, Diospolis Parva, with Greek-speaking Galatian troops from Asia Minor, was just across the Nile from the site where the Nag Hammadi library was buried. A Greek inscription reading “In behalf of the [good] fortune of Emperor [Caesar] Trajan Hadrian [Augustus]” has been found at Chenoboskia, on the right bank of the Nile in sight of the place of the burial. Greek prayers to Zeus Sarapis mentioning Antioch are found in two caves in the cliff near where the books were buried. But, more and more, Greek texts such as the Bible and the Nag Hammadi library were translated into the native Egyptian language. This can be illustrated for the region in which the library was produced, read, and buried, and for approximately the same period of time, from The Life of St. Pachomius. This text, which itself exists in both Greek and Coptic, tells that a Greek-speaking monk from Alexandria came to Pachomius, who “made him live in the same dwelling with an old brother who knew the Greek language,” while he learned the native tongue. Meanwhile Pachomius “made every effort to learn Greek by the grace of God in order to discover the way of offering him solace frequently. Then Pachomius appointed him house manager of the Alexandrian and other foreign brothers who came after him.”

When the Egyptian language is written with the Greek alphabet (plus a few letters for sounds Greeks did not make), it is called Coptic. The Nag Hammadi library is written in two Coptic dialects. Even among the texts translated into the same dialect, minor divergences point to a plurality of translators, who do not correspond to the plurality of scribes responsible for surviving copies. In the case of duplicates, different translators were involved, working from divergent Greek texts. The translation process may have been spread over a wide area of Egypt, and more than a single century.

Each codex was bound in leather. The outline of the desired book size was often scored onto the leather, whereupon the flesh side of the outlined area was lined with used papyrus pasted into thick cardboards called cartonnage, producing a hardback effect. This used papyrus consisted of Greek and Coptic letters and business documents, and has produced names of persons and places as well as dates that help to determine the time and place of the manufacture of the covers. After a cover was thus lined with cartonnage, a strip of the cover was turned in at the head and foot of the front and back cover and at the fore edge of the back cover. Since the line of the animal's spine usually ran horizontally across the cover, the narrowing of the skin leading to the animal's tail could be retained to form a flap extending from the fore edge of the front cover. To this was added a thong to encircle horizontally the closed book. This may have been a practice taken over from the manufacture of a papyrus scroll, where a parchment wrapper and thong were traditionally used to protect it and hold it closed. A thong was also needed to hold a codex closed. Each of the Nag Hammadi books has a single quire, that is to say, a single stack of sheets folded down the center to produce the writing surfaces (although in Codex I the main quire is supplemented with two smaller quires). Such large quires would tend to gape at the fore edge unless securely tied. Shorter thongs extending from the head and foot of the front and back covers were tied together to aid in holding the codex closed.

Two of the covers (IV and VIII) lack a flap on the fore edge of the front cover, though they do have the usual thong. A third cover of a similar construction (V) has such a flap added to the fore edge of the front cover. These three books thus seem to have been made from smaller skins, and the poor quality of the papyrus used for their quires confirms the impression of economy. Other covers include a leather reinforcement (called by bookbinders a "mull") that lines the spine and protects the cover and the quire from the pressure of the binding thongs that run through the fold at the center of the quire, as well as two horizontal supportive thongs lying between the cover and the mull. Three covers have such a construction (VI, IX, and X). They form a second group among the covers, together with another similarly constructed cover (II), which however is now lacking whatever lining it may have had. This group is characterized both by such advances in technique as have just been mentioned and by a higher aesthetic quality. Indeed, the cover of Codex II has rather beautiful tinted tooling. The four other covers (I, III, VII, XI) do not share distinctive traits, except for a certain primitiveness, which would make it possible to assign them to a group.

The scribes involved in producing the thirteen codices can be distinguished by their handwriting. There seem to be few clear instances of a single scribe working on more than one codex: One scribe copied most of Codex I, but a second scribe copied tractate 4 of Codex I; this second scribe also copied tractates 1 and 2 of Codex XI. A third scribe copied in a different dialect tractates 3 and 4 of Codex XI and also Codex VII. Thus three of the four books that seem unrelated to each other in terms of the way the covers were made do seem interrelated in terms of the scribes who wrote them. Conversely it was earlier thought that one scribe copied Codices IV, V, VI, VIII and IX, which would mean that the two groups distinguished in terms of leather covers must have been related by scribal hand. But more recent study of the hands has indicated that one has to do with different, even if similar, hands, that diverge most clearly just where the bookbinding divergences take place, thereby belatedly confirming, rather than relativizing, the distinction into groups based initially only on the leather covers.

The two groups of covers plus four miscellaneous covers, and the one group of scribal hands plus miscellaneous scribes, may indicate that the Nag Hammadi library is a secondary merging of what was originally a series of smaller libraries or isolated books. This would seem to be confirmed by the distribution of the duplicates. No one codex contains two copies of the same work, nor is there a duplicate tractate among the books of one group of covers. Nor did the same scribe, with but one exception, copy the same text twice. The one exception would seem to be II,4 and XIII,2, which are the same text in the same scribal hand and with almost identical wording. Yet the second copy was discarded, when Codex XIII was torn apart and only one tractate (XIII,1) preserved inside the front cover of Codex VI – together with a few opening lines of XIII,2 on the back of the last leaf, which could not be discarded without mutilating the text one was seeking to preserve (XIII,1). The fact that this scribal duplication was nullified by separating off XIII,2 (except for the unavoidable opening lines) may attest to what seems to have been an awareness of the unnecessariness of such duplication. A scribal note in Codex VI expresses concern not to displease whoever commissioned the work by duplicating something already owned. Hence when duplication does turn up in terms of the whole library, one is inclined to think the books with the duplication were not produced with the whole library of thirteen books in view. Both the tractates in Codex IV are also in Codex III, so that Codex IV is wholly superfluous in the present library. And there is a total of three copies of the Apocryphon of John (II,1; III,1; and IV,1), one from each of the three classifications of covers. Thus one may conjecture that the present library derives from at least three smaller collections.

The dating of Coptic literary hands, such as those attested in the texts before us, is much less certain than is the dating of Greek literary hands, or the dating of the cursive business hands of the day. A thorough study of the hands of the Nag Hammadi library has not yet been made, although dates ranging at least from early to late fourth century C.E. have been proposed. The texts themselves do not normally contain dates or datable historical references. But The Concept of Our Great Power may provide one reference that can serve as a point of departure for dating Codex VI: "Cease from the evil lusts and desires and (the teachings of) the Anomoeans, evil heresies that have no basis!" While the Archbishop of Alexandria, Athanasius, was in hiding in the Pachomian monasteries in the late 350s C.E., "Anomoean" heretics were flourishing for a brief period in Alexandria. Probably this text received its final form no earlier than at this time.

The papyrus used for letters and business documents and reused to thicken the leather covers may be located in time and space with more ease than can the leaves that comprise the quires bound with the help of these covers. Dates found in such "cartonnage" of Codex VII are 341, 346, and 348 C.E. This indicates that the cover of Codex VII was manufactured no earlier than the latest date, but perhaps as much as a generation after these dates. A document found in the cartonnage of Codex I mentions "Diospol[is] near Chenobos[kia]." Other locations in the same general region also occur in the cartonnage of the other covers. Some of the cartonnage in the cover of Codex VII seems to have belonged to a monk named Sansnos who was in charge of the cattle of a monastery, which would no doubt account for his close relationship to the manufacture of the leather covers. The headquarters of the monastery of the Pachomian order at Pabau, where the Basilica of Saint Pachomius was located, as well as the third Pachomian monastery at Chenoboskia, where Pachomius himself began his Christian life as a hermit, are only 8.7 and 5.3 kilometers (5.4 and 3.3 miles) respectively from the place where the library was buried. Thus the provenience of the Nag Hammadi codices has often been identified with the Pachomian Monastic Order, which among other things involved a large-scale literary program at the appropriate time and place of the production of the Nag Hammadi codices. But the publication of this cartonnage in 1981 involved a critical sifting of the evidence, which proved to be less conclusive than had been previously maintained. The relation of the Nag Hammadi codices to the Pachomian movement remains a tantalizing possibility, more concrete than any other that has been suggested, and yet far from assured.

In view of the orthodoxy of the Pachomian monasteries reflected in The Life of St. Pachomius and other monastic legends, some have hesitated to associate the Nag Hammadi library with these monasteries, unless it be that such texts were copied for ready reference in refuting heresy. But a defender of Christian orthodoxy would hardly bother to collect the non-Christian texts that are in the Nag Hammadi library. And some of the Christian texts are not explicitly "heretical" and hence would hardly have been included in such a blacklist. The very fact that the library seems to have been made up by combining several smaller collections tends to point toward individual Christian Gnostics or monasteries producing individual books or small collections for their own spiritual enlightenment, rather than to a heresy-hunting scribal campaign. Since the familiar heresy-hunting literature is in Greek, one should hesitate to postulate such a widespread heresy-hunting activity in Coptic. And the Pachomian literature transmitted through monastic channels is much more pedestrian.

Of course it is conceivable that book manufacture could have been one of the handicrafts common in monasteries to produce commodities to trade or sell for the necessities of life. Hence one could conjecture that uninscribed books were produced in the monastery and sold to Gnostics (or anyone else) to inscribe as they saw fit. But there is some evidence from that period that books were first inscribed and then bound, as when a line of writing passes through the fold at the spine. And in the Nag Hammadi library blotting is usually present on the first and last pages but not elsewhere, which may perhaps be explained as due to the dampness of the paste in the cartonnage at the time of the binding, in which case the quire would have had to have been inscribed before being bound.

The care and religious devotion reflected in the manufacture of the Nag Hammadi library hardly suggest that the books were produced out of antagonism or even disinterest in their contents, but rather reflect the veneration accorded to holy texts. The leather covers are not very ornate, compared, for example, with reports that Manichaean books were studded with jewels (though the very plain extant wooden covers of the Manichaean codices of Medinet Madi are even simpler than the Nag Hammadi covers). Yet simplicity would be appropriate to the Pachomian monasteries. The Life of St. Pachomius reports: "He also taught the brothers to pay no attention to the loveliness and beauty of this world, whether it be beautiful food or clothing, or a cell, or an outwardly seductive book." The simple tooling of some of the leather covers does include crosses (II, IV, VIII). The ankh hieroglyph of life that became the Christian cross ansata is on the beautifully tooled cover of Codex II and at the end of The Prayer of the Apostle Paul. The acrostic "fish" symbol standing for the creed "Jesus Christ, Son of God, Savior" occurs in two scribal notes (in codices III and VII). In the first case the name of the scribe is preserved in the comment "in the flesh my name is Gongessos," which is probably the Latin name Concessus. He also had a spiritual name or title of Eugnostos. Thus he had some spiritual status, and referred to his "fellow lights in incorruptibility." Within this spiritual circle he described the text as "God-written." Even if such a scribal note was not composed by the scribe who copied the codex that has survived, but rather came from an earlier scribe who wrote an ancestor of the copy that survived, nevertheless the scribe of Codex III did not feel called upon to eliminate it, much less to replace it with a warning against heresy in the text. Some scribal notes, however, since they were written at the end of an extant codex, may be assumed to have been composed by the scribe of that particular codex. They reflect the godliness the scribe found in what he or she was copying. Codex II concludes with this note: "Remember me also, my brethren, [in] your prayers: Peace to the saints and those who are spiritual." Codex VII ends on a similar note: "The book belongs to the fatherhood. It is the son who wrote it. Bless me, O father. I bless you, O father, in peace. Amen." These scribal notes, together with the scribe's care to correct errors, tend to indicate that the scribes were of a religious persuasion congenial to the contents they were copying.

Perhaps the common presentation of the monastic movement of the fourth century C.E. as solidly orthodox is an anachronism, and more nearly reflects the situation of the later monasticism that recorded the legends about the earlier period. When a hermit withdrew from civilization into the desert, he also tended to be out of contact with the Church, for example with its fellowship, sacraments, and authority. Early in the fourth century there was a monk in the delta named Hierakas, a scribe by trade and a learned interpreter of the Bible, who was so ascetic in his views as to argue that marriage was limited to the old covenant, for no married person "can inherit the kingdom of heaven." Although this led to him being classified as a heretic, it did not prevent him from having a following. The Testimony of Truth in the Nag Hammadi library represents a similar view:

For no one who is under the law will be able to look up to the truth, for they will not be able to serve two masters. For the defilement of the Law is manifest; but undefilement belongs to the light. The Law commands (one) to take a husband (or) to take a wife, and to beget, and to multiply like the sand of the sea. But passion which is a delight to them constrains the souls of those who are begotten in this place, those who defile and those who are defiled, in order that the Law might be fulfilled through them. And they show that they are assisting the world; and they [turn] away from the light, who are unable [to pass by] the archon of [darkness] until they pay the last [penny].

The Life of St. Pachomius narrates that a “philosopher” from Pano polis (Akhmim), where Pachomius built a monastery just 108 kilometers (67 miles) downstream from where the Nag Hammadi library was buried, came to test the monk’s “understanding of the scriptures.” Pachomius sent his assistant Theodore to meet him:

The philosopher queried him on something for which the answer was not difficult to find, “Who was not born but died? Who was born but did not die? And who died without giving off the stench of decomposition?” Theodore replied that Adam was not born but died, Enoch was born but did not die, and Lot’s wife died but, having become a pillar of salt, did not give off the stench of decomposition. The philosopher accepted these answers and departed.

This may well be a faint echo of Pachomian debates with Christian Gnostics before the middle of the fourth century C.E. Epiphanius’ efforts to run Christian Gnostics out of town took place in Egypt about the same time.

In 367 C.E. Archbishop Athanasius wrote an Easter letter that condemns heretics and their “apocryphal books to which they attribute antiquity and give the name of saints.” Theodore, by then head of the Pachomian monasteries, had the letter translated into Coptic, and “deposited it in the monastery to serve them as a rule.” There must still have been heretics or heretical books influencing the Pachomian monastic movement which made this act necessary. Of course many of the Nag Hammadi texts are indeed pseudonymous, that is to say, ascribed in their titles to some “saint” of the past. In another of the Pachomian legends one of “these books that the heretics write” but “give out under the name of saints” is quoted: “After Eve was deceived and had eaten the fruit of the tree, it is of the devil that she bore Cain." The Hypostasis of the Archons in the Nag Hammadi library has a narrative that points in this direction:

Then the authorities came to their Adam. And when they saw his female counterpart speaking with him, they became agitated with great agitation; and they became enamored of her. They said to one another, "Come let us sow our seed in her," and they pursued her. And she laughed at them for their witlessness and their blindness; and in their clutches, she became a tree, and left them her shadowy reflection resembling herself; and they defiled [it] foully. – And they defiled the stamp of her voice, so that by the form they had modelled, together with [their] (own) image, they made themselves liable to condemnation.

Early in the fifth century C.E. Shenoute, Abbot of the White Monastery at the same Panopolis where Pachomius had founded monasteries and from which the "philosopher" had come, attacked a group at the nearby temple of Pnueit that called itself "kingless," worshipped the "demiurge," and would not accept Cyril, Archbishop of Alexandria, as their "illuminator." These terms, which Shenoute seems to borrow from the group, are so well-known in the Nag Hammadi library that it may have been a Christian Gnostic, perhaps a Sethian group, even though in his polemic Shenoute calls them pagan heretics. He seized their "books full of abomination" and "of every kind of magic." Indeed, series of vowels and unintelligible magic words (Plotinus called it "hissing") occur in the Nag Hammadi library itself. Actually Pachomius himself wrote to the heads of his monasteries using a code that even his successors could not decipher! Hence the Nag Hammadi library and Pachomius' "books of spiritual letters" may not have been entirely different in appearance from what Shenoute would call a book of magic. Shenoute threatened the heretics: "I shall make you acknowledge . . . the Archbishop Cyril, or else the sword will wipe out most of you, and moreover those of you who are spared will go into exile." Just as the Dead Sea Scrolls were put in jars for safekeeping and hidden at the time of the approach of the Roman Tenth Legion, the burial of the Nag Hammadi library in a jar may also have been precipitated by the approach of Roman authorities, who by then had become Christian.

The fact that the Nag Hammadi library was hidden in a jar suggests the intention not to eliminate but to preserve the books. For not only were the Dead Sea Scrolls put in such jars for safekeeping, but biblical manuscripts have been found similarly preserved up and down the Nile, in some cases dating from the same period and buried in the Nag Hammadi region.

In fact, a second discovery, made in 1952, of manuscripts buried in a jar a couple of centuries later than the Nag Hammadi codices, is much more certainly the remains of a library of the Pachomian monastic order than is the Nag Hammadi discovery. For this discovery included archival copies of formal letters of abbots of the Pachomian Order. And the rest of the holdings are also what one would expect of a Pachomian library: biblical, apocryphal, martyriological, and other edifying material. To be sure, there are also some Greek (and Latin) classical texts, whose presence may be explained by the assumption that persons who joined the Pachomian movement gave their worldly possessions to the Order, which would thus have acquired non-Christian texts. Later they would have been taken to be venerable texts like the others in the archives, fragile and fragmentary relics to be preserved and no longer texts to be read.

This second discovery is known locally as the Dishnā Papers, since Dishnā near the river and railroad is the large town through which the texts were marketed. But the site of the discovery was at the foot of the Jabal Abū Manā', 5.5 km (3.4 miles) northwest of Dishna, and, more significant, 5 km (3.1 miles) northeast of the headquarters of the Pachomian Order and 12 km (7.5 miles) east of the site of the discovery of the Nag Hammadi codices. This manuscript discovery has been known for the past generation in scholarly circles as the Bodmer Papyri, since the largest part of it was acquired by the Bibliothèque Bodmer near Geneva. But it is only recently, in the process of tracking down the provenience of the Nag Hammadi codices, that the provenience of the Bodmer Papyri has been identified beyond the reports of the antiquities dealers and made public to the scholarly world.

The Bible refers to burial in a jar as a way to preserve a book and to burning as the way to eliminate one (Jer 32:14-15; 36:23). The Life of St. Pachomius reports that he got rid of a book by Origen, whom he considered a heretic, by throwing it in the water, with the comment that if the Lord's name had not been in it he would have burned it. The burning of the greatest library in antiquity at Alexandria by Christians late in the fourth century C.E. suggests that such a ready solution would hardly have been overlooked if the intent had been to get rid of the Nag Hammadi library. If the codices had been part of a Pachomian library, they must have been removed not by heresy-hunters, but by devotees who cherished them enough to bury them in a jar for safekeeping, perhaps for posterity.

Two of the texts in the Nag Hammadi library refer to their being stored for safekeeping in a mountain until the end of time. The Gospel of the Egyptians concludes:

The Great Seth wrote this book with letters in one hundred and thirty years. He placed it in the mountain that is called Charaxio, in order that, at the end of the times and the eras, . . . it may come forth and reveal this incorruptible, holy race of the great savior, and those who dwell with them in love, and the great, invisible, eternal Spirit, and his only begotten Son . . .

Near the end of Allogenes a similar idea occurs:

Write down [the things that I] shall [tell] you and of which I shall remind you for the sake of those who will be worthy after you. And you will leave this book upon a mountain and you will adjure the guardian, "Come Dreadful One."

On each side of the Nile Valley cliffs rise abruptly to the desert above. The section of the cliff on the right bank marking the limit of the Nile Valley and the arable land between Chenoboskia and Pabau is called the Jabal al-Tārif. A protruding boulder shaped somewhat like a stalagmite had broken off in prehistoric times from the face of the cliff and fallen down onto the talus (the inclined plane of fallen rock that over the ages naturally collects like a buttress at the foot of a cliff). Under the northern flank of one of the huge barrel-shaped pieces of this shattered boulder the jar containing the Nag Hammadi library was secreted.

In the face of the cliff, just at the top of the talus, which can be climbed without difficulty, sixth-dynasty tombs from the reigns of Pepi I and II (2350-2200 B.C.E.) had in antiquity long since been robbed. Thus they had become cool solitary caves where a monk might well hold his spiritual retreats, as is reported of Pachomius himself, or where a hermit might have his cell. Greek prayers to Zeus Sarapis, opening lines of biblical Psalms in Coptic, and Christian crosses, all painted in red onto the walls of the caves, show that they were indeed so used. Perhaps those who cherished the Nag Hammadi library made such use of the caves, which would account for the choice of this site to bury them. The jar rested there a millennium and a half . . .

3. The Discovery

In the month of December peasants of the Naj' Ḥammādī region of Upper Egypt fertilize their crops by carrying nitrates from the talus of the Jabal al-Tārif to their fields, using the saddlebags of their camels. Two brothers, Muḥammad and Khalifah 'Alī of the al-Sammān clan, hobbled their camels on the south side of the fallen boulder and came upon the jar as they were digging around its base. Muḥammad 'Alī reports that at first he was afraid to break the jar, whose lid may have been sealed on with bitumen, for fear that a jinn might be closed up inside it; but, on reflecting that the jar might contain gold, he recovered his courage and smashed it with his mattock. Out swirled golden-like particles that disappeared into the sky – neither jinns nor gold but perhaps papyrus fragments! He wrapped the books in his tunic, slung it over his shoulder, unhobbled his camel, and carried the books home, a hovel in the hamlet of al-Qaṣr, which was the ancient site of Chenoboskia where Pachomius had begun his life as a Christian.

Half a year earlier, during the night of 7 May 1945, the father of the two brothers, whose name was ‘Alī, while on his job as night watchman guarding irrigation equipment in the fields, had killed a marauder. By mid-morning he had in turn been murdered in blood vengeance. About a month after the discovery of the books, a peasant named Aḥmad fell asleep sitting in the heat of the day on the side of the dirt road near Muḥammad ‘Alī’s house, a jar of sugar-cane molasses for sale beside him. A neighbor pointed him out to Muḥammad ‘Alī as the murderer of his father. He ran home and alerted his brothers and widowed mother, who had told her seven sons to keep their mattocks sharp. The family fell upon their victim, hacked off his limbs bit by bit, ripped out his heart, and devoured it among them, as the ultimate act of blood revenge.

Aḥmad was the son of the sheriff, Īsmā‘īl Husayn, a strong man imposed on al-Qaṣr from outside, indeed, a member of the Hawāra tribe, who is so alienated from society that it considers itself non-Arabic though directly descended from the Prophet. The village of the Hawāra, Ḥamrah Dūm, is just at the foot of the Jabal al-Ṭārif, for which reason Muḥammad ‘Alī has been afraid to return to the site of the discovery lest his vengeance be in turn avenged. In fact Aḥmad’s brother did avenge the death at the time by killing two members of the al-Sammān clan. Even a decade later, Aḥmad’s young son, who by then was a teenager, heard that at dusk there was to be in al-Qaṣr a funeral procession of the family of Muḥammad ‘Alī. He proved his manhood by sneaking into town and shooting up the procession, with a score killed and wounded. Muḥammad ‘Alī proudly shows a wound just above his heart, to prove that they tried but failed in vengeance. But he stoutly refused to return to the cliff to identify the site of the discovery until a camouflage costume, a governmental escort, and of course a financial consideration combined to persuade him to change his mind.

The village of al-Qaṣr was so glad to be rid of the sheriff’s son that no eye witnesses could be found to testify at the hearing. But during this period the police tended to search Muḥammad ‘Alī’s home every evening for weapons. Having been told that the books were Christian, no doubt simply on the basis of the Coptic script, Muḥammad ‘Alī asked the Coptic priest of Al-Qaṣr, Bāsīlīyūs ‘Abd al-Masīḥ, if he could deposit the books in his house. A priest’s home would hardly be searched. Coptic priests marry, and this priest’s wife had a brother, Rāghīb Andrawus, who went from village to village in a circuit teaching English and history in the parochial schools of the Coptic Church. Once a week when he taught in al-Qaṣr he stayed in his sister’s home. On seeing one of the books (Codex III), he recognized its potential value and persuaded the priest to give it to him. He took it to Cairo and showed it to a Coptic physician interested in the Coptic language, George Sobhi, who called in the authorities from the Department of Antiquities. They took control of the book, agreeing to pay Rāghīb £300. After what seemed endless delays, Rāghīb finally received £250 upon agreeing to make a gift of the balance of £50 to the Coptic Museum, where the book was deposited. The Register of the Museum records the date as 4 October 1946.

Thinking the books were worthless, perhaps even a source of bad luck, the widow of ‘Alī had burned part of them in the oven (probably Codex XII, of which only a few fragmentary leaves remain). Illiterate Muslim neighbors bartered or purchased the remainder for next to nothing. Nāshid Bisādah had one, and entrusted it to a gold merchant of Nag Hammadi to sell in Cairo, whereupon they divided the profit. A grain merchant is reported to have acquired another and sold it in Cairo at such a high price that he was able to set up his shop there. The villagers of al-Qaṣr identify him as Fikrī Jabrā’il, today the proprietor of the “Nag Hammadi Store” in Cairo; however, he stoutly denies any involvement, though familiar with this story. Bahīj ‘Alī, a one-eyed outlaw of al-Qaṣr, got most of the books. Escorted by a well-known antiquities dealer of the region, Dhakī Baṣṭa, he went to Cairo. They first offered the books to Mansoor’s shop at Shepherds Hotel, and then to the shop of Phokion J. Tano, who bought their whole stock and then went to Nag Hammadi to get whatever was left.

Most of Codex I was exported from Egypt by a Belgian antiquities dealer in Cairo, Albert Eid. It was offered for sale unsuccessfully in New York and Ann Arbor in 1949, and then on 10 May 1952 was acquired in Belgium from Eid’s widow Simone by the Jung Institute of Zürich and named the “Jung Codex.” It was returned to Cairo bit by bit after publication, where it is conserved in the Coptic Museum. Meanwhile Tano’s collection was taken into custody by the Egyptian Department of Antiquities to prevent it from leaving the country. After Nasser came to power it was nationalized, with a token compensation of £4,000. Today the Nag Hammadi library is back together again, conserved in the Coptic Museum.

The Director of the Coptic Museum at the time of the discovery, Togo Mina, had studied in Paris under the Abbot Étienne Drioton, who had subsequently become Director of the Department of Antiquities of Egypt. Togo Mina had been a classmate of the wife of Jean Doresse, a young French scholar who came to Egypt to study Coptic monasteries. Togo Mina was glad to give him access to Codex III and to make plans with him for a predominantly French edition of the library, plans cut short by Mina's death in 1949. In 1956 a meeting of some members of an international committee in Cairo led to the publication of The Gospel of Thomas in 1959. And the Jung Codex was gradually published in six volumes from 1956 through 1975. Meanwhile the new Director of the Coptic Museum, Pahor Labib, made plans to publish the better part of the library with the German scholars Alexander Böhlig and Martin Krause.

The General Director of UNESCO, René Maheu of France, worked out an agreement in the early 1960s with the Minister of Culture and National Guidance of the United Arab Republic, Saroite Okacha, to publish a complete edition through an international committee jointly chosen by Egypt and UNESCO. But when it was discovered that many of the choicest texts had already been assigned for publication, the UNESCO plan was limited to a facsimile edition. The project was rather dormant until the International Committee for the Nag Hammadi Codices was appointed at the end of 1970. The Facsimile Edition of the Nag Hammadi Codices was published by E.J. Brill in twelve volumes from 1972 through 1984. A number of the earlier assignments have by now been published, and complete editions in English, German and French are currently being prepared. The present volume makes use of the translations from the seventeen-volume English edition, entitled The Coptic Gnostic Library (see p. x).

With the publication of The Nag Hammadi Library in English the work has only just begun, for it marks a new beginning in the study of Gnosticism. Over a century ago students began to study Gnosticism in order to know what the heresy-hunting Church fathers were talking about. Around the turn of this century the History of Religions School broadened this issue by seeking the origins of Gnosticism throughout the ancient Near East. Between the two world wars, Hans Jonas produced a philosophical interpretation of Gnosticism that for the first time made sense of it as a possible way to understand existence. Rudolf Bultmann then reinterpreted the New Testament in terms of an interaction with Gnosticism involving appropriation as well as confrontation. Yet the results of this century of research into the origin, nature, and influence of Gnosticism stand in a certain ambivalence, as if hanging in suspense. One cannot fail to be impressed by the clairvoyance, the constructive power, the learned intuitions of scholars who, from limited and secondary sources, were able to produce working hypotheses that in fact worked so well. Yet the discovery of the Nag Hammadi library has drawn attention to how meager those sources were. For even though the discovery of the Nag Hammadi library was quite accidental and its contents somewhat arbitrary, the flood of new source material it contains cannot fail to outweigh the constructions and conjectures of previous scholarship. But, for the first generation after the discovery, the new source material was at best a trickle, and the suspense produced stagnation, as the scholarly community waited and waited. Now the time has come for a concentrated effort, with the whole Nag Hammadi library accessible, to rewrite the history of Gnosticism, to understand what it was really all about, and of course to pose new questions. Rarely has a generation of students had such an opportunity! May the readers of The Nag Hammadi Library in English share this exhilaration, and this responsibility, with those who produced it.

THE PRAYER OF THE APOSTLE PAUL (I,1)

Introduced and translated by

DIETER MUELLER

The Prayer of the Apostle Paul occupies the front flyleaf of Codex I, also known as the Jung Codex. The scribe apparently added this prayer to the collection of tractates in the codex after he had finished copying The Tripartite Tractate (I,5). The title, followed by a brief colophon, is placed at the end of the prayer. The Greek language retained in that title was no doubt the original language of the prayer as a whole. The short text is of unknown provenance. Its general gnostic affinities are clear. Details such as the reference to the "psychic God" (A,31) may indicate Valentinian connections. That association in turn suggests a date of origin between the second half of the second century and the end of the third century.

In form and content The Prayer of the Apostle Paul echoes various other compositions. It displays a striking resemblance not only to prayers in the Corpus Hermeticum (1.31-32; 5.10-11; 13.16-20) but also to invocations found in magical texts. Furthermore, its beginning is rather similar to that of the hymn of the First Stele of The Three Steles of Seth (VII,5). Both documents may use a common tradition. There are also similarities within The Gospel of Philip (II,3). In general, The Prayer of the Apostle Paul is heavily indebted to the Psalms and the Pauline letters. The most striking echo of the apostle, and at the same time a clear index of gnostic orientation, is the request to be granted "what no angel-eye has seen and no archon-ear has heard and what has not entered into the human heart" (cf. 1 Co 2:9).

THE PRAYER OF THE APOSTLE PAUL

I A, 1-B, 10

THE APOCRYPHON OF JAMES (I,2)

Introduced and translated by

FRANCIS E. WILLIAMS

The Apocryphon of James is a pseudonymous work translated from Greek to Coptic, which professes to be a letter written by James, the Lord's brother; the alleged recipient's name is illegible but might have been that of the early Christian heterodox teacher, Cerinthus. The letter in turn introduces a secret writing, or "apocryphon" – hence our title for the entire tractate. This apocryphon is meant for an elect few – even among the disciples, for James and Peter only – but salvation is promised to those who receive its message.

"James'" letter states that the apocryphon is written in the Hebrew alphabet, and mentions another even more secret apocryphon, which James has already sent. These details are presumably inserted for the sake of atmosphere.

The apocryphon, which comprises the bulk of our tractate, makes Jesus appear to the disciples 550 days after the resurrection, take Peter and James aside to "fill" them, and give them, in a series of speeches, his final and definitive teaching, heretofore delivered only "in parables." He then ascends to the Father's right hand, with James and Peter unsuccessfully attempting to follow. This closes the apocryphon; the letter now resumes, and states that the revelation just given was meant, not for the disciples of Jesus, but for the "children" who would be "born" later. While the disciples believed the revelation, they were angry over these later children, and James therefore dispatched them to other places. This, presumably, is meant to explain why our tractate formed no part of the apostolic preaching (or the canonical scripture?).

Jesus' speeches in the apocryphon are partly the author's composition, but incorporate older material, which seems to be the product of complex oral and perhaps written transmission; some of it can be compared with the material underlying the canonical gospels. The speeches show Jesus announcing that he has descended to save God's "beloved" sons, and inviting them to follow him back to the place from which he (and they?) came. He assures them of salvation in the strongest terms, while at the same time urging them to earnestness and zeal, and warning them that they can be lost. The first and longest of the speeches, however, is a two-page exhortation to martyrdom. Its distinctive style, manner, and subject matter suggest that it may be a later interpolation.

It is clear that the persons for whom this tractate was written made a distinction between themselves and the larger Christian church. Probably they rejected the doctrine of the atonement; they certainly ignored the second coming of Christ and the general resurrection, and hoped to ascend, in soul or spirit, to the kingdom of heaven, which they meanwhile felt to be within themselves. This outlook, together with the large amount of typically gnostic terminology in the tractate, has led most investigators to conclude that the work is Christian Gnostic, even though it lacks the Valentinian, and other well-known gnostic theologies. The reporting of a special postresurrection appearance of Jesus, and the appeal to James as a source of secret and superior tradition, are means Gnostics often used to legitimate their message.

The exhortation to martyrdom, James' letter, and the description of Jesus' appearance to the disciples, may be secondary; these and other questions relating to the document's literary history have been investigated and deserve further investigation. It has been urged that the tractate must have been written before 150 C.E., while it was still possible to speak of "remembering" orally delivered sayings of Jesus and writing them down; this language, it is argued, would not have been used after the fixing of the Gospel canon. The apocryphon's many resemblances to the Fourth Gospel's "farewell discourses" might also help to establish its date. To use these as a criterion, however, one must decide whether they are allusions to the actual text of the Fourth Gospel, or independent discussions of the same questions. In any case the tractate cannot be later than 314 C.E., when the persecution of the church, and with it the risk of martyrdom, came to an end.

THE APOCRYPHON OF JAMES

Since you asked <sup>1</sup> that I send <sup>10</sup> you a secret book <sup>1</sup> which was revealed to me <sup>1</sup> and Peter by the Lord, <sup>1</sup> I could not turn you away <sup>1</sup> or gainsay (?) you; <sup>15</sup> but [I have written] it in <sup>1</sup> the Hebrew alphabet and <sup>1</sup> sent it to you, and you <sup>1</sup> alone. But since you are <sup>1</sup> a minister of the salvation <sup>20</sup> of the saints, endeavor earnestly <sup>1</sup> and take care not to rehearse <sup>1</sup> this text to many – this <sup>1</sup> that the Savior did not wish <sup>1</sup> to tell to all of us, his <sup>25</sup> twelve disciples. <sup>1</sup> But blessed will they be <sup>1</sup> who will be saved through <sup>1</sup> the faith of this discourse.

I <sup>1</sup> also sent you, <sup>30</sup> ten months ago, another secret <sup>1</sup> book which the Savior <sup>1</sup> had revealed to me. Under the circumstances, however, <sup>1</sup> regard that one <sup>1</sup> as revealed <sup>35</sup> to me, James; but this one <sup>2</sup> [untranslatable fragments] <sup>1</sup> the twelve disciples <sup>1</sup> [were] all sitting together <sup>10</sup> and recalling <sup>1</sup> what the Savior had said <sup>1</sup> to each one of them, whether <sup>1</sup> in secret or openly, <sup>1</sup> and [putting it] <sup>15</sup> in books – [But I] <sup>1</sup> was writing that which was in [my book] – <sup>1</sup> lo, the Savior appeared, [after] <sup>1</sup> departing from [us while we] gazed <sup>1</sup> after him. And five hundred <sup>20</sup> and fifty days since he had risen <sup>1</sup> from the dead, we said <sup>1</sup> to him, "Have you departed and removed yourself from us?" <sup>1</sup>

He said, <sup>1</sup> “Verily I say unto you,<sup>30</sup> no one will ever enter <sup>1</sup> the kingdom of heaven at my <sup>1</sup> bidding, but (only) because <sup>1</sup> you yourselves are full. Leave <sup>1</sup> James and Peter to me <sup>35</sup> that I may fill them.” And <sup>1</sup> having called these two, <sup>1</sup> he drew them aside and bade <sup>1</sup> the rest occupy themselves <sup>1</sup> with that which they were about.<sup>40</sup>

The Savior said, “You have received mercy 3 <sup>7</sup> [untranslatable fragments] <sup>1</sup> Do you not, then, desire to be filled? <sup>1</sup> And your heart is drunken; <sup>10</sup> do you not, then, desire to be sober? <sup>1</sup> Therefore, be ashamed! Henceforth, waking <sup>1</sup> or sleeping, remember <sup>1</sup> that you have seen <sup>1</sup> the Son of Man, and <sup>15</sup> spoken with him in person, <sup>1</sup> and listened to him in person. <sup>1</sup> Woe to those who have seen the <sup>1</sup> Son [of] Man; <sup>1</sup> blessed will they be who <sup>20</sup> have not seen the man, and they <sup>1</sup> who have not consorted with him, and <sup>1</sup> they who have not spoken with him, <sup>1</sup> and they who have not listened to <sup>1</sup> anything from him; yours is <sup>25</sup> life! Know, then, that he healed <sup>1</sup> you when you were ill <sup>1</sup> that you might reign. Woe <sup>1</sup> to those who have found relief from <sup>1</sup> their illness, for they will <sup>30</sup> relapse into illness. Blessed are <sup>1</sup> they who have not been ill, and <sup>1</sup> have known relief before <sup>1</sup> falling ill; yours is the <sup>1</sup> kingdom of God. Therefore, I <sup>35</sup> say to you, ‘Become <sup>1</sup> full and leave no space within <sup>1</sup> you empty, for he who is coming <sup>1</sup> can mock you.’”

The [Savior answered] <sup>1</sup> and said, [“For this cause I have said] <sup>1</sup> to you, [‘Become full,’] that <sup>5</sup> [you] may not [be in want. They who are in want], <sup>1</sup> however, will not [be saved]. For it is good to be full, <sup>1</sup> and bad to be in want. Hence, just as <sup>1</sup> it is good that you (sg.) be in want and, <sup>1</sup> conversely, bad that you be full, so <sup>10</sup> he who is full is in want, <sup>1</sup> and he who is in want does not become full as <sup>1</sup> he who is in want becomes full, and <sup>1</sup> he who has been filled, in turn, attains <sup>1</sup> due perfection. Therefore, you must be in want <sup>15</sup> while it is possible to fill you (pl.), and <sup>1</sup> be full while it is possible for you to be in want, <sup>1</sup> so that you may be able [to fill] <sup>1</sup> yourselves the more. Hence become <sup>1</sup> full of the Spirit, <sup>20</sup> but be in want of <sup>1</sup> reason, for reason <belongs to> the soul; <sup>1</sup> in turn it is (of the nature of) soul.” <sup>1</sup>

The Lord answered <sup>1</sup> and said, “What is your (pl.) merit <sup>1</sup> if you do the will of the Father <sup>1</sup> and it is not given to you from him <sup>35</sup> as a gift while <sup>1</sup> you are tempted by <sup>1</sup> Satan? But if <sup>1</sup> you (pl.) are oppressed by <sup>1</sup> Satan and <sup>40</sup> persecuted and you do his (i.e. the Father’s) 5 will, I [say] that he will <sup>1</sup> love you, and make you equal <sup>1</sup> with me, and reckon <sup>1</sup> [you] to have become <sup>5</sup> beloved through his providence <sup>1</sup> by your own choice. So <sup>1</sup> will you not cease <sup>1</sup> loving the flesh and being <sup>1</sup> afraid of sufferings? Or do <sup>10</sup> you not know that you have yet <sup>1</sup> to be abused and to be <sup>1</sup> accused unjustly; <sup>1</sup> and have yet to be shut <sup>1</sup> up in prison, and <sup>15</sup> condemned <sup>1</sup> unlawfully, and <sup>1</sup> crucified <without> <sup>1</sup> reason, and buried <sup>1</sup> <shamefully>, as (was) I myself, <sup>20</sup> by the evil one? <sup>1</sup> Do you dare to spare the flesh, <sup>1</sup> you for whom the Spirit is an <sup>1</sup> encircling wall? If you consider <sup>1</sup> how long the world existed <sup>25</sup> <before> you, and how long <sup>1</sup> it will exist after you, you will find <sup>1</sup> that your life is one single day <sup>1</sup> and your sufferings one <sup>1</sup> single hour. For the good <sup>30</sup> will not enter into the world. <sup>1</sup> Scorn death, therefore, <sup>1</sup> and take thought for life! <sup>1</sup> Remember my cross <sup>1</sup> and my death, and you will <sup>35</sup> live!”

The Lord answered <sup>1</sup> and said, “Verily I say <sup>1</sup> unto you, none will be saved <sup>1</sup> unless they believe in my cross. <sup>5</sup> But those who have believed in my <sup>1</sup> cross, theirs is the kingdom of <sup>1</sup> God. Therefore, become seekers <sup>1</sup> for death, like the dead <sup>1</sup> who seek for life; <sup>10</sup> for that which they seek is revealed to them. <sup>1</sup> And what is there <sup>1</sup> to trouble them? As for you, when you examine <sup>1</sup> death, it will <sup>1</sup> teach you election. Verily <sup>15</sup> I say unto you, none <sup>1</sup> of those who fear death will be saved; <sup>1</sup> for the kingdom <of God> <sup>1</sup> belongs to those who put themselves to death. <sup>1</sup> Become better than I; make <sup>20</sup> yourselves like the son of the Holy Spirit!” <sup>1</sup>

The Lord <sup>35</sup> said to me, “When you (pl.) <sup>1</sup> come to know what ‘head’ means, and <sup>1</sup> that prophecy issues from the <sup>1</sup> head, (then) understand the meaning of ‘Its head was 7 removed.’ At first I spoke <sup>1</sup> to you (pl.) in parables <sup>1</sup> and you did not understand; <sup>1</sup> now I speak to <sup>5</sup> you openly, and <sup>1</sup> you (still) do not perceive. Yet <sup>1</sup> it was you who served me <sup>1</sup> as a

your dwelling place <sup>25</sup> of your own accord, <sup>1</sup> making it ready for those who want <sup>1</sup> to dwell in it? O you <sup>1</sup> outcasts and fugitives, woe <sup>1</sup> to you, for you will be caught! Or <sup>30</sup> do you perhaps think that the Father <sup>1</sup> is a lover of mankind, or that he is <sup>1</sup> won over without prayers, or that he <sup>1</sup> grants remission to one on another's behalf, or <sup>1</sup> that he bears with one who asks? – <sup>35</sup> For he knows the desire and <sup>1</sup> also what it is that the flesh needs! – <sup>1</sup> (Or do you think) that it is not this (flesh) that desires <sup>1</sup> the soul? For without the soul <sup>1</sup> the body does not sin, just as 12 the soul is not saved without <sup>1</sup> [the] spirit. But if the soul <sup>1</sup> is saved (when it is) without evil, and <sup>1</sup> the spirit is also saved, then the body <sup>5</sup> becomes free from sin. For it is the spirit <sup>1</sup> that raises the soul, but the body that <sup>1</sup> kills it; <sup>1</sup> that is, it is it (the soul) which kills <sup>1</sup> itself. Verily I say unto you, <sup>10</sup> he will not forgive the soul the sin <sup>1</sup> by any means, nor the flesh <sup>1</sup> the guilt; for none of those who have <sup>1</sup> worn the flesh will be saved. <sup>1</sup> For do you think that many have <sup>15</sup> found the kingdom of heaven? <sup>1</sup> Blessed is he who has seen himself as <sup>1</sup> a fourth one in heaven!" <sup>1</sup>

When we heard these words, we were distressed. <sup>1</sup> But when he saw that we were distressed, <sup>20</sup> he said, "For this cause I tell <sup>1</sup> you this, that you may <sup>1</sup> know yourselves. For the kingdom <sup>1</sup> of heaven is like an ear of grain after it <sup>1</sup> had sprouted in a field. And <sup>25</sup> when it had ripened, it scattered its <sup>1</sup> fruit and again filled the field <sup>1</sup> with ears for another year. You <sup>1</sup> also, hasten to reap <sup>1</sup> an ear of life for yourselves that <sup>30</sup> you may be filled with the kingdom! <sup>1</sup>

"And as long as I am <sup>1</sup> with you, give heed to me <sup>1</sup> and obey me; but <sup>1</sup> when I depart from you, <sup>35</sup> remember me. And remember me <sup>1</sup> because when I was with you, <sup>1</sup> you did not know me. <sup>1</sup> Blessed will they be who have <sup>1</sup> known me; woe to those who have <sup>40</sup> heard and have not believed! <sup>1</sup> Blessed will they be who 13 have not seen, [yet have believed]! <sup>1</sup>

"Do not make <sup>1</sup> the kingdom of heaven a desert <sup>1</sup> within you. Do not be proud <sup>20</sup> because of the light that illumines, but <sup>1</sup> be to yourselves <sup>1</sup>

But Peter replied <sup>1</sup> to these words and said, <sup>1</sup> “Sometimes you urge <sup>1</sup> us on to the kingdom of <sup>30</sup> heaven, and then again you turn <sup>1</sup> us back, Lord; sometimes <sup>1</sup> you persuade and draw <sup>1</sup> us to faith and promise <sup>1</sup> us life, and then again you cast <sup>35</sup> us forth from the kingdom <sup>1</sup> of heaven.”

THE GOSPEL OF TRUTH (I,3 AND XII,2)

HAROLD W. ATTRIDGE and GEORGE W. MACRAE

The Gospel of Truth is a Christian Gnostic text with clear affinities to the Valentinian school, offering a subtle yet moving reflection on the person and work of Jesus. The tractate has no explicit title in the manuscript and is known by its incipit. Many other works in antiquity, such as the “gospel” of Mark and the “revelation” of John, were similarly identified by their opening words. A Valentinian work entitled the “Gospel of Truth” is attested in the Adversus Haereses (3.11.9) of Irenaeus. Unfortunately the heresiologist reveals little about the content of the work, except that it differed significantly from the canonical gospels. Given the general Valentinian affinities of the text of Codex I, it is quite possible that it is identical with the work known to Irenaeus. If so, a date of composition in the middle of the second century (between 140 and 180 C.E.) would be established. On the basis of literary and conceptual affinities between this text and the exiguous fragments of Valentinus, some scholars have suggested that the Gnostic teacher himself was the author. That remains a distinct possibility, although it cannot be definitively established. Whatever its precise date and authorship, the work was certainly composed in Greek in an elaborate rhetorical style, by a consummate literary artist.

Despite its title, this work is not a gospel of the sort found in the New Testament, since it does not offer a continuous narration of the deeds, teachings, passion, and resurrection of Jesus. The term “gospel” in the incipit preserves its early sense of “good news.” It defines the text’s subject, not its genre, which is best understood as a homily. Like other early Christian homilies, such as the Epistle to the Hebrews, The Gospel of Truth alternates doctrinal exposition with parænesis (e.g., 32,31-33,32) and, like that canonical work, it reflects on the significance of the salvific work of Jesus from a special theological perspective.

Identification of the work as a homily says little about its literary or theological dynamics. Analysis of both surface structure and underlying conceptual scheme is made difficult by the elusive character of the discourse, which combines allusions to familiar elements of early Christian tradition, sometimes in unusual associations, with references to less familiar notions. Similarly elusive is the frame of reference of the text, which seems to slip quite easily from cosmic to historical, then to personal or psychological perspectives. These qualities of the work may indicate something of its intended function. Traditions familiar from the New Testament are given a new meaning by being set in a conceptual environment, the structure of which remains artfully obscured. Nonetheless, certain key themes and perspectives characteristic of Valentinian theology, such as the principle that knowledge of the Father destroys ignorance (18,10-11; 24,30-32), are emphasized. The work was thus probably designed to introduce Valentinian soteriological insights to members of the great church.

The work is divided into three large blocks of exposition separated by two formally distinct units, a festive "Litany on the Word" (23,18-24,9) and a par-aenetic appeal (32,31-33,32). Each of the three blocks of exposition also contains three thematically distinct sections. After an introduction (16,31-17,4), the first block begins with a description of the generation of Error (17,4-18,11), which comes forth from the Father, but for which the Father is not responsible, and by which he is not diminished. A mythological account, like that of the fall of Sophia, found in many gnostic texts (c.f., e.g., The Hypostasis of the Archons or On the Origin of the World), no doubt underlies this description of Error. The text then (18,11-19,27) turns to Jesus and his work as revealer and teacher. To illustrate the last notion, the text appeals to traditions like that of Jesus in the temple in Luke 2, although the allusion may be to noncanonical accounts of the youth of Jesus. The final segment of the first block (19,27-24,9) mentions, without any docetic qualifications, the death of Jesus (20,25), then interprets that event, with images drawn from Colossians and the Apocalypse, as an act of revelation. That act reveals the essence of the Father and the origin and destiny of the human self in Him. Through that insight the powers of Error are overcome.

The second major block of exposition (24,9-33,32) describes the effects of the revelation of the "gospel of truth." It produces unity with the Father (24,9-27,7). It makes possible authentic human existence, imaged in traditional gnostic terms as a state of wakefulness (27,7-30,16), a condition of joy and delight graphically contrasted with the nightmarish existence of those in ignorance. Finally the revelation opens the way to ultimate return to the Father (30,16-32,30).

The final block of exposition focuses on the process of reintegration to the primordial source. The return begins (33,33-36,39) as gentle attraction, imaged as an alluring perfume. That attractive fragrance is in fact the spirit of incorruptibility which produces forgiveness. The agent of the return (36,39-40,23) is the Son, who is the name of the Father. The identification of Son and Name involves the most subtle of the reflections of the text (38,6-40,23), combining ancient Jewish-Christian exaltation patterns with philosophical semantics. The final portion of the text (40,23-41,14) describes in festive terms the ultimate goal of the process of return, rest in the Father. Those who recognize that their destiny is in the source from which they have come are the children whom the Father loves.

The Gospel of Truth's combination of literary and conceptual sophistication with genuine religious feeling suggests much better than the rather dry accounts of gnostic systems in the heresiologists why the teaching of Valentinus and his school had such an appeal for many Christians of the second century.

THE GOSPEL OF TRUTH

After all these, <sup>1</sup> there came the little <sup>1</sup> children also, those to whom <sup>30</sup> the knowledge of the Father belongs. Having been strengthened, <sup>1</sup> they learned about the impressions <sup>1</sup> of the Father. They knew, <sup>1</sup> they were known; they were glorified, they <sup>1</sup> glorified. There was manifested in their <sup>35</sup> heart the living book <sup>1</sup> of the living – the one written <sup>1</sup> in the thought and the mind 20 [of the] Father, which from before the <sup>1</sup> foundation of the totality was within <sup>1</sup> his incomprehensibility – that (book) <sup>1</sup> which no one was able to take, <sup>5</sup> since it remains for the one who will take it <sup>1</sup> to be slain. No one could have become manifest <sup>1</sup> from among those who have believed <sup>1</sup> in salvation unless <sup>1</sup> that book had appeared. <sup>10</sup> For this reason the merciful one, the faithful one, <sup>1</sup> Jesus, was patient in accepting sufferings <sup>1</sup> until he took that book, <sup>1</sup> since he knows that his death <sup>1</sup> is life for many. <sup>15</sup>

thing which is <sup>1</sup> from him, from whom <sup>1</sup> every space comes forth. <sup>1</sup> For this reason Jesus appeared; <sup>1</sup> he put on that book; <sup>25</sup> he was nailed to a tree; <sup>1</sup> he published the edict <sup>1</sup> of the Father on the cross. O <sup>1</sup> such great teaching! He draws <sup>1</sup> himself down to death though life <sup>30</sup> eternal clothes him. Having stripped <sup>1</sup> himself of the perishable rags, <sup>1</sup> he put on imperishability, <sup>1</sup> which no one <sup>1</sup> can possibly take away from him. Having entered <sup>35</sup> the empty spaces of <sup>1</sup> terrors, he passed through <sup>1</sup> those who were stripped naked by <sup>1</sup> oblivion, being knowledge <sup>1</sup> and perfection, proclaiming the things that are in the heart, 21 [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> teach those who will receive teaching. <sup>1</sup>

count <sup>25</sup> of the depth that they received error, the depth of the one who encircles <sup>1</sup> all spaces while there is none <sup>1</sup> that encircles him. It was a great <sup>1</sup> wonder that they were in the Father, <sup>1</sup> not knowing him, and (that) they were <sup>30</sup> able to come forth by themselves, <sup>1</sup> since they were unable to <sup>1</sup> comprehend or to know the one <sup>1</sup> in whom they were. For if <sup>1</sup> his will had not thus emerged from him – <sup>35</sup> for he revealed it <sup>1</sup> in view of a knowledge in which <sup>1</sup> all its emanations concur. <sup>1</sup>

lie scattered. In time Unity will perfect<sup>10</sup> the spaces. It is within Unity that each one will attain himself; within knowledge he will purify himself from multiplicity into<sup>15</sup> Unity, consuming matter within himself like fire, and darkness by light, death by life.

If indeed these things have happened<sup>20</sup> to each one of us, then we must see to it above all that the house will be holy and silent for the Unity.<sup>25</sup> (It is) as in the case of some people who moved out of dwellings having jars that in spots were not good.<sup>30</sup> They would break them, and the master of the house would not suffer loss. Rather (he) is glad because in place of the bad jars (there are) full ones which are made<sup>35</sup> perfect. For such is the judgment which has come from 26 above. It has passed judgment on everyone; it is a drawn sword, with two edges, cutting on either side. When the<sup>5</sup> Word appeared, the one that is within the heart of those who utter it – it is not a sound alone but it became a body – a great disturbance took place among<sup>10</sup> the jars because some had been emptied, others filled; that is, some had been supplied, others poured out, some had been purified, still<sup>15</sup> others broken up. All the spaces were shaken and disturbed because they had no order nor stability. Error was upset, not knowing<sup>20</sup> what to do; it was grieved, in mourning, afflicting itself because it knew nothing. When knowledge drew near it – this<sup>25</sup> is the downfall of (error) and all its emanations – error is empty, having nothing inside.

Truth appeared; all its emanations knew it.<sup>30</sup> They greeted the Father in truth with a perfect power that joins them with the Father. For, as for everyone who loves the truth – because the truth is the mouth<sup>35</sup> of the Father; his tongue is the Holy Spirit – he who is joined 27 to the truth is joined to the Father's mouth by his tongue, whenever he is to receive the Holy Spirit,<sup>5</sup> since this is the manifestation of the Father and his revelation to his aeons.

He manifested what was hidden of him; he explained it. For who contains,<sup>10</sup> if not the Father alone? All the spaces are his emanations. They have known that they came forth from him like children who are from a grown<sup>15</sup> man. They knew that they had not yet received form nor yet received a name, each one of which the Father begets.<sup>20</sup> Then, when they receive form by his knowledge, though truly within him, they do not know him. But the Father is perfect, knowing<sup>25</sup> every space within him. If he wishes, he manifests whomever he wishes by giving him form and giving him a name, and he gives a name<sup>30</sup> to him and brings it about that those come into existence who, before they come into existence, are ignorant of him who fashioned them.

I do not say, then, that <sup>35</sup> they are nothing (at all) who have not yet come into existence, but they are 28 in him who will wish that they come into existence when he wishes, like the time that is to come. <sup>5</sup> Before all things appear, he knows what he will produce. But the fruit which is not yet manifest does not know anything, nor <sup>10</sup> does it do anything. Thus, also, every space which is itself in the Father is from the one who exists, who established it <sup>15</sup> from what does not exist. For he who has no root has no fruit either, but though he thinks to himself, <sup>20</sup> "I have come into being," yet he will perish by himself. For this reason, he who did not exist at all will never come into existence. What, then, did he <sup>25</sup> wish him to think of himself? This: "I have come into being like the shadows and phantoms of the night." When the light shines on the terror <sup>30</sup> which that person had experienced, he knows that it is nothing.

Thus they were ignorant of the Father, he being the one 29 whom they did not see. Since it was terror and disturbance and instability and doubt and <sup>5</sup> division, there were many illusions at work by means of these, and (there were) empty fictions, as if they were sunk in sleep <sup>10</sup> and found themselves in disturbing dreams. Either (there is) a place to which they are fleeing, or without strength they come (from) having chased after others, or they are involved in <sup>15</sup> striking blows, or they are receiving blows themselves, or they have fallen from high places, or they take off into the air though they do not even have wings. <sup>20</sup> Again, sometimes (it is as) if people were murdering them, though there is no one even pursuing them, or they themselves are killing their neighbors, for they have been stained with <sup>25</sup> their blood. When those who are going through all these things wake up, they see nothing, they who were in the midst <sup>30</sup> of all these disturbances, for they are nothing. Such is the way of those who have cast ignorance aside <sup>35</sup> from them like sleep, not esteeming it as anything, nor do they esteem its 30 works as solid things either, but they leave them behind like a dream in the night. The <sup>5</sup> knowledge of the Father they value as the dawn. This is the way each one has acted, as though asleep at the time when he was ignorant. <sup>10</sup> And this is the way he has (come to knowledge), as if he had awakened. {and} Good for the man who will return and awaken. And <sup>15</sup> blessed is he who has opened the eyes of the blind.

And the Spirit ran after him, hastening from waking him up.

When he had appeared <sup>1</sup> instructing them about the Father, <sup>1</sup> the incomprehensible one, when he had breathed into them <sup>35</sup> what is in the thought, doing <sup>1</sup> his will, when many had <sup>1</sup> received the light, they turned 31 to him. For the material ones were strangers <sup>1</sup> and did not see his likeness <sup>1</sup> and had not known <sup>1</sup> him. For he came <sup>5</sup> by means of fleshly <sup>1</sup> form, while nothing blocked <sup>1</sup> his course because <sup>1</sup> incorruptibility is irresistible, <sup>1</sup> since he, again, spoke <sup>10</sup> new things, still speaking about <sup>1</sup> what is in the heart of the Father, having <sup>1</sup> brought forth the flawless word. <sup>1</sup>

For the Father is sweet and in <sup>1</sup> his will is what is good. <sup>35</sup> He has taken cognizance of <sup>1</sup> the things that are yours that you might find rest <sup>1</sup> in them. For by the <sup>1</sup> fruits does one take cognizance of <sup>1</sup> the things that are yours because the children of the Father 34 are his fragrance, for <sup>1</sup> they are from the grace of his <sup>1</sup> countenance. For this reason the Father loves <sup>1</sup> his fragrance and manifests it <sup>5</sup> in every place, and if it mixes <sup>1</sup> with matter he gives his fragrance <sup>1</sup> to the light and in his repose <sup>1</sup> he causes it to surpass every form <sup>1</sup> (and) every sound. For it is not the ears that <sup>10</sup> smell the fragrance, but <sup>1</sup> (it is) the breath that has <sup>1</sup> the sense of smell and attracts the fragrance <sup>1</sup> to itself and is submerged <sup>1</sup> in the fragrance of the Father, so that he <sup>15</sup> thus shelters it and takes it to the place <sup>1</sup> where it came from, <sup>1</sup> from the first fragrance which <sup>1</sup> is grown cold. It is something in a <sup>1</sup> psychic form, being <sup>20</sup> like cold water <sup>1</sup> which has frozen (?), which is on earth <sup>1</sup> that is not solid, of which those <sup>1</sup> who see it think it <sup>1</sup> is earth; afterwards it dissolves <sup>25</sup> again. If a breath <sup>1</sup> draws it, it gets hot. The fragrances, <sup>1</sup> therefore, that are cold are from the division. <sup>1</sup> For this reason faith came; <sup>1</sup> it dissolved the division, <sup>30</sup> and it brought the warm pleroma <sup>1</sup> of love in order that <sup>1</sup> the cold should not come again <sup>1</sup> but there should be the unity of <sup>1</sup> perfect thought. <sup>35</sup>

While their <sup>1</sup> hope, for which they <sup>1</sup> are waiting, is in waiting – they whose image <sup>5</sup> is light with no shadow <sup>1</sup> in it – then, at that time, <sup>1</sup> the pleroma <sup>1</sup> is proceeding to come. The <deficiency> <sup>1</sup> of matter came to be not through <sup>10</sup> the limitlessness of <sup>1</sup> the Father, who is coming to give time for <sup>1</sup> the deficiency, although no one <sup>1</sup> could say that the incorruptable one would <sup>1</sup> come in this way. But <sup>15</sup> the depth of the Father was multiplied <sup>1</sup> and the thought of <sup>1</sup> error did not exist <sup>1</sup> with him. It is a thing that falls, <sup>1</sup> it is a thing that easily stands upright (again) <sup>20</sup> in the discovery of him <sup>1</sup> who has come to him whom he shall bring back. <sup>1</sup> For the bringing back <sup>1</sup> is called repentance. <sup>1</sup>

In this way, then, the name is a great thing. <sup>25</sup> Who, therefore, will be able to utter a name for him, <sup>1</sup> the great name, except him <sup>1</sup> alone to whom <sup>1</sup> the name belongs and the sons of the name <sup>1</sup> in whom rested <sup>30</sup> the name of the Father, <sup>1</sup> (who) in turn themselves rested <sup>1</sup> in his name? Since the <sup>1</sup> Father is ungenerated, he alone is the one <sup>1</sup> who begot him for him(self) as a name, <sup>35</sup> before he brought forth the <sup>1</sup> aeons, in order that the name <sup>1</sup> of the Father should be over their head as <sup>1</sup> lord, that is the 39 name in truth, which is firm in his <sup>1</sup> command through perfect power. <sup>1</sup> For the name is not from <sup>1</sup> (mere) words, nor <sup>5</sup> does his name consist of appellations, <sup>1</sup> but it is invisible. <sup>1</sup> He gave a name to him alone, <sup>1</sup> since he alone sees him, he <sup>1</sup> alone having <sup>10</sup> the power to give him a name. <sup>1</sup> For he who does not exist <sup>1</sup> has no name. <sup>1</sup> For what name is given to him <sup>1</sup> who does not exist? <sup>15</sup> But the one who exists <sup>1</sup> exists also with his name, and <sup>1</sup> he alone knows it, <sup>1</sup> and alone (knows how) to give him a name. <sup>1</sup> It is the Father. The Son <sup>20</sup> is his name. He

This is the manner of <sup>1</sup> those who possess (something) <sup>1</sup> from above of the <sup>1</sup> immensurable greatness, as they <sup>15</sup> wait for the one alone <sup>1</sup> and the perfect one, the one who is <sup>1</sup> there for them. And they do not go down <sup>1</sup> to Hades nor have they <sup>1</sup> envy nor <sup>20</sup> groaning nor death <sup>1</sup> within them, but they <sup>1</sup> rest in him who is at rest, <sup>1</sup> not striving nor <sup>1</sup> being twisted around <sup>25</sup> the truth. But they <sup>1</sup> themselves are the truth; and <sup>1</sup> the Father is within them and <sup>1</sup> they are in the Father, being perfect, <sup>1</sup> being undivided in <sup>30</sup> the truly good one, being <sup>1</sup> in no way deficient in anything, but <sup>1</sup> they are set at rest, refreshed in the <sup>1</sup> Spirit. And they will heed their <sup>1</sup> root. They will be concerned with those (things) <sup>35</sup> in which he will find his root <sup>1</sup> and not suffer loss to his <sup>1</sup> soul. This is the place of the <sup>1</sup> blessed; this is their place. <sup>1</sup>

For the rest, then, may they <sup>40</sup> know, in their places, that <sup>1</sup> it is not fitting for me, 43 having come to be in the resting-place, <sup>1</sup> to speak of anything else. But <sup>1</sup> it is in it that I shall come to be, and (it is fitting) to <sup>1</sup> be concerned at all times with the Father of <sup>5</sup> the all and the true brothers, <sup>1</sup> those upon whom the love of <sup>1</sup> the Father is poured out and <sup>1</sup> in whose midst there is no lack of him. <sup>1</sup> They are the ones who appear <sup>10</sup> in truth, since they exist in <sup>1</sup> true and eternal life and <sup>1</sup> speak of the light which <sup>1</sup> is perfect and filled with <sup>1</sup> the seed of the Father, and <sup>15</sup> which is in his heart and in the <sup>1</sup> pleroma, while his <sup>1</sup> Spirit rejoices in it and glorifies <sup>1</sup> the one in whom it existed <sup>1</sup> because he is good. And <sup>20</sup> his children are perfect and <sup>1</sup> worthy of his name, <sup>1</sup> for he is the Father: it is children <sup>1</sup> of this kind that he <sup>1</sup> loves.

THE TREATISE ON THE RESURRECTION (I,4)

MALCOLM L. PEEL

The importance of this short, eight-page, didactic letter lies in its witness to a distinctively unorthodox interpretation of Christian teaching about survival after death. By the late second century, the probable time of its composition, Christians – whether Gnostic or orthodox – were struggling with certain challenges and questions. Was such survival philosophically demonstrable (as Socrates had argued in the Phaedo)? What form might it take? (Immortality of the soul? Resurrection of the body? Reincarnation?) When would such survival be experienced? (At death? At Christ's final return? Perhaps even before death?) The New Testament teaching was somewhat ambiguous on several of these points, though within the great church there seemed general agreement on at least two matters: the prototype and basis of hope for such survival was the resurrection of Jesus Christ, and the resurrection of individuals would entail their retention of personal identity.

The anonymous author of The Treatise on the Resurrection, however, claimed a Christ-given knowledge (49,41-50,2) that enabled him to offer direct and unambiguous answers to such questions, questions which in this case had been put to him by his pupil, Rheginos (43,25). First, the resurrection is a matter of faith in the reality of Jesus Christ's resurrection and his destruction of death (46,14-19). Such cannot be the result of philosophical "persuasion," and most philosophers of the world are in fact sceptics.

Second, the form of survival will be the "resurrection," which is not understood as the re-creation of a spiritual body at Christ's Parousia (cf. 1 Co 15 passim). Rather, at the point of biological death, the "elect" believer experiences the separation of the inward, "living members," whose intellectual nature is clarified by reference to the "mind" and its "thought," from the external "body" of "perishable," "visible," outward "members" (47,38-48,2; 45,39-46,2; 45,19-21). Even so, this "resurrection body," covered with a new "flesh" (47,4-8) or "garment of light" ("rays" in 45,30-31), retains personally identifiable features, as the appearance of Elijah and Moses at Christ's transfiguration (Mk 9:2-8) makes clear. Such is the "spiritual resurrection" which "swallows up" (i.e., renders nonsensical or destroys) the "resurrection" of either the naked "soul" or of the crudely literal "flesh" (45,39-46,2). Implied is a dualistic doctrine of outer/inner that goes beyond Pauline anthropology.

Third, unlike the early church, which in its resurrection hope held to an "eschatological reservation" (i.e., the notion that the full benefit of individual Christians' participation in the resurrection would wait the final return of Christ), the author of The Treatise on the Resurrection held that for the elect believer who had proleptically participated in Christ's suffering (death), resurrection, and ascension (45,24-28), the new reality should be clear: one already has the resurrection in the present. In sum, our author, like the Hymenaeus and Philetus condemned in 2 Timothy 2:18, teaches that the resurrection has already occurred! He reinforces it by means of a kind of existential proof: the believer who knows of death's inevitability should consider himself as dead already and thus as already participating in the resurrected state (49,16-30). Thus, the believer is to have "faith" in the reality of Christ's victory over death and its guarantee (45,14-46, 4,14-17; 46,8-13), to avoid all "doubt" (47,36-48,3), to "know" the "Son of Man" and the truth proclaimed about his resurrection (46,13-17, 30-32), to "practise" one's release from the inimical power of this cosmos (49,30-33) through correct thought, and to realize the mystical unity between the experience of the Savior and that of the believer (45,15-46,2).

Major studies of the text have clarified that the author is a Christian Gnostic teacher who is clearly influenced by Valentinian Gnosticism. The evidence for this is found in the close parallels between the treatise's teaching that the spiritual resurrection has already occurred and the reports of Valentinian "realized eschatology" in Tertullian (De praes. haer. 33.7; De res. mort. 19,2-7) and Irenaeus (Haer. 2.31.2). Also, certain conceptual complexes unique to Valentinianism appear in Treat. Res., such as the idea of a primordial pleroma which suffered a devolution and resulting "deficiency" (46,35-47,1; 49,4-5) which the Savior must "restore" (44,30-33).

Only to be expected, then, is the presence of Middle Platonic ideas which, as prior scholarship has shown, influenced Valentinianism. Such ideas include a distinction between a world of being (including the Good itself) and the sphere of becoming and corruption (48,20-27), as well as between an "intelligible world" and a "sensible" world (46,35-47,1). Also Platonic are notions of the pre-existence of souls (46,38-47,1; cf. 47,4-6; 49,30-36) and of "practising" for dying (49,28-33).

Rather un-Platonic, however, is the absence of any mention of an ultimate quest for ecstatic vision/union with the ultimate One, as well as our treatise's stress on retention of identifiable personal characteristics in the post mortem resurrected state.

Because of the centrality of Jesus Christ in the text, however, and because the author appeals to the New Testament as highest authority for his proofs (cf. 43,34; 45,4, 24-28; 48,6-11), we conclude that the author is a Christian Gnostic whose thought displays the influence of Middle Platonism as filtered through a late and somewhat vaguely articulated Valentinian Gnosticism.

Critical opinion now generally holds that Treat. Res. is not written by Valentinus himself. Studies of the stage of the New Testament canon of which the anonymous author seems aware, of the place of Treat. Res. teaching in the context of debates over the resurrection in the early church, and of the type of Middle Platonic ideas found in it all converge in pointing toward the late second century as the probable time of composition. As to its provenance, neither internal nor external evidence provides any clues.

Debate continues over whether the writing is a genuine didactic letter lacking a praescriptio naming its author (such as are the Epistula Apostolorum or the Letter of Ptolemy to Flora) and incorporating elements of the diatribe style, or whether it is principally a philosophical discourse decisively shaped by the Cynic-Stoic diatribe. As yet, the last named is lacking a convincing demonstration.

Most scholars do seem to reject the suggestions, however, that the text is the result of combining two originally separate letters or that it is the result of a gnostic redaction of an originally Christian text.

THE TREATISE ON THE RESURRECTION

Some there are, my son Rheginos, <sup>1</sup> who want to learn many things. <sup>1</sup> They have this goal <sup>1</sup> when they are occupied with questions <sup>1</sup> whose answer is lacking. <sup>30</sup> If they succeed with these, they usually <sup>1</sup> think very highly of <sup>1</sup> themselves. But I do not think <sup>1</sup> that they have stood within <sup>1</sup> the Word of Truth. They seek <sup>35</sup> rather their own rest, which <sup>1</sup> we have received through our <sup>1</sup> Savior, our Lord Christ. 44 We received it (i.e., Rest) when we came to know <sup>1</sup> the truth and rested <sup>1</sup> ourselves upon it. But <sup>1</sup> since you ask us <sup>5</sup> pleasantly what is proper <sup>1</sup> concerning the resurrection, I am writing <sup>1</sup> you (to say) that it is necessary. <sup>1</sup> To be sure, many are <sup>1</sup> lacking faith in it, but there are a few <sup>10</sup> who find it. <sup>1</sup> So then, let us discuss <sup>1</sup> the matter. <sup>1</sup>

How did the Lord proclaim <sup>1</sup> things while he existed <sup>15</sup> in flesh and after <sup>1</sup> he had revealed himself as Son <sup>1</sup> of God? He lived <sup>1</sup> in this place where you <sup>1</sup> remain, speaking <sup>20</sup> about the Law of Nature – but I call <sup>1</sup> it “Death!” Now the Son <sup>1</sup> of God, Rheginos, <sup>1</sup> was Son of Man. <sup>1</sup> He embraced them <sup>25</sup> both, possessing the <sup>1</sup> humanity and the divinity, <sup>1</sup> so that on the one hand he might vanquish <sup>1</sup> death through his <sup>1</sup> being Son of God, <sup>30</sup> and that on the other through the Son of <sup>1</sup> Man the restoration <sup>1</sup> to the Pleroma <sup>1</sup> might occur; because <sup>1</sup> he was originally from above, <sup>35</sup> a seed of the Truth, before <sup>1</sup> this structure (of the cosmos) had come into being. <sup>1</sup> In this (structure) many dominions and <sup>1</sup> divinities came into existence. <sup>1</sup>

the way of our immortality. Then, <sup>1</sup> indeed, as the Apostle <sup>25</sup> said, “We suffered <sup>1</sup> with him, and we arose <sup>1</sup> with him, and we went to heaven <sup>1</sup> with him.” Now if we are <sup>1</sup> manifest in <sup>30</sup> this world wearing <sup>1</sup> him, we are that one’s beams, <sup>1</sup> and we are <sup>1</sup> embraced by <sup>1</sup> him until our setting, that is <sup>35</sup> to say, our death in this life. <sup>1</sup> We are drawn to heaven <sup>1</sup> by him, like beams <sup>1</sup> by the sun, not being restrained <sup>1</sup> by anything. This is <sup>40</sup> the spiritual resurrection <sup>1</sup> 46 which swallows up the psychic <sup>1</sup> in the same way as the fleshly. <sup>1</sup>

The thought of those <sup>1</sup> who are saved shall not perish. <sup>1</sup> The mind of those who have known him shall not perish. <sup>25</sup> Therefore, we are elected to <sup>1</sup> salvation and redemption since <sup>1</sup> we are predestined from the beginning <sup>1</sup> not to fall into the <sup>1</sup> foolishness of those who are without knowledge, <sup>30</sup> but we shall enter into the <sup>1</sup> wisdom of those who have known the <sup>1</sup> Truth. Indeed, the Truth which is kept <sup>1</sup> cannot be abandoned, <sup>1</sup> nor has it been. <sup>35</sup> “Strong is the system of the <sup>1</sup> Pleroma; small is that which <sup>1</sup> broke loose (and) became <sup>1</sup> (the) world. But the All is <sup>1</sup> what is encompassed. It has not 47 come into being; it was existing.” So, <sup>1</sup> never doubt concerning <sup>1</sup> the resurrection, my son Reginos! <sup>1</sup> For if you were not existing <sup>5</sup> in flesh, you received flesh when you <sup>1</sup> entered this world. Why <sup>1</sup> will you not receive flesh when you <sup>1</sup> ascend into the Aeon? <sup>1</sup> That which is better than the flesh is that which is <sup>10</sup> for it (the) cause of life. <sup>1</sup> That which came into being on your account, is it not <sup>1</sup> yours? Does not that which is yours <sup>1</sup> exist with you? <sup>1</sup> Yet, while you are in this world, what is it that you <sup>15</sup> lack? This is what <sup>1</sup> you have been making every effort to learn. <sup>1</sup>

strengthening you (pl.). <sup>5</sup> But if there is one thing written <sup>1</sup> which is obscure in my exposition of <sup>1</sup> the Word, I shall interpret it for you (pl.) <sup>1</sup> when you (pl.) ask. But now, <sup>1</sup> do not be jealous of anyone who is in your number <sup>10</sup> when he is able to help. <sup>1</sup>

Many are looking into <sup>1</sup> this which I have written <sup>1</sup> to you. To these I say: <sup>1</sup> peace (be) among them and grace. <sup>15</sup> I greet you and those who love <sup>1</sup> you (pl.) in brotherly love. <sup>1</sup>

THE TRIPARTITE TRACTATE (I,5)

Introduced by

HAROLD W. ATTRIDGE and ELAINE H. PAGELS

Translated by

HAROLD W. ATTRIDGE and DIETER MUELLER

The final tractate of Codex I is an elaborate, but untitled, Valentinian theological treatise which gives an account of the whole process of devolution from and reintegration into the primordial godhead. The text is divided by scribal decoration into three segments which contain the major acts of the cosmic drama; hence its modern title.

The date of composition can only be determined within broad limits. Since the doctrine of the text represents a revised form of Valentinian theology which may be a response to the criticism of orthodox theologians such as Irenaeus or Hippolytus, the work was probably written in the early to mid third century. The text displays some affinities with Origen's doctrines, although these may be due to common theological and philosophical sources.

The tractate offers no information about the identity of its author. Some scholars have speculated that the Valentinian teacher Heracleon could have written the work. While there are affinities with Heracleon and the Western or Italian school of Valentinianism, the work departs from classical Valentinian doctrine more radically than any known representative of the tradition.

Like the other tractates of Codex I and most of the works in the Nag Hammadi collection, The Tripartite Tractate was originally composed in Greek. The Coptic translation presents numerous difficulties and obscurities, many of which probably reflect the style of the original.

The theological purview of the tractate is comprehensive. The first part (51,1-104,3) describes the emanation of all supernatural entities from their primal source. It begins with the Father (51,1-57,8), described primarily through a via negativa as an utterly transcendent entity. What can be affirmed is that he is unique and monadic. The insistence on the unitary character of the Father distinguishes the text from most other Valentinians who posit a primal masculine-feminine dyad, although some members of the school, such as those mentioned by Hippolytus (Ref. 6.29.2-8), also hold to a monadic first principle.

Emanating from the Father are two other entities, the Son and the Church (57,8-59,38). At this point the tractate again differs from other Valentinian sources, which regularly posit a more complex godhead. The pleroma or "fullness of deity" usually consists of an ogdoad, a set eight syzygies, or pairs of divine entities, a similarly composed decad, and duodecad. Instead, The Tripartite Tractate posits an initial trinity.

Some elements of the complex traditional Valentinian picture are retained in the description of the components or "aeons" of the third element of the trinity, the Church (50,1-74,18). The dependence on, as well as revision of, Valentinian sources is clear in the stage of the text which describes the problems created by one of the aeons (74,18-80,11). In other Valentinian accounts, which are based on earlier, non-Christian speculation, the problem in the godhead arises because of a female aeon, Sophia (Wisdom), who attempts to do the impossible. According to different versions of the story, she either tries to produce offspring without her consort or tries to know the unknowable primal source. In either case, she falls outside the divine pleroma and produces the world of psychic and material forces. In The Tripartite Tractate the agent of the rupture in the pleroma is a masculine aeon, the Logos (Word). His fall, which includes elements of both traditional explanations of Sophia's catastrophe, is presented in remarkably positive terms, as a result of his own "abundant love" (76,19-20). It is also, remarkably enough, in accordance with the Father's will (76,24-77,1). Most importantly, it proceeds from the Logos' free choice (75,35-76,1), a quality which all entities dependent on him share.

The fall of the Logos produces two orders of beings which are outside the pleroma (80,11-85,15). From his confused and defective procreative activity emerge hylic forces. When the Logos, on his own initiative, repents, he produces psychic forces. These supernatural forces will play a role in creation of the first human and in cosmic governance.

The most important result of the conversion of the Logos is the generation of the Savior (85,15-90,13). This transpires when the Logos splits in two. His better, masculine self returns to the pleroma to intercede for his defective, feminine self. That better self, along with the aeons who have never left the pleroma, produce the Savior. That being is also called, by analogy with the highest level of reality, the Son, because as the Son reveals the Father to the aeons of the pleroma, the Savior will provide revelatory insight to those outside the pleroma.

The brief second part of the tractate (104,4-108,12) offers an interpretation of Genesis 1-3. The first human being is produced on the one hand by the Demiurge and on the other hand by the Logos. The former provides Adam's psychic and material components and the latter his spiritual component. The three potencies of the first human being will later be actualized in three classes of human beings at the coming of the Savior.

The third part of the tractate (108,13-138,27) focuses on soteriological issues. The Savior's appearance divides humankind into three classes (118,14-122,12). The pneumatic or spiritual recognize the Savior immediately and respond to him, while the hylic or material reject him utterly. Between these two extremes the psychic or soulful types hesitate, and only gradually come to join the Savior. As is usual in Valentinian texts, the three types have clear social referents. The pneumatics are the Valentinians themselves, the hylics are non-Christians and the psychics are ordinary Christians. The attention lavished on the detailed description of the psychics is indicative of the apologetic and irenic tendencies of the work.

In its final section (129,34-138,27) the text returns to the issue of the psychic and the process of their salvation. It then proceeds to sketch an eschatological tableau, the last portions of which are quite fragmentary. It concludes with a hymn to "the Savior, the Redeemer of all those who belong to the one filled with love, through his Holy Spirit, from now on through all generations forever" (138,20-25).

The Tripartite Tractate has revised traditional Valentinianism on several key points: in its insistence on the unity of the first principle; in the substitution of a trinity for a more complex godhead; in its portrait of the Logos as the element of the godhead responsible for the rupture in the divine; in its moderate assessment of the psychic demiurge; in its detailed analysis of the tripartition of humanity as a result of the freely chosen response of each individual to the appearance of the Savior; and in the hope of final redemption held out to ordinary Christians. This bold revision of Valentinian speculation serves as the basis for a comprehensive theological statement designed to appeal not simply to an isolated sect, but to the church as a whole.

THE TRIPARTITE TRACTATE

I 51, 1-138, 27

Part I

1. Introduction

As for what we can say about the things which are exalted, <sup>1</sup> what is fitting is that we <sup>1</sup> begin with the Father, who is the root of <sup>1</sup> the Totality, the one from whom we have received <sup>5</sup> grace to <sup>1</sup> speak about him.

2. The Father

He existed <sup>1</sup> before anything other than himself <sup>1</sup> came into being. The Father is a <sup>1</sup> single one, like a <sup>10</sup> number, for he is the first one and the one who <sup>1</sup> is only himself. Yet he is <sup>1</sup> not like a solitary individual. <sup>1</sup> Otherwise, how could he be a father? <sup>1</sup> For whenever there is a "father," <sup>15</sup> the name "son" follows. But the single <sup>1</sup> one, who alone is <sup>1</sup> the Father, is like a root <sup>1</sup> with tree, branches <sup>1</sup> and fruit. It is said <sup>20</sup> of him that he is <sup>1</sup> a father in the proper sense, since he is <sup>1</sup> inimitable <sup>1</sup> and immutable. Because of <sup>1</sup> this he is single in the proper sense <sup>25</sup> and is a god, because no <sup>1</sup> one is a god for him nor <sup>1</sup> is anyone a father to him. <sup>1</sup> For he is unbegotten and there is no other <sup>1</sup> who begot him, nor <sup>30</sup> another who created him. <sup>1</sup> For whoever is someone's father <sup>1</sup> or his creator, <sup>1</sup> he, too, has a father and <sup>1</sup> creator. It is certainly possible <sup>35</sup> for him to be father and creator <sup>1</sup> of the one who came into being <sup>1</sup> from him and the one whom he created, <sup>1</sup> for he is not a father in the proper sense, nor <sup>40</sup> a god, because he has 52 someone who begot [him and] who <sup>1</sup> created him. It is, then, <sup>1</sup> only the Father and God in the proper sense

Not only <sup>1</sup> is he without end – He is immortal for this reason, <sup>1</sup> that he is unbegotten – <sup>10</sup> but he is also invariable in <sup>1</sup> his eternal existence, <sup>1</sup> in his identity, in that <sup>1</sup> by which he is established and in that <sup>1</sup> by which he is great. Neither <sup>15</sup> will he remove himself from that by which he <sup>1</sup> is, nor will anyone else <sup>1</sup> force him to produce <sup>1</sup> an end which he has not ever desired. <sup>1</sup> He has not had <sup>20</sup> anyone who initiated his own existence. <sup>1</sup> Thus, he is himself unchanged <sup>1</sup> and no one else <sup>1</sup> can remove him from his <sup>1</sup> existence and <sup>25</sup> his identity, that in which he is, <sup>1</sup> and his greatness, so that <sup>1</sup> he cannot be grasped; nor is it possible <sup>1</sup> for anyone else to change him into a different <sup>1</sup> form or to reduce him, or alter him <sup>30</sup> or diminish him, – since this is so <sup>1</sup> in the fullest sense of the truth – <sup>1</sup> who is the unalterable, immutable one, <sup>1</sup> with immutability clothing him. <sup>1</sup>

In the proper sense <sup>1</sup> he alone, the good, <sup>1</sup> the unbegotten Father and the <sup>1</sup> complete perfect one, is the one filled <sup>1</sup> with all his offspring <sup>10</sup> and with every virtue and with <sup>1</sup> everything of value. And he has <sup>1</sup> more, that is, lack of any <sup>1</sup> malice, in order that it may be discovered <sup>1</sup> that whoever has [anything] is indebted to him, <sup>15</sup> because he gives it, being <sup>1</sup> himself unreachable and unwearied <sup>1</sup> by that which he gives, since he is wealthy <sup>1</sup> in the gifts which he bestows <sup>1</sup> and at rest <sup>20</sup> in the favors which he grants. <sup>1</sup>

Not one of <sup>1</sup> the names which are conceived, <sup>1</sup> or spoken, seen or <sup>5</sup> grasped, <sup>1</sup> not one of them applies to him, <sup>1</sup> even though they are exceedingly glorious, magnifying <sup>1</sup> and honored. However, <sup>1</sup> it is possible to utter these names for his glory <sup>10</sup> and honor, in accordance with the capacity <sup>1</sup> of each of those who give him glory. <sup>1</sup> Yet as for him, in his own <sup>1</sup> existence, being <sup>1</sup> and form, <sup>15</sup> it is impossible for mind to conceive <sup>1</sup> him, nor can any speech <sup>1</sup> convey him, nor can any eye <sup>1</sup> see him, nor can any body <sup>1</sup> grasp him, because of <sup>20</sup> his inscrutable greatness <sup>1</sup> and his incomprehensible depth, <sup>1</sup> and his immeasurable height, <sup>1</sup> and his illimitable will. <sup>1</sup> This is the nature of the <sup>25</sup> unbegotten one, which does not touch <sup>1</sup> anything else; nor is it joined (to anything) <sup>1</sup> in the manner of something which is limited. <sup>1</sup> Rather, he possesses this constitution, <sup>1</sup> without having a <sup>30</sup> face or a form, things which <sup>1</sup> are understood through <sup>1</sup> perception, whence also comes (the epithet) “the incomprehensible.” <sup>1</sup> If he is incomprehensible, <sup>1</sup> then it follows that <sup>35</sup> he is unknowable, that he is the one who is inconceivable <sup>1</sup> by any thought, <sup>1</sup> invisible by any thing, <sup>1</sup> ineffable by any word, <sup>1</sup> untouchable by any hand. <sup>40</sup> He alone <sup>1</sup> is the one who knows himself as he 55 is, along with his form <sup>1</sup> and his greatness and his magnitude, <sup>1</sup> and since he has the ability to <sup>1</sup> conceive of himself, to see himself, to name <sup>5</sup> himself, to comprehend himself, he <sup>1</sup> alone is the one who is his own mind, <sup>1</sup> his own eye, <sup>1</sup> his own mouth, his own <sup>1</sup> form, and he is what he thinks, <sup>10</sup> what he sees, <sup>1</sup> what he speaks, <sup>1</sup> what he grasps, himself, <sup>1</sup> the one who is inconceivable, <sup>1</sup> ineffable, incomprehensible, immutable, <sup>15</sup> while sustaining, joyous, <sup>1</sup> true, delightful, <sup>1</sup> and restful is that which he conceives, <sup>1</sup> that which he sees, that about which he speaks, <sup>1</sup> that which he has as thought. <sup>20</sup> He transcends <sup>1</sup> all wisdom, and is <sup>1</sup> above all intellect, and is <sup>1</sup> above all glory, and is <sup>1</sup> above all beauty, and <sup>25</sup> all sweetness, and all greatness, <sup>1</sup> and any depth and any height. <sup>1</sup>

his greatness, and the <sup>1</sup> unsearchability of his <sup>1</sup> wisdom, and the immeasurability <sup>1</sup> of his power and his <sup>15</sup> untasteable sweetness. <sup>1</sup> He is the one who projects himself <sup>1</sup> thus, as generation, having <sup>1</sup> glory and honor <sup>1</sup> marvelous and lovely; the one who <sup>20</sup> glorifies himself, <sup>1</sup> who marvels, <who> <sup>1</sup> honors, who also loves; <sup>1</sup> the one who has <sup>1</sup> a Son, who subsists <sup>25</sup> in him, who is silent concerning him, who is <sup>1</sup> the ineffable one <sup>1</sup> in the ineffable one, the <sup>1</sup> invisible one, the incomprehensible one, <sup>1</sup> the inconceivable one in <sup>30</sup> the inconceivable one. Thus, <sup>1</sup> he exists in him forever. <sup>1</sup> The Father, in the way we mentioned earlier, <sup>1</sup> in an unbegotten way, is the one in whom <sup>1</sup> he knows himself, <sup>35</sup> who begot him having <sup>1</sup> a thought, <sup>1</sup> which is the thought <sup>1</sup> of him, that is, the 57 perception of him, which is the [...] <sup>1</sup> of his constitution <sup>1</sup> forever. That is, <sup>1</sup> however, in the proper sense, <sup>5</sup> [the] silence and the wisdom <sup>1</sup> and the grace, if it is designated <sup>1</sup> properly <sup>1</sup> in this way.

3. The Son and the Church

Just as [the] <sup>1</sup> Father exists in the proper sense, <sup>10</sup> the one before whom [there was no one] <sup>1</sup> else and [the one] <sup>1</sup> apart from [whom] there is no other unbegotten one, so <sup>1</sup> too the [Son] <sup>1</sup> exists in the proper sense, <sup>15</sup> the one before whom there was no other, <sup>1</sup> and after whom <sup>1</sup> no other son exists. <sup>1</sup> Therefore, he is a firstborn <sup>1</sup> and an only Son, <sup>20</sup> “firstborn” because no one <sup>1</sup> exists before him and “only Son” <sup>1</sup> because no one is after <sup>1</sup> him. Furthermore, he has <sup>1</sup> his fruit, <sup>25</sup> that which is unknowable because <sup>1</sup> of its surpassing greatness. Yet <sup>1</sup> he wanted it to be known, <sup>1</sup> because of the riches of his <sup>1</sup> sweetness. <sup>30</sup> And he revealed the unexplainable power and <sup>1</sup> he combined with it <sup>1</sup> the great abundance of his generosity. <sup>1</sup>

The infant, while in the<sup>1</sup> form of a fetus<sup>1</sup> has enough for itself,<sup>1</sup> before ever seeing the one who<sup>1</sup> sowed it. Therefore, they had<sup>25</sup> the sole task<sup>1</sup> of searching for him, realizing<sup>1</sup> that he exists, ever wishing to find out<sup>1</sup> what exists. Since, however,<sup>1</sup> the perfect Father is good,<sup>30</sup> just as he did not hear<sup>1</sup> them at all so that they would exist (only)<sup>1</sup> in his thought, but rather granted that<sup>1</sup> they, too, might come into being, so<sup>1</sup> also will he give them grace<sup>35</sup> to know what exists,<sup>1</sup> that is, the one who knows<sup>1</sup> himself eternally,<sup>62</sup> [...] form to [know] what<sup>1</sup> exists, just as people are begotten in this<sup>1</sup> place: when they are born, they are in<sup>5</sup> the light, so that they see those who have begotten them.<sup>1</sup>

what came forth from 63 him [...] partaking of the [...] the Totality, in accordance with [...] by which each one can receive [him] for himself,<sup>5</sup> though such was not his greatness before he was received by it. Rather, he exists by himself. As for the parts in which he exists in his own manner and form and greatness,<sup>10</sup> it is possible for <them> to see him and speak about that which they know of him, since they wear him while he wears them, [because] it is possible for them to comprehend him.<sup>15</sup> He, however, is as he is, incomparable. In order that the Father might receive honor from each one and reveal himself,<sup>20</sup> even in his ineffability, hidden, and invisible, they marvel at him mentally. Therefore, the greatness of his loftiness consists in the fact that they<sup>25</sup> speak about him and see him. He becomes manifest, so that he may be hymned because of the abundance of his sweetness, with the grace of <...>. And just as<sup>30</sup> the admirations of the silences are eternal generations and they are mental offspring, so too the dispositions<sup>35</sup> of the word are spiritual emanations. Both of them [admirations and dispositions], since they belong to a word, 64 are [seeds] and thoughts [of] his offspring, and roots which live forever, appearing<sup>5</sup> to be offspring which have come forth from themselves, being minds and spiritual offspring to the glory of the Father.

There is no need for voice and spirit, mind and<sup>10</sup> word, because there is no need to [work at] that which they desire [to do], but on the pattern by which [he was] existing, so are those who have come forth from him,<sup>15</sup> begetting everything which they desire. And the one whom they conceive of, and whom they speak about, and the one toward whom they move, and the one in whom they are, and<sup>20</sup> the one whom they hymn, thereby glorifying him, he has sons. For this is their procreative power, like those from whom they have come,<sup>25</sup> according to their mutual assistance, since they assist one another like the unbegotten ones.

The Father, in accordance with his exalted position over the Totalities, being<sup>30</sup> an unknown and incomprehensible one, has such greatness and magnitude, that, if he had revealed himself suddenly, quickly,<sup>35</sup> to all the exalted ones among the aeons who had come forth from him, they would have perished. Therefore, he withheld his power and his inexhaustibility within that in which he 65 is. [He is] ineffable [and] unnameable and exalted above every mind and every word. This one, however, stretched<sup>5</sup> himself out and it was that which he stretched out which gave a foundation and a space and a dwelling place for <sup>1</sup> the universe, a name of his being “the <sup>10</sup> one through whom,” since he is <sup>1</sup> Father of the All, out of his <sup>1</sup> laboring for those who exist, <sup>1</sup> having sown into their thought that [they] <sup>1</sup> might seek after him. The abundance of their [ . . . ] <sup>15</sup> consists in the fact that they understand that he <sup>1</sup> exists and in the fact that they ask what it is <sup>1</sup> [that] was existing. This one was <sup>1</sup> given to them for enjoyment and <sup>1</sup> nourishment and joy and an abundance <sup>20</sup> of illumination, which <sup>1</sup> consists in his fellow laboring, <sup>1</sup> his knowledge and his mingling <sup>1</sup> with them, that is, the one <sup>1</sup> who is called and is, in fact, <sup>25</sup> the Son, since he is the Totalities <sup>1</sup> and the one of whom they know both who he is <sup>1</sup> and that it is he who clothes. <sup>1</sup> This is the one who is called <sup>1</sup> “Son” and the one of whom they understand <sup>30</sup> that he exists and they were seeking <sup>1</sup> after him. This is the one who exists <sup>1</sup> as Father and (as) the one about whom they cannot speak, <sup>1</sup> and the one of whom they do not conceive. <sup>1</sup> This is the one who first came into being. <sup>35</sup>

 the body of the bodiless, the face <sup>15</sup> of the invisible, the word of [the] <sup>1</sup> unutterable, the mind of the inconceivable, <sup>1</sup>
 the fountain which flowed from <sup>1</sup> him, the root of those who are planted, <sup>1</sup> and the god of those who exist, the light <sup>20</sup> of those whom he illumines, the love of those <sup>1</sup> whom he loved, the providence of those for whom he <sup>1</sup> providentially cares, the wisdom <sup>1</sup> of those whom he made wise, the power <sup>1</sup> of those to whom he gives power, the assembly <sup>25</sup> [of] those whom he assembles to him, the revelation <sup>1</sup> of the things which are sought after,
 the eye <sup>1</sup> of those who see, the breadth of those who breathe, <sup>1</sup>

 the unity <sup>1</sup> of those who are mixed with the Totalities. <sup>30</sup>

All of them exist in the single one, <sup>1</sup> as he clothes himself completely <sup>1</sup> and by his single name <sup>1</sup> he is never called. <sup>1</sup> And in <sup>35</sup> this unique way they are equally <sup>1</sup> the single one and the Totalities. <sup>1</sup> He is neither divided as a body, <sup>1</sup> nor is he separated into the names <sup>1</sup> which he has [received], <sup>40</sup> (so that) he is one thing in this way and another <sup>67</sup> in [another way.] Also, neither <sup>1</sup> does he change in [...], nor <sup>1</sup> does he turn into [the names] which he <sup>1</sup> [thinks of,] and become now this, now <sup>5</sup> something else, this thing now being one thing <sup>1</sup> and, at another time, something else, <sup>1</sup> but rather he is wholly himself to the uttermost. [He] <sup>1</sup> is each and every one of the Totalities <sup>1</sup> forever at the same time. He is what <sup>10</sup> all of them are. He brought <sup>1</sup> the Father to the Totalities. He also is the Totalities, <sup>1</sup> for he is the one who is knowledge <sup>1</sup> for himself and he is <sup>1</sup> each one of the properties. He <sup>15</sup> has the powers and [he is] beyond <sup>1</sup> all that which he knows, <sup>1</sup> while seeing himself in himself <sup>1</sup> completely and having a <sup>1</sup> Son and form. Therefore, <sup>20</sup> his powers and properties are innumerable <sup>1</sup> and inaudible, <sup>1</sup> because of the begetting [by] which he <sup>1</sup> begets them. Innumerable <sup>1</sup> and indivisible are <sup>25</sup> the begettings of his words, and <sup>1</sup> his commands and his Totalities. <sup>1</sup> He knows them, which things he himself is, <sup>1</sup> since they are in <sup>1</sup> the single name, and <sup>30</sup> are all speaking in it. And <sup>1</sup> he brings (them) forth, in order that <sup>1</sup> it might be discovered that they <sup>1</sup> exist according to their individual properties in a unified way. <sup>1</sup> And he did not reveal the multitude <sup>35</sup> to the Totalities at once <sup>1</sup> nor did he reveal his equality <sup>1</sup> to those who had come forth from him. <sup>1</sup>

All those who came forth from him, <sup>1</sup> <who> are the aeons of the aeons, <sup>68</sup> being emanations and offspring of <sup>1</sup> <his> procreative nature, <sup>1</sup> they too, in their procreative <sup>1</sup> nature, have <given> glory to <sup>5</sup> the Father, as he was <sup>1</sup> the cause of their establishment. This is what <sup>1</sup> we said previously, namely that he creates <sup>1</sup> the aeons as roots and <sup>10</sup> springs and fathers, and that he <sup>1</sup> is the one to whom they give glory. They have begotten, for <sup>1</sup> he has knowledge <sup>1</sup> and wisdom <sup>1</sup> and the Totalities knew <sup>15</sup> that it is from knowledge <sup>1</sup> and wisdom that they have come forth. <sup>1</sup> They would have brought forth <sup>1</sup> a seeming honor: "The Father is the one <sup>1</sup> who is the Totalities," <sup>20</sup> if the aeons had risen up to give <sup>1</sup> honor individually. <sup>1</sup> Therefore, in the <sup>1</sup> song of glorification and <sup>1</sup> in the power of the unity <sup>25</sup> of him from <sup>1</sup> whom they have come, they were drawn into a mingling <sup>1</sup> and a combination and a unity <sup>1</sup> with one another. <sup>1</sup> They offered glory worthy of <sup>30</sup> the Father from the pleromatic <sup>1</sup> congregation, which is a <sup>1</sup> single representation although many, <sup>1</sup> because it was brought forth as a glory <sup>1</sup> for the single one and because <sup>35</sup> they came forth toward the one who <sup>1</sup> is himself the Totalities. Now, this 69 was a praise [...] <sup>1</sup> the one who brought forth the Totalities, <sup>1</sup> being a first-fruit of the immortals <sup>1</sup> and an eternal one, because, <sup>5</sup> having come forth from the living aeons, being <sup>1</sup> perfect and full because of the one who is perfect <sup>1</sup> and full, it left full <sup>1</sup> and perfect those who have given glory in <sup>1</sup> a perfect way because of the <sup>10</sup> fellowship. For, like the faultless Father, <sup>1</sup> when he is glorified he <sup>1</sup> also hears the glory which glorifies him, <sup>1</sup> so as to make them manifest as that which <sup>1</sup> he is.

Just as <sup>1</sup> the present aeon, though a <sup>30</sup> unity, is divided by units of time <sup>1</sup> and units of time are divided into <sup>1</sup> years and years are divided into <sup>1</sup> seasons and seasons into months, <sup>1</sup> and months into days, and days <sup>35</sup> into hours, and hours <sup>1</sup> into moments, so 74 too the aeon of the Truth, <sup>1</sup> since it is a unity <sup>1</sup> and multiplicity, receives honor in the small <sup>1</sup> and the great names according to the <sup>5</sup> power of each to grasp it – by way <sup>1</sup> of analogy – like a spring <sup>1</sup> which is what it is, <sup>1</sup> yet flows into streams <sup>1</sup> and lakes and canals <sup>10</sup> and branches, or like a <sup>1</sup> root spread out beneath <sup>1</sup> trees and branches with <sup>1</sup> its fruit, or like a <sup>1</sup> human body, which is partitioned <sup>15</sup> in an indivisible way into members <sup>1</sup> of members, primary members <sup>1</sup> and secondary, great [and] <sup>1</sup> small.

The aeons have brought [themselves] forth <sup>1</sup> in accord with the third <sup>20</sup> fruit by the <sup>1</sup> freedom of the will <sup>1</sup> and by the wisdom <sup>1</sup> with which he favored them for their thought. <sup>1</sup> They do not wish to give honor <sup>25</sup> [with] that which is from an agreement, [though] <sup>1</sup> it was produced for words of [praise] <sup>1</sup> for each of the Pleromas. <sup>1</sup> Nor do they wish <sup>1</sup> to give honor with the Totality. Nor do <sup>30</sup> they wish (to do so) with anyone else who was originally above the depth of that one, or (above) his place, except, however, for the one who exists in an exalted name and <sup>35</sup> in the exalted place, and only if he receives from the one who wished (to give honor), 75 and takes it to him(self) for the one above him, and (only if) he begets him(self), so to speak, himself, and, through that one, begets him(self) <sup>5</sup> along with that which he is, and himself becomes renewed along with the one who came upon him, by his brother, and sees him and entreats him about the matter, namely, he who wished to ascend to him. <sup>10</sup>

So that it might be in this way, the one who wished to give honor does not say anything to him about this, except only that there is a limit to speech set in the Pleroma, so <sup>15</sup> that they are silent about the incomprehensibility of the Father, but they speak about the one who wishes to comprehend him. It came to one of the aeons that he should attempt to grasp the incomprehensibility <sup>20</sup> and give glory to it and especially to the ineffability of the Father. [Since] he is a Logos of the unity, he is one, though he is not from the agreement of the Totalities, nor <sup>25</sup> from him who brought them forth, namely, the one who brought forth the Totality, the Father. <sup>1</sup>

This aeon was among those to whom was given wisdom, so that he could become pre-existent in each one's <sup>30</sup> thought. By that which he wills will they be produced. Therefore, he received a wise nature in order to examine the hidden basis, since he is a wise fruit; <sup>35</sup> for, the free will which was begotten with the Totalities was a cause for this one, such as to make him do 76 what he desired, with no one to restrain him.

The intent, then, of the Logos, who is this one, was good. <sup>5</sup> When he had come forth, he gave glory to the Father, even if it led to something beyond possibility, since he had wanted to bring forth one who is perfect, from an <sup>10</sup> agreement in which he had not been, and without having the command. <sup>1</sup>

This aeon was last to have <been> brought forth by <sup>15</sup> mutual assistance, and he was small in magnitude. And before he begot anything else for the glory of the will and in agreement with the Totalities, he acted, magnanimously, <sup>20</sup> from an abundant love, and set out toward that which surrounds the perfect glory, for it was not without the will of the Father <sup>25</sup> that the Logos was produced, which is to say, not without it will he go forth. But he, the Father, had brought him forth for those about whom he knew that it was <sup>30</sup> fitting that they should come into being.

Like the Pleromas are the things which came into being from the <sup>30</sup> arrogant thought, <sup>1</sup> which are their (the Pleromas') <sup>1</sup> likenesses, <sup>1</sup> copies, shadows, <sup>1</sup> and phantasms, lacking <sup>35</sup> reason and the light, these <sup>1</sup> which belong to the vain thought, <sup>1</sup> since they are not products of anything. Therefore, 79 their end will be like <sup>1</sup> their beginning: from that which did <sup>1</sup> not exist (they are) to return once again to <sup>1</sup> that which will not be. It is they, however, <sup>5</sup> by themselves <sup>1</sup> who are greater, more powerful, <sup>1</sup> and more honored than the names <sup>1</sup> which are given to them, which are [their] shadows. <sup>1</sup> In the manner of a reflection are they beautiful. <sup>10</sup> For the [face] of the copy normally takes its beauty <sup>1</sup> from that of which it is a copy. <sup>1</sup>

The Logos was <sup>1</sup> a cause of those [who] <sup>1</sup> came into being and he continued all the more <sup>1</sup> to be at a loss and he was astonished. <sup>15</sup> Instead of perfection, he saw a defect; <sup>1</sup> instead of unification, he saw division; <sup>1</sup> instead of stability, he [saw] disturbances; instead of [rests,] <sup>1</sup> tumults. Neither was it [possible] <sup>20</sup> for him to make them cease from [loving] <sup>1</sup> disturbance, nor was it possible for him <sup>1</sup> to destroy it. He was completely powerless, <sup>1</sup> once his totality and his exaltation <sup>1</sup> abandoned him.

Until the one who brought <sup>1</sup> forth into the defect these things which were thus <sup>10</sup> in need, until he <sup>1</sup> judged those who came into being because <sup>1</sup> of him contrary to reason – which is the judgment <sup>1</sup> which became a condemnation – <sup>1</sup> he struggled against them unto destruction, <sup>15</sup> that is, the ones who struggled against the condemnation <sup>1</sup> and whom the wrath pursues, while <sup>1</sup> it (the wrath) accepts and <sup>1</sup> redeems (them) from their (false) opinion and <sup>1</sup> apostasy, since from it <sup>20</sup> [is] the conversion which is <sup>1</sup> also called “metanoia.” <sup>1</sup> The Logos turned to [another] opinion <sup>1</sup> and another thought. <sup>1</sup> Having turned away from evil, <sup>25</sup> he turned toward the good things. <sup>1</sup> Following the conversion came <sup>1</sup> the thought of the things which exist <sup>1</sup> and the prayer for the one who converted <sup>1</sup> himself to the good. <sup>30</sup>

It was not <sup>1</sup> from the sickness which came into being that they were produced, <sup>1</sup> from which is the good intent, <sup>1</sup> but (from) the one who <sup>15</sup> sought after the pre-existent. <sup>1</sup> Once he had prayed, he both raised <sup>1</sup> himself to the good <sup>1</sup> and sowed in them <sup>1</sup> a pre-disposition to seek <sup>20</sup> and pray to the <sup>1</sup> glorious pre-existent one, <sup>1</sup> and he sowed in them a thought <sup>1</sup> about him and an idea, so that they should <sup>1</sup> think that something greater than themselves <sup>25</sup> exists prior to them, although they did not understand <sup>1</sup> what it was. Begetting <sup>1</sup> harmony and mutual love <sup>1</sup> through that thought, <sup>1</sup> they acted in <sup>30</sup> unity and unanimity, <sup>1</sup> since from <sup>1</sup> unity and from unanimity <sup>1</sup> they have received their very being. <sup>1</sup>

The powers <sup>25</sup> of this thought are prepared <sup>1</sup> in the works of the pre-existent <sup>1</sup> <ones>, those of which they are <sup>1</sup> the representations. For the order <sup>1</sup> of those of this sort <sup>30</sup> had mutual <sup>1</sup> harmony, but it <sup>1</sup> fought against the order <sup>1</sup> of those of the likeness, while the order <sup>1</sup> of those of the likeness wages war <sup>35</sup> against the representations and acts <sup>1</sup> against it alone, because of its <sup>1</sup> wrath. 85 From this it [...] <sup>1</sup> them [...] <sup>1</sup> one another, many [...] <sup>1</sup> necessity appointed them [...] <sup>5</sup> and might prevail [...] <sup>1</sup> was not a multitude, [...] <sup>1</sup> and their envy and their [...] <sup>1</sup> and their wrath and violence and <sup>1</sup> desire and prevailing ignorance <sup>10</sup> produce empty matters and <sup>1</sup> powers of various sorts, mixed in <sup>1</sup> great

8. The Emanation of the Savior

The Logos <sup>1</sup> which moved had <sup>1</sup> the hope and the expectation of him <sup>1</sup> who is exalted. As for those of the shadow, he separated <sup>1</sup> himself from them in every way, <sup>20</sup> since they fight against him and are not at all humble <sup>1</sup> before him. He was content <sup>1</sup> with the beings of the thought. And as for the one who is set up <sup>1</sup> in this way and who is within the <sup>1</sup> exalted boundary, remembering <sup>25</sup> the one who is defective, the Logos brought him forth <sup>1</sup> in an invisible way, <sup>1</sup> among those who came into being according to the thought, according <sup>1</sup> to the one who was with them, <sup>1</sup> until the light shone upon him from <sup>30</sup> above as a lifegiver, the one who was begotten <sup>1</sup> by the thought of brotherly love <sup>1</sup> of the pre-existent Pleromas. <sup>1</sup>

The stumbling, which happened to the aeons <sup>1</sup> of the Father of the Totalities who did <sup>35</sup> not suffer, was brought to them, as if it were their own, <sup>1</sup> in a careful and non-malicious <sup>1</sup> and immensely sweet way. 86 [It was brought to the] Totalities so that they might be instructed about the <sup>1</sup> [defect] by the single one, <sup>1</sup> from whom [alone] they all [received strength] <sup>1</sup> to eliminate the defects.

The order <sup>5</sup> [which] was his came into being from <sup>1</sup> him who ran [on] high and that which brought itself forth <sup>1</sup> from him and from the entire perfection. <sup>1</sup> The one who ran on high became <sup>1</sup> for the one who was defective an intercessor with the <sup>10</sup> emanation of the aeons which had come into being in accord with <sup>1</sup> the things which exist. When he prayed <sup>1</sup> to them, they consented joyously and <sup>1</sup> willingly, since they were in agreement, and with harmonious <sup>1</sup> consent, to aid the <sup>15</sup> defective one. They gathered together, <sup>1</sup> asking the Father with beneficent intent <sup>1</sup> that there be aid from <sup>1</sup> above, from the Father, for his glory, <sup>1</sup> since the defective one could not become perfect in any other way, <sup>20</sup> unless it was the will of <sup>1</sup> the Pleroma of the Father, which he had drawn to himself, <sup>1</sup> revealed, and given to the defective <sup>1</sup> one. Then from the harmony, in a <sup>1</sup> joyous willingness which had come into being, they <sup>25</sup> brought forth the fruit, which was a begetting <sup>1</sup> from the harmony, a <sup>1</sup> unity, a possession of the Totalities, <sup>1</sup> revealing the countenance of <sup>1</sup> the Father, of whom the aeons thought <sup>30</sup> as they gave glory and prayed for help for their <sup>1</sup> brother with a wish in which the Father counted himself <sup>1</sup> with

The one <sup>1</sup> in whom the Father is and the one <sup>10</sup> in whom the Totalities are <was> created <sup>1</sup> before the one who lacked <sup>1</sup> sight. He instructed him about those who searched <sup>1</sup> for their sight, by <sup>1</sup> means of the shining of that perfect light. <sup>15</sup> He first perfected him <sup>1</sup> in ineffable joy. He <sup>1</sup> perfected him for himself as a perfect one <sup>1</sup> and he also gave him what is appropriate to each <sup>1</sup> individual. For this is the determination of <sup>20</sup> the first joy. And <he> sowed <sup>1</sup> in him in an invisible way <sup>1</sup> a word which is destined to be <sup>1</sup> knowledge. And he gave him power <sup>1</sup> to separate and cast out from himself <sup>25</sup> those who are disobedient to him.

Thus, he made himself manifest to him. But to those who came into being because of him he revealed a form surpassing<sup>30</sup> them. They acted in a hostile way toward one another. Suddenly he revealed himself to them, approaching them in the form of lightning. And in putting an end to the entanglement which they have with<sup>35</sup> one another he stopped it 89 by the sudden revelation, which they were not informed about, did not expect, and did not know of. Because of this, they<sup>5</sup> were afraid and fell down, since they were not able to bear the appearance of the light which struck them. The one who appeared was an assault for the two orders. Just as the beings of thought had been given the name<sup>10</sup> "little one," so they have a faint notion that they have the exalted one, — he exists before them, — and they have sown within them an attitude of amazement at the exalted one who<sup>15</sup> will become manifest. Therefore, they welcomed his revelation and they worshipped him. They became convinced witnesses to (him). They acknowledged the light which had come into being as<sup>20</sup> one stronger than those who fought against them. The beings of the likeness, however, were exceedingly afraid, since they were not able to hear about him in the beginning, that there is a vision of this sort. Therefore they fell down<sup>25</sup> to the pit of ignorance which is called "the Outer Darkness," and "Chaos" and "Hades" and "the Abyss." He set up what was beneath the order of the beings<sup>30</sup> of thought, as it was stronger than they. They were worthy of ruling over the unspeakable darkness, since it is theirs and is the lot which was assigned to them. He<sup>35</sup> granted them that they, too, should be of use for the organization which was to come, 90 to which he had [assigned] them.

There is a great difference between the revelation of the one who came into being to the one who was defective and to those things which are to come into being because of him. For he revealed himself to him within<sup>5</sup> him, since he is with him, is a fellow sufferer with him, gives him rest little by little, makes him grow, lifts him up, gives himself to him completely for enjoyment from<sup>10</sup> a vision. But to those who fall outside, he revealed himself quickly and in a striking way and he withdrew to himself suddenly without having let them see him.

9. The Pleroma of the Logos

When the Logos which was defective was illumined,<sup>15</sup> his Pleroma began. He escaped those who had disturbed him at first. He became unmixed with them. He stripped off that arrogant thought.<sup>20</sup> He received mingling with the Rest, <sup>1</sup> when those who had been disobedient to him at first <sup>1</sup> bent down and humbled themselves before him. <sup>1</sup> And [he] rejoiced <sup>1</sup> over the visitation of his brothers <sup>25</sup> who had visited him. He gave <sup>1</sup> glory and praise to those who had become manifest <sup>1</sup> as a help to him, while he gave thanks, <sup>1</sup> because he had escaped those who revolted against him, <sup>1</sup> and admired and honored the greatness <sup>30</sup> and those who had appeared to him in a <sup>1</sup> determined way. He generated manifest images <sup>1</sup> of the living visages, pleasing <sup>1</sup> among [things] which are good, existing <sup>1</sup> among the things which exist, resembling <sup>35</sup> them in beauty, but unequal to them <sup>1</sup> in truth, since they [are] not from <sup>1</sup> an agreement with him, between the one who brought them 91 forth and the one who revealed himself to him. But <sup>1</sup> in wisdom and knowledge <sup>1</sup> he acts, mingling the Logos with <sup>1</sup> him(self) entirely. Therefore, those which came <sup>5</sup> forth from him are great, just as <sup>1</sup> that which is truly great. <sup>1</sup>

The thought of the Logos, <sup>1</sup> who had returned to his stability <sup>1</sup> and ruled over those who had <sup>25</sup> come into being because of him, was called <sup>1</sup> "Aeon" and "Place" of <sup>1</sup> all those whom he had brought forth <sup>1</sup> in accord with the ordinance, and it is also called <sup>1</sup> "Synagogue of <sup>30</sup> Salvation," because he healed him(self) from <sup>1</sup> the dispersal, which is the multifarious thought <sup>1</sup> and returned to <sup>1</sup> the single thought. Similarly, <sup>1</sup> it is called "Storehouse," <sup>35</sup> because of the rest which he <sup>1</sup> obtained, giving (it) to himself alone. 93 And it is also called "Bride," <sup>1</sup> because of the joy of the one <sup>1</sup> who gave himself to him in the hope of fruit <sup>1</sup> from the union, and who appeared to him. <sup>5</sup> It is also called "Kingdom," <sup>1</sup> because of the stability which he received, while he <sup>1</sup> rejoices at the domination over those who fought him. <sup>1</sup> And it is called "the Joy <sup>1</sup> of the Lord," because of the gladness in [which he] <sup>10</sup> clothed himself. With him is the light, <sup>1</sup> giving him recompense for the <sup>1</sup> good things which are in him <sup>1</sup> and (with him is) the thought of freedom. <sup>1</sup>

That in which the Logos set <sup>1</sup> himself, perfect in joy, <sup>1</sup> was an aeon, having <sup>1</sup> the form of matter, but also having <sup>1</sup> the constitution of the cause, which <sup>25</sup> is the one who revealed himself. (The aeon was) an image <sup>1</sup> of those things which are in the Pleroma, <sup>1</sup> those things which came into being from the abundance <sup>1</sup> of the enjoyment of the one who exists <sup>1</sup> joyously. It, moreover, the <sup>30</sup> countenance of the one who revealed himself, was <sup>1</sup> in the sincerity and the attentiveness <sup>1</sup> and the promise concerning <sup>1</sup> the things for which he asked. It had <sup>1</sup> the designation of the Son <sup>35</sup> and his essence and his power and his <sup>1</sup> form, who is the one whom he loved <sup>1</sup> and in whom he was pleased, 94 who was entreated in a loving way. <sup>1</sup> It was light and was a desire <sup>1</sup> to be established and an openness <sup>1</sup> for instruction and an eye for vision, <sup>5</sup> qualities which it had <sup>1</sup> from the exalted ones. It was also wisdom <sup>1</sup> for his thinking in opposition to the things beneath the <sup>1</sup> organization. It was also a word for <sup>1</sup> speaking and the perfection of the things <sup>10</sup> of this sort. And it is these

That <sup>1</sup> which came into being in the image of the <sup>25</sup> light, it too is perfect, <sup>1</sup> inasmuch as it is an image of the <sup>1</sup> one existing light, which is the <sup>1</sup> Totalities. Even if it was inferior to the one of whom <sup>1</sup> it is an image, nevertheless it has <sup>30</sup> its indivisibility, because <sup>1</sup> it is a countenance of the <sup>1</sup> indivisible light. Those, however, <sup>1</sup> who came into being in the image <sup>1</sup> of each one of the aeons, <sup>35</sup> they in essence are in the one whom we <sup>1</sup> previously mentioned, but in power they are not equal, <sup>1</sup> because it (the power) is in each <sup>1</sup> of them. In <sup>1</sup> this mingling with one another <sup>40</sup> they have equality, 95 but each one has not cast off what is peculiar to itself. <sup>1</sup> Therefore, they are passions, <sup>1</sup> for passion is sickness, since <sup>1</sup> they are productions not of the agreement <sup>5</sup> of the Pleroma, but of this one, <sup>1</sup> prematurely, before he received the Father. Hence, <sup>1</sup> the agreement with his Totality and will <sup>1</sup> was something beneficial for the organization <sup>1</sup> which was to come. It was granted them <sup>10</sup> to pass through the places which are below, <sup>1</sup> since the places are unable <sup>1</sup> to accommodate their <sup>1</sup> sudden, hasty coming, unless (they come) individually, <sup>1</sup> one by one. <sup>15</sup> Their coming is necessary, since <sup>1</sup> by them will everything be perfected. <sup>1</sup>

It is fitting, from 96 the prayer which he made and the <sup>1</sup> conversion which occurred because of it, <sup>1</sup> that some should perish <sup>1</sup> while others benefit <sup>5</sup> and still others be <sup>1</sup> set apart. He first prepared <sup>1</sup> the punishment of those who are <sup>1</sup> disobedient, making use of a power <sup>1</sup> of the one who appeared, the one from whom he received <sup>10</sup> authority over all things, <sup>1</sup> so as to be separate from him. He is <sup>1</sup> the one who is below and he also keeps himself <sup>1</sup> apart from that which is exalted, until he <sup>1</sup> prepares the organization of all those things <sup>15</sup> which are external, and gives to each the place <sup>1</sup> which is assigned to it. <sup>1</sup>

The Logos established him(self) at <sup>1</sup> first, when he beautified the Totalities, as <sup>1</sup> a basic principle and cause <sup>20</sup> and ruler of the things which <sup>1</sup> came to be, like the Father, the one who <sup>1</sup> was the cause of the establishment, <sup>1</sup> which was the first to exist after him. <sup>1</sup> He created the pre-existent images, <sup>25</sup> which he brought forth <sup>1</sup> in thanks and glorification. Then <sup>1</sup> he beautified the place of those whom he had <sup>1</sup> brought forth in glory, which is called <sup>1</sup> "Paradise" and <sup>30</sup> "the Enjoyment" and "the Joy full <sup>1</sup> of sustenance" and "the Joy," which <sup>1</sup> pre-exist. And of <sup>1</sup> every goodness which exists in <sup>1</sup> the Pleroma, it preserves the image. <sup>35</sup> Then he beautified the kingdom, <sup>1</sup> like a city <sup>1</sup> filled with everything pleasing, <sup>1</sup> which is brotherly love and <sup>1</sup> the great generosity, which is filled 97 with the holy spirits and [the] <sup>1</sup> mighty powers which govern <sup>1</sup> them, which the Logos <sup>1</sup> produced and established <sup>5</sup> in power. Then (he beautified) the place of <sup>1</sup> the Church which assembles in this place, <sup>1</sup> having the form of the <sup>1</sup> Church which exists in the aeons, which glorifies <sup>1</sup> the Father. After these (he beautified) the place <sup>10</sup> of the faith and obedience (which arises) from <sup>1</sup> hope, which things the Logos received <sup>1</sup> when the light appeared; <sup>1</sup> then (he beautified the place of) the disposition, which is prayer [and] <sup>1</sup> supplication, which were followed by forgiveness <sup>15</sup> and the word concerning <sup>1</sup> the one who would appear.

The conversion is <sup>1</sup> humble toward the beings of the thought, and the law, <sup>1</sup> too, is humble toward them, <sup>35</sup> (the law) of the judgment, which is the condemnation and <sup>1</sup> the wrath. Also humble toward them <sup>1</sup> is the power which separates those who <sup>1</sup> fall below them, sends them <sup>1</sup> far off and does not allow them 98 [to] spread out over the beings of the thought and <sup>1</sup> the conversion, which (power) consists in fear and <sup>1</sup> perplexity and forgetfulness and astonishment and <sup>1</sup> ignorance and the things which have come into being <sup>5</sup> in the manner of a likeness, through phantasy. <sup>1</sup> And these things, too, which were in fact lowly, <sup>1</sup> are given the exalted names. <sup>1</sup> There is no knowledge for those who have come <sup>1</sup> forth from them with arrogance <sup>10</sup> and lust for power <sup>1</sup> and disobedience and falsehood. <sup>1</sup>

The things which he has spoken he does. <sup>1</sup> When he saw that they were great and <sup>1</sup> good and wonderful, he was <sup>1</sup> pleased and rejoiced, as 101 if he himself in his own thought <sup>1</sup> had been the one to say them and do <sup>1</sup> them, not knowing that the movement <sup>1</sup> within him is from the spirit who moves <sup>5</sup> him in a determined way toward those things which he wants. <sup>1</sup>

In regard to the things which came into being from him, he spoke of them <sup>1</sup> and they came into being as a representation of the spiritual <sup>1</sup> places which we mentioned previously <sup>1</sup> in the discussion about the images.

Not only <sup>10</sup> <did> he work, but also, as <sup>1</sup> the one who is appointed as father of [his] organization, <sup>1</sup> he engendered by himself and by the seeds, yet also [by <sup>1</sup> the spirit] which is elect and which will descend <sup>1</sup> through him to the places which are below. <sup>15</sup> Not only does he speak spiritual words <sup>1</sup> of his own, <but> in <sup>1</sup> an invisible way, <sup>1</sup> (he speaks) through the spirit which calls out <sup>1</sup> and begets things greater than his own essence. <sup>20</sup>

He <sup>1</sup> established in his place <sup>1</sup> images of the light <sup>1</sup> which appeared and of [those things which are] <sup>15</sup> spiritual, though they were of <sup>1</sup> his own essence. For, thus they were <sup>1</sup> honored in every place by him, <sup>1</sup> being pure, from the countenance <sup>1</sup> of the one who appointed them, and they were <sup>20</sup> established: paradises <sup>1</sup> and kingdoms and rests <sup>1</sup> and promises and multitudes <sup>1</sup> of servants of his will, <sup>1</sup> and though they are lords of dominions, <sup>25</sup> they are set beneath the one who is <sup>1</sup> lord, the one who appointed them. <sup>1</sup>

After he listened to him <sup>1</sup> in this way, properly, about the lights, <sup>1</sup> which are the source <sup>30</sup> and the system, he set them over <sup>1</sup> the beauty of the things below. <sup>1</sup> The invisible spirit moved him in this way, <sup>1</sup> so that he would 103 wish to administer through <sup>1</sup> his own servant, <sup>1</sup> whom he too used, <sup>1</sup> as a hand and <sup>5</sup> as a mouth and as if <sup>1</sup> he were his face, (and his servant is) the things which he brings, <sup>1</sup> order and threat and <sup>1</sup> fear, in order that those [with] whom he has done <sup>1</sup> what is ignorant <sup>10</sup> might despise the order which [was given for them to] <sup>1</sup> keep, since they are fettered in the [bonds of <sup>1</sup> the] archons which are on them [securely]. <sup>1</sup>

Part II

11. The Creation of Material Humanity

The matter which flows through its form<sup>5</sup> (is) a cause by which the<sup>1</sup> invisibility which exists through the powers<sup>1</sup> [. . .] for them all, for<sup>1</sup> [. . .], as they beget before them and<sup>1</sup> [destroy.]

The thought which is set<sup>10</sup> between those of the right [and] those of the left is a power of [begetting].<sup>1</sup> All those which the [first ones]<sup>1</sup> will wish to make, so to<sup>1</sup> speak, a projection of theirs,<sup>15</sup> like a shadow cast from<sup>1</sup> and following a body, those things which<sup>1</sup> [are] the roots of the visible creations,<sup>1</sup> namely, the entire preparation of the<sup>1</sup> adornment of the images and representations<sup>20</sup> and likenesses, have come<sup>1</sup> into being because of those who need<sup>1</sup> education and teaching and formation,<sup>1</sup> so that the smallness<sup>1</sup> might grow, little<sup>25</sup> by little, as through a mirror image.<sup>1</sup> For it was for this reason that he created<sup>1</sup> mankind at the end, having first<sup>1</sup> prepared and<sup>1</sup> provided for him the things which he had created<sup>30</sup> for his sake.<sup>1</sup>

The [...] which <sup>1</sup> the Logos [who was] <sup>1</sup> defective brought forth, who [was] <sup>1</sup> in the sickness, did not resemble him <sup>1</sup> because he brought it forth [forgetfully,] <sup>15</sup> ignorantly, and [defectively,] <sup>1</sup> and in all the other weak ways, <sup>1</sup> although the Logos gave the first form <sup>1</sup> through the Demiurge <sup>1</sup> out of ignorance, so that he <sup>20</sup> would learn that the exalted one exists <sup>1</sup> and would know that he needs [him]. <sup>1</sup> This is what the prophet called <sup>1</sup> "Living Spirit" and "Breath <sup>1</sup> of the exalted aeons" and "[the] <sup>25</sup> Invisible" and this is the living soul <sup>1</sup> which has given life to the power <sup>1</sup> which was dead at first. For that which <sup>1</sup> is dead is ignorance. <sup>1</sup>

This is the expulsion which was made <sup>20</sup> for him, when he was expelled from the enjoyments <sup>1</sup> of the things which belong to the likeness and those of the representation. <sup>1</sup> It was a work of providence, so that <sup>1</sup> it might be found that it is a short time <sup>1</sup> until man will receive the enjoyment <sup>25</sup> of the things which are eternally good, <sup>1</sup> in which is the place of rest. <sup>1</sup> This the spirit ordained when <sup>1</sup> he first planned <sup>1</sup> that man should experience the <sup>30</sup> great evil, which is death, <sup>1</sup> that is complete ignorance of the Totality, <sup>1</sup> and that he should experience <sup>1</sup> all the evils which <sup>1</sup> come from this and, <sup>35</sup> after the deprivations and cares which are in these, <sup>1</sup> that he should receive of the greatest 108 good, which is <sup>1</sup> life eternal, that is, <sup>1</sup> firm knowledge of the Totalities <sup>1</sup> and the reception of all good things. <sup>5</sup> Because of the transgression of the first man <sup>1</sup> death ruled. It was accustomed <sup>1</sup> to slay every man <sup>1</sup> in the manifestation of its <sup>1</sup> [domination] which had been given it <sup>10</sup> [as] a kingdom, because of the organization <sup>1</sup> of the Father's will, <sup>1</sup> of which we spoke previously. <sup>1</sup>

Part III

If both the orders, <sup>1</sup> those on the right and those on the left, <sup>15</sup> are brought together with one another by <sup>1</sup> the thought which is set between them, <sup>1</sup> which gives them their organization <sup>1</sup> with each other, it happens <sup>1</sup> that they both act with the same <sup>20</sup> emulation of their deeds, with <sup>1</sup> those of the right resembling those of the left <sup>1</sup> and those of the left resembling <sup>1</sup> those of the right. And if at times the evil order <sup>1</sup> begins to do <sup>25</sup> evil in a <sup>1</sup> foolish way, <sup>1</sup> the <wise> order emulates, <sup>1</sup> in the form of a man of violence, <sup>1</sup> also doing what is evil, <sup>30</sup> as if it were a power of a man <sup>1</sup> of violence. At other times <sup>1</sup> the foolish order <sup>1</sup> attempts to do good, <sup>1</sup> making itself like it, since the hidden order, <sup>35</sup> too, is zealous to do it. <sup>1</sup> Just as it is in <sup>1</sup> the things which are established, [so] (it is) in the 109 things which have come to be. Since they bring <sup>1</sup> things unlike one another, <sup>1</sup> those who were not instructed were <sup>1</sup> unable to know the cause of the things which exist. <sup>5</sup> Therefore, <sup>1</sup> they have introduced other types (of explanation), <sup>1</sup> some saying that <sup>1</sup> it is according to providence that the things which exist have their being. <sup>1</sup> These are the people who observe <sup>10</sup> the stability and the conformity of the movement of creation. <sup>1</sup> Others say <sup>1</sup> that it is something alien. <sup>1</sup> These are people who observe the <sup>1</sup> diversity and the lawlessness and the evil of the powers. <sup>15</sup> Others say <sup>1</sup> that the things which exist are what <sup>1</sup> is destined to happen. These are the people who were <sup>1</sup> occupied with this matter. Others say <sup>1</sup> that it is something in accordance with nature. <sup>20</sup> Others say that <sup>1</sup> it is a self-existent. The majority, however, <sup>1</sup> all who have reached as far as the visible elements, <sup>1</sup> do not know anything more <sup>1</sup> than them.

Now, as for the things which came <sup>1</sup> forth from the <race> of the <sup>1</sup> Hebrews, things which are written by <sup>25</sup> the hylics who speak in the fashion of the Greeks, <sup>1</sup> the powers of those who think about all <sup>1</sup> of them, so to speak, the "right ones," the powers <sup>1</sup> which move them all to think of <sup>1</sup> words and a representation, they <brought> them, and <sup>30</sup> they grasped so as to attain <sup>1</sup> the truth and used the confused powers <sup>1</sup> which act in them. <sup>1</sup> Afterwards they attained to the order <sup>1</sup> of the unmixed ones, the one which is established, the <sup>35</sup> unity which exists as a <sup>1</sup> representation of the representation of the Father. It is not invisible 111 in its nature, but <sup>1</sup> a wisdom envelops it, so that <sup>1</sup> it might preserve the form of the <sup>1</sup> truly invisible one. Therefore, <sup>5</sup> many angels have not been able to see it. <sup>1</sup> Also, other men of <sup>1</sup> the Hebrew race, of whom we <sup>1</sup> already spoke, namely the righteous ones <sup>1</sup> and the prophets, did not think of anything <sup>10</sup> and did not say anything <sup>1</sup> from imagination or through a <sup>1</sup> likeness or from esoteric thinking, <sup>1</sup> but each one <sup>1</sup> by the power which was at work in him, <sup>15</sup> and while listening to the things which he saw <sup>1</sup> and heard, spoke of them in [. . .]. <sup>1</sup> They have a unified harmony <sup>1</sup> with one another after the manner <sup>1</sup> of those who worked in them, <sup>20</sup> since they preserve the connection and the <sup>1</sup> mutual harmony primarily <sup>1</sup> by the confession of the one more exalted <sup>1</sup> than they. And there is one who is greater than they, <sup>1</sup> who was appointed since they have need <sup>25</sup> of him, and whom the spiritual Logos <sup>1</sup> begot along with them as one who needs <sup>1</sup> the exalted one, in hope and <sup>1</sup> expectation in accord with the thought which <sup>1</sup> is the seed of salvation. <sup>30</sup> And he is an illuminating word, which <sup>1</sup> consists of the thought and his offspring and <sup>1</sup> his emanations. Since the righteous ones and <sup>1</sup> the prophets, whom we have previously mentioned, <sup>1</sup> preserve the confession and the <sup>35</sup> testimony concerning <sup>1</sup> the one who is great, made by their fathers who were 112 looking for the hope and <sup>1</sup> the hearing, in them is sown <sup>1</sup> the seed of prayer and the searching, <sup>1</sup> which is sown in many <sup>5</sup> who have searched for strengthening. <sup>1</sup> It appears and draws them to <sup>1</sup> love the exalted one, to proclaim <sup>1</sup> these things as pertaining to a unity. <sup>1</sup> And it was a unity which <sup>10</sup> worked in them when they spoke. <sup>1</sup> Their vision and their words do not differ <sup>1</sup> because of the multitude <sup>1</sup> of those who have given them the vision and <sup>1</sup> the word. Therefore, those who have <sup>15</sup> listened to what they have said <sup>1</sup> concerning this do not reject any <sup>1</sup> of it, but have accepted the scriptures <sup>1</sup> in an altered way. By interpreting <sup>1</sup> them they established <sup>20</sup> many heresies which <sup>1</sup> exist to the present among the <sup>1</sup> Jews. Some <sup>1</sup> say that God is one, <sup>1</sup> who made a proclamation <sup>25</sup> in the ancient scriptures. Others <sup>1</sup> say that he is many. <sup>1</sup> Some say <sup>1</sup> that God is simple <sup>1</sup> and was a single mind <sup>30</sup> in nature. Others say <sup>1</sup> that his activity is linked with <sup>1</sup> the establishment of good <sup>1</sup> and evil. Still others <sup>1</sup> say that he is the <sup>35</sup> creator of that which has come into being. Still others <sup>1</sup> say that 113 it was by the angels that he created. <sup>1</sup>

coming.<sup>15</sup> Sometimes the prophets speak about it<sup>1</sup> as if it will be.<sup>1</sup> Sometimes (it is) as if the Savior speaks<sup>1</sup> from their mouths, saying that the Savior will come<sup>1</sup> and show favor to those who have not<sup>20</sup> known him. They have not all joined<sup>1</sup> with one another in confessing anything,<sup>1</sup> but each one, on the basis of the<sup>1</sup> thing from which he received power<sup>1</sup> to speak about him<sup>25</sup> and on the basis of the place which he saw,<sup>1</sup> thinks that it is from it<sup>1</sup> that he will be begotten and that he will<sup>1</sup> come from that place. Not<sup>1</sup> one of them knew<sup>30</sup> whence he would come nor by whom he<sup>1</sup> would be begotten, but he alone<sup>1</sup> is the one of whom it is worthy to speak, the one who<sup>1</sup> will be begotten and<sup>1</sup> will suffer. Concerning<sup>35</sup> that which he previously was<sup>1</sup> and that which he is eternally,<sup>1</sup> an unbegotten, impassible one from<sup>1</sup> the Logos, who came into being in flesh, 114 he did not come into their thought. And this<sup>1</sup> is the account which they received an impulse<sup>1</sup> to give concerning his flesh<sup>1</sup> which was to appear. They say that<sup>5</sup> it is a production from all of them,<sup>1</sup> but that before all things it is from<sup>1</sup> the spiritual Logos<sup>1</sup> who is the cause of the things which<sup>1</sup> have come into being, from whom the Savior received<sup>10</sup> his flesh. He had<sup>1</sup> conceived <it> at the revelation<sup>1</sup> of the light, according to the<sup>1</sup> word of the promise, at his revelation<sup>1</sup> from the seminal state.<sup>15</sup> For the one who exists is not a seed of the things which exist,<sup>1</sup> since he was begotten at the end. But to the one<sup>1</sup> by whom the Father ordained the manifestation<sup>1</sup> of salvation, who is<sup>1</sup> the fulfillment of the promise,<sup>20</sup> to him belonged all these instruments for<sup>1</sup> entry into life, through which he<sup>1</sup> descended. His Father is one<sup>1</sup> and alone is<sup>1</sup> truly a father to him, the<sup>25</sup> invisible, unknowable,<sup>1</sup> the incomprehensible in his nature, who<sup>1</sup> alone is God in his will<sup>1</sup> and his form, who<sup>1</sup> has granted that he might be seen,<sup>30</sup> known and comprehended.<sup>1</sup>

13. The Incarnate Savior and his Companions

He it is who was our Savior<sup>1</sup> in willing compassion,<sup>1</sup> who is that which<sup>1</sup> they were. For it was for their sake that he became<sup>35</sup> manifest in an involuntary suffering.<sup>1</sup> They became flesh and soul, –<sup>1</sup> that is, eternally – which (things) hold<sup>1</sup> them and with corruptible things<sup>1</sup> they die. And as for those who [came into being] 115 [the] invisible one<sup>1</sup> taught them invisibly about himself.<sup>1</sup>

Not<sup>1</sup> only did he take upon <himself> the death of<sup>5</sup> those whom he thought<sup>1</sup> to save, but he also accepted their smallness<sup>1</sup> to which they had descended when they were <born><sup>1</sup> in body and soul.<sup>1</sup> (He did so),

The Savior was an image <sup>1</sup> of the unitary one, he who <sup>30</sup> is the Totality in bodily form. <sup>1</sup> Therefore, he preserved the form of <sup>1</sup> indivisibility, from which <sup>1</sup> comes impassibility. <sup>1</sup> They, however, are images <sup>35</sup> of each thing which <sup>1</sup> became manifest. Therefore, they <sup>1</sup> assume division from <sup>1</sup> the pattern, having taken form for the planting which <sup>1</sup> exists beneath [the heaven.] This also 117 is what shares in the evil which exists <sup>1</sup> in the places which they have reached. <sup>1</sup> For the will <sup>1</sup> held the Totality under sin, so that <sup>5</sup> by that will he might have mercy <sup>1</sup> on the Totality and they might be saved, while a single one <sup>1</sup> alone is appointed to give life and all the rest <sup>1</sup> need salvation. Therefore, <sup>1</sup> it was from (reasons)

Those <sup>1</sup> who have been brought forth in a lowly thought <sup>1</sup> of vanity, <sup>1</sup> that is, (a thought) which goes to things which are evil 118 through the thought which [draws] them <sup>1</sup> down to the lust for power, these have <sup>1</sup> received the possession which is freedom, <sup>1</sup> from the abundance of the grace which looked <sup>5</sup> upon the children. It was, however, a disturbance of the <sup>1</sup> passion and a destruction of <sup>1</sup> those things which he cast off from <sup>1</sup> himself at first, when the Logos separated them <sup>1</sup> from himself, (the Logos) who <sup>10</sup> was the cause of their being destined for <sup>1</sup> destruction, though he kept <them> at <the> end of the organization <sup>1</sup> and allowed them to exist <sup>1</sup> because even they were useful for the things which were <sup>1</sup> ordained.

14. The Tripartition of Mankind

The spiritual race <sup>1</sup> will receive complete salvation in <sup>1</sup> every way. The material will receive <sup>1</sup> destruction in every way, just as <sup>20</sup> one who resists him. The psychic <sup>1</sup> race, since it is in the middle <sup>1</sup> when it is brought forth and also when it is created, <sup>1</sup> is double according to its determination <sup>1</sup> for both good and evil. It takes its <sup>25</sup> appointed departure <sup>1</sup> suddenly and its complete escape <sup>1</sup> to those who are good. <sup>1</sup> Those whom the Logos brought forth <sup>1</sup> in accordance with the first element of his <sup>30</sup> thought, when he remembered the <sup>1</sup> exalted one and prayed for salvation, <sup>1</sup> have salvation [suddenly.] <sup>1</sup> They will be saved completely [because of] <sup>1</sup> the salvific thought. As he <sup>35</sup> was brought forth, so, [too], <sup>1</sup> were these brought forth from <sup>1</sup> him, 120 whether angels or men. <sup>1</sup> In accordance with the confession that there is <sup>1</sup> one who is more exalted than themselves, <sup>1</sup> and in accordance with the prayer and the search for <sup>5</sup> him, they also will attain the <sup>1</sup> salvation of those who have been brought forth, since <sup>1</sup> they are from the disposition <sup>1</sup> which is good. They were appointed for <sup>1</sup> service in proclaiming the coming <sup>10</sup> of the Savior who was to be and <sup>1</sup> his revelation which had come. <sup>1</sup> Whether angels or men, when <sup>1</sup> he was sent as a service to them, they received, <sup>1</sup> in fact, the essence of their being. <sup>15</sup> Those, however, who are from <sup>1</sup> the thought of lust for <sup>1</sup> power, who have come into being from <sup>1</sup> the blow of those who fight <sup>1</sup> against him, those whom the thought <sup>20</sup> brought forth, from these, <sup>1</sup> since they are mixed, they will receive their end <sup>1</sup> suddenly. Those who will be brought forth <sup>1</sup> from the lust for <sup>1</sup> power which is given to them for a <sup>25</sup> time and for certain periods, and who will give glory to <sup>1</sup> the Lord of glory, and who will relinquish <sup>1</sup> their wrath, they will receive the reward for <sup>1</sup> their humility, which is to remain <sup>1</sup> forever. Those, however, who <sup>30</sup> are proud because of the desire <sup>1</sup> of ambition, and who love temporary <sup>1</sup> glory and who forget that <sup>1</sup> it was only for certain periods and times which they have <sup>1</sup> that they were entrusted with power, <sup>35</sup> and for this reason <sup>1</sup> did not acknowledge that the Son of God 121 is the Lord of all and <sup>1</sup> Savior, and were not brought <sup>1</sup> out of wrath and the <sup>1</sup> resemblance to the evil ones, they <sup>5</sup> will receive judgment for their ignorance <sup>1</sup> and their senselessness, <sup>1</sup> which is suffering, along with those <sup>1</sup> who went astray, anyone <sup>1</sup> of them who turned away; and <sup>10</sup> even more (for) wickedness in <sup>1</sup> doing to the Lord things <sup>1</sup> which were not fitting, <sup>1</sup> which the powers of the left did to him, <sup>1</sup> even including his death. They persevered <sup>15</sup> saying, “We shall become rulers <sup>1</sup> of the universe, if <sup>1</sup> the one who has been proclaimed king of the universe <sup>1</sup> is slain,” (they said this) when they labored to do <sup>1</sup> this, namely the men and angels <sup>20</sup> who are not from the good disposition <sup>1</sup> of the right ones but <sup>1</sup> from the mixture. And <sup>1</sup> they first chose for themselves <sup>1</sup> honor, though it was only a temporary wish <sup>25</sup> and desire, while the <sup>1</sup> path to eternal rest is by way <sup>1</sup> of humility for salvation of <sup>1</sup> those who will be saved, those of <sup>1</sup> the right ones. After they confess <sup>30</sup> the Lord and the thought of that which <sup>1</sup> is pleasing to the church and the song of <sup>1</sup> those who are humble along with her to the full extent <sup>1</sup> possible, in that which is pleasing to do <sup>1</sup> for her, in sharing in her sufferings <sup>35</sup> and her pains in the manner of <sup>1</sup> those who understand what is good <sup>1</sup> for the church, they will have a share <sup>1</sup> in [her] hope. This is to be said 122 on the subject of how men and angels <sup>1</sup> who are from the <sup>1</sup> order of the left <sup>1</sup> have a path to error: <sup>5</sup> not only did they deny the Lord <sup>1</sup> and plot evil against him, <sup>1</sup> but also toward the Church did they direct <sup>1</sup> their hatred <sup>1</sup> and envy and jealousy; <sup>10</sup> and this is the reason for the condemnation <sup>1</sup> of those who have moved and have aroused themselves <sup>1</sup> for the trials of the Church.

The election <sup>1</sup> shares body <sup>1</sup> and essence with <sup>15</sup> the Savior, since it is like a bridal <sup>1</sup> chamber because of its unity <sup>1</sup> and its agreement with him. For, before <sup>1</sup> every place, the Christ came for her sake. <sup>1</sup> The calling, <sup>20</sup> however, has the place <sup>1</sup> of those who rejoice at the bridal chamber <sup>1</sup> and who are glad and happy <sup>1</sup> at the union of the bridegroom <sup>1</sup> and the bride. <sup>25</sup> The place which the calling will have is the aeon <sup>1</sup> of the images, where <sup>1</sup> the Logos has not yet joined with the Pleroma. And <sup>1</sup> since the man of the Church was happy and <sup>1</sup> glad at this, as he was hoping for <sup>30</sup> it, <sup>1</sup> he separated spirit, soul, and body in <sup>1</sup> the organization of the one who thinks that <sup>1</sup> he is a unity, though within him <sup>1</sup> is the man who is <sup>35</sup> the Totality — and he is all of them. <sup>1</sup> And, though he has <sup>1</sup> the escape from the [. . .] which 123 the places will receive, he also has <sup>1</sup> the members about which we spoke <sup>1</sup> earlier. When the redemption was proclaimed, <sup>1</sup> the perfect man received knowledge <sup>5</sup> immediately, <sup>1</sup> so as to return in haste to his <sup>1</sup> unitary state, to the place from <sup>1</sup> which

As for the baptism which exists <sup>1</sup> in the fullest sense, into <sup>1</sup> which the Totalities will descend <sup>1</sup> and in which they will be, there is no other <sup>1</sup> baptism apart from this one alone, <sup>30</sup> which is the redemption into <sup>1</sup> God, Father, Son and <sup>1</sup> Holy Spirit, when <sup>1</sup> confession is made through <sup>1</sup> faith in those names, <sup>35</sup> which are a single name of <sup>1</sup> the gospel, 128 when they have come to believe what has been said to them, <sup>1</sup> namely that they exist. From <sup>1</sup> this they have their <sup>1</sup> salvation, those who have <sup>5</sup> believed that they exist. This <sup>1</sup> is attaining in an invisible way <sup>1</sup> to the Father, Son, <sup>1</sup> and Holy Spirit in an <sup>1</sup> undoubting faith. And when they <sup>10</sup> have borne witness to them, it is also with a <sup>1</sup> firm hope that they <sup>1</sup> attained them, so that the return to them might <sup>1</sup> become the perfection of those who have believed <sup>1</sup> in them and (so that) <sup>15</sup> the Father might be one with them, the Father, <sup>1</sup> the God, whom they have confessed <sup>1</sup> in faith and who <sup>1</sup> gave (them) their union with him in <sup>1</sup> knowledge.

Even if on the matter of the election 130 there are many more things for <sup>1</sup> us to say, as it is fitting to <sup>1</sup> say, nonetheless, on the <sup>1</sup> matter of those of the calling – for <sup>5</sup> those of the right are so named <sup>1</sup> – it is necessary <sup>1</sup> for us to return once again to them <sup>1</sup> and it is not profitable <sup>1</sup> for us to forget them. We have spoken <sup>10</sup> about them, – If there is enough in <sup>1</sup> what preceded at some length, how have we <sup>1</sup> spoken? In a partial way, – <sup>1</sup> since I said about all those who came <sup>1</sup> forth from the Logos, <sup>15</sup> either from the judgment of <sup>1</sup> the evil ones or from <sup>1</sup> the wrath which fights against them and the <sup>1</sup> turning away from them, which <sup>1</sup> is the return to <sup>20</sup> the exalted ones, or from the prayer and <sup>1</sup> the remembrance of those who pre-existed <sup>1</sup> or from hope and <sup>1</sup> faith that [they] would receive their salvation <sup>1</sup> from good work <sup>25</sup> since they have been deemed worthy because <sup>1</sup> they are beings from the good <sup>1</sup> dispositions, (that) they have <sup>1</sup> cause of their begetting <sup>1</sup> which is an opinion from the one who <sup>30</sup> exists. Still further (I said) that before the <sup>1</sup> Logos concerned himself with <sup>1</sup> them in an invisible way, <sup>1</sup> willingly, the exalted one added <sup>1</sup> to this thought, because <sup>35</sup> they were [in need] of him, 131 who was the cause of <sup>1</sup> their being. They did not exalt themselves, <sup>1</sup> when they were saved, as if there were nothing <sup>1</sup> existing before them, but they <sup>5</sup> confess that they have a beginning <sup>1</sup> to their existence and they <sup>1</sup> desire this: to know him <sup>1</sup> who exists before them. <sup>1</sup> Most of all (I said) that they worshipped <sup>10</sup> the revelation of the light <sup>1</sup> in the form of lightning and <sup>1</sup> they bore witness that it appeared <sup>1</sup> as <their> salvation. <sup>1</sup>

another. And as for the repose, [which] <sup>1</sup> is the revelation of [the] form <in> which they believed, <sup>15</sup> (it is necessary) that we should treat it with a <sup>1</sup> suitable discussion. For when we <sup>1</sup> confessed the kingdom <sup>1</sup> which is in Christ, <we> escaped from <sup>1</sup> the whole multiplicity of forms and from <sup>20</sup> inequality and change. For the end <sup>1</sup> will receive a unitary existence <sup>1</sup> just as the beginning is unitary, <sup>1</sup> where there is no <sup>1</sup> male nor female, nor slave <sup>25</sup> and free, nor circumcision <sup>1</sup> and uncircumcision, neither angel <sup>1</sup> nor man, but <sup>1</sup> Christ is all in all. What is the form <sup>1</sup> of the one who did not exist at first? <sup>30</sup> It will be found that he will exist. And <sup>1</sup> what is the nature of the one who was a slave? <sup>1</sup> He will take a place with a 133 free man. For, they will receive the vision <sup>1</sup> more and more by nature <sup>1</sup> and not only by a little word, <sup>1</sup> so as to believe, only through <sup>5</sup> a voice, that this is the way <sup>1</sup> it is, that <sup>1</sup> the restoration to that which used to be is a unity. <sup>1</sup> Even if some are <sup>1</sup> exalted because of the organization, since they have been appointed <sup>10</sup> as causes of the things which have come into being, <sup>1</sup> since they are more active as natural forces <sup>1</sup> and since they are desired because of these things, <sup>1</sup> angels and men will receive the kingdom and the confirmation <sup>1</sup> [and] the salvation. <sup>15</sup> These, then, are the causes. <sup>1</sup>

About the <one> who appeared in flesh they believed <sup>1</sup> without any doubt <sup>1</sup> that he is the Son of the unknown <sup>1</sup> God, who <sup>20</sup> was not previously spoken of <sup>1</sup> and who could not be seen. <sup>1</sup> They abandoned their gods <sup>1</sup> whom they had previously worshipped <sup>1</sup> and the lords who are <sup>25</sup> in heaven and on <sup>1</sup> earth. Before <sup>1</sup> he had taken them up, and while he was still <sup>1</sup> a child, they testified that he had already <sup>1</sup> begun to preach, <sup>30</sup> and when he was in the tomb <sup>1</sup> as a dead man the <sup>1</sup> [angels] thought that he was alive, <sup>1</sup> [receiving] life 134 from the one who had died. <sup>1</sup> They first desired their numerous services <sup>1</sup> and wonders, <sup>1</sup> which were in the temple on their behalf, <sup>5</sup> to be performed continuously <as> the confession. <sup>1</sup> That is, it can <sup>1</sup> be done on their behalf through <sup>1</sup> their approach to him. <sup>1</sup>

their thrones; <sup>1</sup> they were kept from their <sup>30</sup> crowns. He, however, revealed himself to them, <sup>1</sup> for the reasons which we have already spoken of, <sup>1</sup> their salvation and the [return to a] <sup>1</sup> good thought until [...] 135 [...] companion and the angels <sup>1</sup> [...] and the abundance of good <sup>1</sup> [which they did] with it. Thus, <sup>1</sup> they were entrusted with the services, <sup>5</sup> which benefit the elect, <sup>1</sup> bringing their iniquity <sup>1</sup> up to heaven. They tested them eternally <sup>1</sup> for the lack of humility from the inerrancy <sup>1</sup> of the creation, continuing on their <sup>10</sup> behalf until all come to life and <sup>1</sup> leave life, while their <sup>1</sup> bodies [remain] on earth, serving <sup>1</sup> all their [...], sharing <sup>1</sup> [with them] in their sufferings <sup>15</sup> [and] persecutions and <sup>1</sup> tribulations, which were brought <sup>1</sup> upon the saints in [every] place. <sup>1</sup>

They will <sup>1</sup> think pleasant thoughts. <sup>1</sup> They are services for her. She will <sup>1</sup> give them their requital for all that which <sup>1</sup> the aeons will think about. <sup>10</sup> He is an emanation from them, so that, <sup>1</sup> just as Christ [did] his <sup>1</sup> will which he brought [forth and] <sup>1</sup> exalted the greatnesses of the Church [and] <sup>1</sup> gave them to her, so <sup>15</sup> will she be a thought for <sup>1</sup> [these.] And to men he gives [their] <sup>1</sup> eternal dwelling places, in <sup>1</sup> which they will dwell, [leaving] <sup>1</sup> behind the attraction toward <sup>20</sup> the defect, while <sup>1</sup> the power of the Pleroma pulls them up <sup>1</sup> in the greatness of the <sup>1</sup> generosity and [the] sweetness of <sup>1</sup> the aeon which pre-exists. This <sup>25</sup> is the nature of the entire begetting of those <sup>1</sup> whom he had when he shone <sup>1</sup> on them [in] a [light] which he <sup>1</sup> revealed [...]. <sup>1</sup> Just as his [...] <sup>30</sup> which will be [...] <sup>1</sup> so too his [lord] <sup>1</sup> [while] the change alone is <sup>1</sup> in those who have changed. 137 which [...] by <sup>1</sup> him [...] <sup>1</sup> [...] said, <sup>1</sup> while the hylics will remain until <sup>10</sup> the end for destruction, since they will not give <sup>1</sup> forth for their [names], if <sup>1</sup> [they would] return once again to that which <sup>1</sup> [will not be]. As they were <sup>1</sup> [...] they were not <sup>15</sup> [...] but they were of use <sup>1</sup> [in the] time that they were <sup>1</sup> [in it] among them, although they were not <sup>1</sup> [...] at first. If <sup>1</sup> [...] to do something else concerning <sup>20</sup> the control which <sup>1</sup> they have of the preparation, <sup>1</sup> [...] before them. <sup>1</sup> –

THE APOCRYPHON OF JOHN (II,1, III,1, IV,1, AND BG 8502,2)

Introduced and translated by

FREDERIK WISSE

The Apocryphon of John is an important work of mythological Gnosticism. Using the framework of a revelation delivered by the resurrected Christ to John the son of Zebedee, this tractate offers a remarkably clear description of the creation, fall, and salvation of humanity; the mythological description is developed largely in terms of the early chapters of Genesis. Reports of the church fathers indicate that some of them were familiar with the contents of The Apocryphon of John: the teachings of certain Gnostics described by Irenaeus are very similar to the cosmological teachings of the present tractate. Though Irenaeus apparently did not know The Apocryphon of John in its present form, it is certain that the main teachings of the tractate existed before 185 C.E., the date of Irenaeus' work Against Heresies. The Apocryphon of John was still used in the eighth century by the Audians of Mesopotamia.

The Apocryphon of John supplies answers to two basic questions: What is the origin of evil? How can we escape from this evil world to our heavenly home? The cosmogeny, in spite of its exotic details, also seeks to answer these questions. The highest deity is defined in terms of an abstract Greek concept of perfection, a perfection which excludes all anthropomorphism and all involvement in the world. From this supreme deity emanates a series of light-beings, including Christ and Sophia.

According to The Apocryphon of John, the fall occurs when Sophia desires to bring forth a being without the approval of the great Spirit or her consort. Consequently, she produces the monstrous creator-god Yaldabaoth, who still possesses some of the light-power of his mother. Yaldabaoth creates angels to rule over the world and aid in the creation of man; man himself is fashioned after the perfect Father's image, which was mirrored on the water. Man comes to life when Yaldabaoth is tricked into breathing light-power into him. Thus begins a continuous struggle between the powers of light and the powers of darkness for the possession of the divine particles in man. The evil powers put man in a material body to keep him imprisoned, and also create woman and sexual desire to spread the particles of light and make escape more difficult. Finally Christ is sent down to save humanity by reminding people of their heavenly origin. Only those who possess this knowledge and have lived ascetic lives can return to the realm of light; the others are reincarnated until they also come to saving knowledge.

Three versions of The Apocryphon of John are known. III,1 and BG,2 represent independent translations into Coptic of a short Greek recension of the work. II,1 and IV,1 are copies of the same Coptic translation of a long Greek recension. The English translation presented here is of the long recension. Page and line numbers are given for II, I, except where IV, I preserved text which was omitted in II, I through scribal error.

THE APOCRYPHON OF JOHN

II 1, 1-32, 9 = IV 1, 1-49, 28

The teaching [of the savior], and [the revelation] <sup>1</sup> of the mysteries, [and the] things hidden in <sup>1</sup> silence, [even these things which] he taught <sup>1</sup> John, [his] disciple. <sup>5</sup>

He said to me, “John, John, <sup>10</sup> why do you doubt, or why [are you] <sup>1</sup> afraid? You are not unfamiliar with this image, are you? <sup>1</sup> – that is, do not [be] timid! – I am the one who <sup>1</sup> is [with you (pl.)] always. I <sup>1</sup> [am the Father], I am the Mother, I am the Son. <sup>15</sup> I am the undefiled and incorruptible one. <sup>1</sup> Now [I have come to teach you] what is <sup>1</sup> [and what was] and what will come to <sup>1</sup> [pass], that [you may know the] things which are not revealed <sup>1</sup> [and those which are revealed, and to teach you] concerning the <sup>20</sup> [unwavering race of] the perfect [Man]. Now, <sup>1</sup> [therefore, lift up] your [face, that] you may <sup>1</sup> [receive] the things that I [shall teach you] today, [and] <sup>1</sup> may [tell them to your] fellow spirits who [are <sup>1</sup> from] the [unwavering] race of the perfect <sup>25</sup> Man.”

He [is the] invisible [Spirit] of whom it is not right <sup>1</sup> [to think] of him as a god, or something <sup>35</sup> similar. For he is more than a god, <sup>1</sup> since there is nothing above him, for no one <sup>3</sup> lords it over him. [For he does] not [exist] in something <sup>1</sup> inferior [to him, since everything] exists in him. <sup>1</sup> (IV 4, 9-10: [For it is he who establishes]) himself. [He is eternal] since <sup>1</sup> he does [not] need [anything]. For [he] is total <sup>5</sup> perfection. [He] did not [lack anything] that he might <sup>1</sup> be completed by [it; rather] he is always completely perfect <sup>1</sup> in [light]. He is [illimitable] since <sup>1</sup> there is no one [prior to him] to set limits to him. <sup>1</sup> He is unsearchable [since there] exists no one <sup>10</sup> prior to him to [examine him. He is] immeasurable <sup>1</sup> since there [was] no one [prior to him to measure] <sup>1</sup> him. [He is invisible since no] <sup>1</sup> one saw [him. He is eternal] since he [exists] <sup>1</sup> eternally. He is [ineffable since] <sup>15</sup> no one was able to comprehend him to speak [about him]. <sup>1</sup> He is unnameable since [there is no one prior to him] <sup>1</sup> to give [him] a name.

He is [immeasurable light] <sup>1</sup> which is pure, holy [(and) immaculate]. <sup>1</sup> He is ineffable [being perfect in] incorruptibility. <sup>20</sup> (He is) [not] in perfection, nor in <sup>1</sup> blessedness, nor in <sup>1</sup> divinity, but he is far superior. <sup>1</sup> He is not corporeal [nor] is he incorporeal. <sup>1</sup> He is neither large [nor] is he small. [There is no] <sup>25</sup> way to say, ‘What is his quantity?’ or, ‘What [is his quality?],’ <sup>1</sup> for no one can [know him]. <sup>1</sup> He is not someone among (other) [beings, rather he is] <sup>1</sup> far superior. [Not] that [he is (simply) superior], but his <sup>1</sup> essence does not [partake] in the aeons nor <sup>30</sup> in time. For he who partakes in [an aeon] <sup>1</sup> was prepared beforehand. Time [was not] <sup>1</sup> apportioned to him, [since] he does not <sup>1</sup> receive anything from another, [for it would be received] <sup>1</sup> on loan. For he who precedes someone does not [lack] <sup>35</sup> that he may receive from [him]. <sup>1</sup> For [rather] it is the latter that looks expectantly at him in <sup>4</sup> his light.

“And (IV 20, 11: having created [ ] everything he organized according to the model of the first <sup>35</sup> aeons which had come into being, so that he might 13 create them like the indestructible ones. Not because <sup>1</sup> he had seen the indestructible ones, but the power <sup>1</sup> in him, which he had taken from <sup>1</sup> his mother, produced in him the likeness of <sup>5</sup> the cosmos. And when he saw the creation which surrounds <sup>1</sup> him and the multitude of the angels around <sup>1</sup> him which had come forth from him, <sup>1</sup> he said to them, ‘I am a jealous God <sup>1</sup> and there is no other God beside me.’ But by <sup>10</sup> announcing this he indicated to the angels <sup>1</sup> who attended him that there exists another God. <sup>1</sup> For if there were no other one, of whom <sup>1</sup> would he be jealous?

“And when the mother wanted to retrieve the power which she had given to the chief archon, she petitioned the Mother-Father of the All who is most merciful. He sent, by means of the holy decree, the five lights <sup>20</sup> down upon the place of the angels of the chief archon. They advised him that they should bring forth the power of the mother. And they said to Yaltabaoth, ‘Blow into his face something of your spirit and <sup>25</sup> his body will arise.’ And he blew into his face the spirit which is the power of his mother; he did not know (this), for he exists in ignorance. And the power of the mother went out of <sup>30</sup> Yaltabaoth into the natural body which they had fashioned after the image of the one who exists from the beginning. The body moved and gained strength, and it was luminous. <sup>1</sup>

“And in that moment the rest of the powers 20 became jealous, because he had come into being through all of them and they had given their power to the man, and his intelligence was greater than that of those who had made him, and <sup>5</sup> greater than that of the chief archon. And when they recognized that he was luminous, and that he could think better than they, and that he was free from wickedness, they took him and threw him into the lowest region of all matter.

“But the blessed One, the Mother-Father, <sup>10</sup> the beneficent and merciful One, had mercy on the power of the mother which had been brought forth out of the chief archon, for they (the archons) might gain power over the natural and perceptible body. And he <sup>15</sup> sent, through his beneficent Spirit and his great mercy, a helper to Adam, luminous Epinoia which comes out of him, who is called Life. And she assists the whole creature, <sup>20</sup> by toiling with him and by restoring him to his fullness and by teaching him about the descent of his seed (and) by teaching him about the way of ascent, (which is) the way he came down. <sup>25</sup> And the luminous Epinoia was hidden in Adam, in order that the archons might not know her, but that the Epinoia might be a correction of the deficiency of the mother.

“And the man came forth because of the shadow of the light <sup>30</sup> which is in him. And his thinking was superior to all those who had made him. When they looked up they saw that his thinking was superior. And they took counsel with the whole array of archons <sup>35</sup> and angels. They took fire and earth 21 and water and mixed them together with the four fiery winds. And they wrought them together and caused a great disturbance. And they brought him (Adam) into

And I said to the savior, “What is <sup>1</sup> the forgetfulness?” And he said, “It is not the way Moses <sup>1</sup> wrote (and) you heard. For he said in <sup>1</sup> his first book, ‘He put him to sleep’ (Gn 2: 21), but <sup>25</sup> (it was) in his perception. For also he said through the <sup>1</sup> prophet, ‘I will make their <sup>1</sup> hearts heavy that they may not pay attention and may not <sup>1</sup> see’ (Is 6: 10).

chief archon wanted <sup>30</sup> to bring her out of his rib. <sup>1</sup> But the Epinoia of the light cannot be grasped. <sup>1</sup> Although darkness pursued her, it did not catch her. And <sup>1</sup> he brought a part of his power <sup>1</sup> out of him. And he made another creature <sup>35</sup> in the form of a woman according to the likeness of the Epinoia <sup>1</sup> which had appeared to him. And he brought 23 the part which he had taken from the power <sup>1</sup> of the man into the female creature, <sup>1</sup> and not as Moses said, <sup>1</sup> 'his rib-bone.'

man, <sup>1</sup> for without it no one can stand. <sup>15</sup> And after they are born, then, <sup>1</sup> when the Spirit of life increases and <sup>1</sup> the power comes and strengthens that soul, <sup>1</sup> no one can lead it astray <sup>1</sup> with works of evil. <sup>20</sup> But those on whom the counterfeit spirit <sup>1</sup> descends are drawn by <sup>1</sup> him and they go astray.”

And I said, “Lord, <sup>1</sup> those, however, who have not known <sup>1</sup> to whom they belong, where will their souls <sup>35</sup> be?” And he said to me, <sup>1</sup> “In those the despicable spirit has 27 gained strength when they went astray. And he <sup>1</sup> burdens the soul and draws it <sup>1</sup> to the works of evil, and he casts <sup>1</sup> it down into forgetfulness. And after it <sup>5</sup> comes out of (the body), it is handed over to the authorities, <sup>1</sup> who came into being through the archon, and <sup>1</sup> they bind it with chains and cast <sup>1</sup> it into prison and consort with it <sup>1</sup> until it is liberated from the forgetfulness and <sup>10</sup> acquires knowledge. And if thus it <sup>1</sup> becomes perfect, it is saved.”

And I said, <sup>1</sup> “Lord, these also who did not know but <sup>1</sup> have turned away, where will their <sup>1</sup> souls go?” Then he said to me, “To that place <sup>25</sup> where the angels of poverty go <sup>1</sup> they will be taken, the place <sup>1</sup> where there is no repentance. And <sup>1</sup> they will be kept for the day on which <sup>1</sup> those who have blasphemed the spirit will be tortured, <sup>30</sup> and they will be punished with eternal punishment.” <sup>1</sup>

And I said, “Lord, <sup>1</sup> from where did the counterfeit spirit come?” <sup>1</sup> Then he said to me, “The Mother-Father <sup>1</sup> who is rich in mercy, the holy Spirit <sup>35</sup> in every way, the One who is merciful and 28 who sympathizes with you (pl.), i.e. the <sup>1</sup> Epinoia of the foreknowledge of light, <sup>1</sup> he raised up the offspring of the perfect <sup>1</sup> race and its thinking and the eternal <sup>5</sup> light of man. When <sup>1</sup> the chief archon realized that they were exalted <sup>1</sup> above him in the height – and they surpass <sup>1</sup> him in thinking

And the savior presented these things to him that <sup>1</sup> he might write them down and keep them <sup>1</sup> secure. And he said to him, “Cursed be <sup>35</sup> everyone who will exchange these things for a gift <sup>1</sup> or for food or for <sup>1</sup> drink or for clothing or for any other such thing.” <sup>32</sup> And these things were presented to him <sup>1</sup> in a mystery, and immediately <sup>1</sup> he disappeared from him. <sup>1</sup> And he went to his fellow disciples and related <sup>5</sup> to them what the savior had told him. <sup>1</sup>

THE GOSPEL OF THOMAS (II,2)

Introduced by

HELMUT KOESTER

Translated by

THOMAS O. LAMBDIN

The Gospel of Thomas is a collection of traditional sayings of Jesus. These sayings, or small groups of sayings (the numeration of the 114 sayings is not found in the manuscript, but is followed by most scholars today) are introduced in most instances by "Jesus said (to them)," sometimes by a question or a statement of the disciples. Only in one instance (13) is a saying expanded into a longer discourse between Jesus and the disciples. The sayings preserved in The Gospel of Thomas are of several types: wisdom sayings (proverbs), parables, eschatological sayings (prophecies), and rules for the community. They appear in this document in arrangement that does not reveal any overall plan of composition. On occasion, small groups of sayings are kept together by similarity in form or by catchword association.

The Coptic Gospel of Thomas was translated from the Greek. Fragments of this gospel in the original Greek version are extant in the Oxyrhynchus Papyri 1, 654 and 655, which had been discovered and published at the beginning of this century, but were identified as parts of The Gospel of Thomas only after the discovery of the Coptic Nag Hammadi library. The first of these Greek papyri contains sayings 26-30, 77, 31-33 (in this order!), the other two the sayings 1-7 and 36-40, respectively. At least one of these Greek fragments comes from a manuscript that was written before 200 C.E.; thus the Greek version of this gospel was used in Egypt as early as the second century.

The authorship of this gospel is attributed to Didymos Judas Thomas, that is, Judas "the twin" (both the Aramaic thomas and the Greek didymos mean "twin"). In the Syrian church, (Judas) Thomas was known as the brother of Jesus who founded the churches of the East, particularly of Edessa (in a somewhat later tradition, he even travels to India). Other Christian writings of the eastern churches have been attributed to the same apostle; to these belong the Acts of Thomas and most likely also The Book of Thomas, which was discovered as part of the Nag Hammadi library (II,7). The latter writing, as well as The Gospel of Thomas, were most likely written in Syria. It is doubtful, however, whether it was originally composed in Aramaic and then translated into Greek, although many of the sayings, like the oldest sayings of the canonical gospels, were certainly first circulated in Aramaic, the language of Jesus.

A large number of the sayings of The Gospel of Thomas have parallels in the gospels of the New Testament, in the Synoptic Gospels (Matthew, Mark, and Luke), as well as the Gospel of John (parallels with the latter are especially striking; cf., e.g., sayings 13, 19, 24, 38, 49, 92). Some of the sayings are known to occur also in noncanonical gospels, especially in the Gospel According to the Hebrews (cf. saying 2) and the Gospel of the Egyptians (cf. saying 22), which are both attested for the second century by Clement of Alexandria (floruit 180-200). However, a direct dependence of The Gospel of Thomas upon another non-canonical gospel is very unlikely. More problematic is the relationship of The Gospel of Thomas to the canonical gospels. Whereas the latter all contain large segments of narrative materials, no traces of such materials are found in the former. Already this makes it unlikely that our document can be considered as an eclectic excerpt from the gospels of the New Testament. If one considers the form and wording of the individual sayings in comparison with the form in which they are preserved in the New Testament, The Gospel of Thomas almost always appears to have preserved a more original form of the traditional saying (in a few instances, where this is not the case, the Coptic translation seems to have been influenced by the translator's knowledge of the New Testament gospels), or presents versions which are independently based on more original forms. More original and shorter forms are especially evident in the parables of Thomas (cf. sayings 8, 9, 57, 63, 64, 65, 96, cf. 109).

In its literary genre, The Gospel of Thomas is more akin to one of the sources of the canonical gospels, namely the so-called Synoptic Sayings Source (often called "Q" from the German word Quelle, "source"), which was used by both Matthew and Luke. Indeed, many of the sayings found in our document were also parts of this source of the gospels of the New Testament. On the other hand, The Gospel of Thomas also contains quite different older sayings, paralleled in the Gospel of John, in Mark 4:21-25, and even in 1 Corinthians (cf. saying 17 with 1 Co 2:9). Moreover, the sayings about the future coming of the Son of Man, so characteristic for "Q" (cf. Lk 12:8, 10; 17:22, 24, 26), are completely missing. The Gospel of Thomas is, therefore, a closely related but independent collection of sayings. In its most original form, it may well date from the first century (the middle of the first century is usually considered the best date for the composition of "Q").

Neither the Coptic translation nor the Greek fragments seem to have preserved this gospel in its oldest form. Even the comparison of the extant Coptic and Greek texts demonstrates that the text was subject to change in the process of transmission. The oldest form most likely contained wisdom sayings and eschatological sayings of Jesus, including a number of parables. The sayings of this type, even those which have no parallels in the gospels of the New Testament (especially the parables 97 and 98), may belong to the oldest strata of the tradition. Whereas "Q" emphasized the eschatological expectation of the future coming of the "Kingdom of God," The Gospel of Thomas in its oldest form, stressed the finding of wisdom, or of the "Kingdom of the Father," in the knowledge (gnosis) of oneself (cf. saying 3), guided by the sayings of Jesus. This understanding of salvation is similar to that expressed in many passages of the Gospel of John in which the finding of truth and life is bound to the words of Jesus (Jn 6:63; 8:51). The first saying of The Gospel of Thomas states this programmatically: the interpretation of the sayings is identical with the finding of eternal life.

In the further history and growth of The Gospel of Thomas, this wisdom interpretation of the sayings of Jesus is more clearly developed under the influence of gnostic theology, though it is not possible to ascribe the work to any particular gnostic school or sect. The theme of recognizing oneself is further elaborated in sayings (cf. 50, 51) which speak of the knowledge of one's divine origin which even Adam did not share, although "he came into being from a great power" (saying 85). Salvation is obtained in stripping off everything that is of this world (cf. sayings 21a, 37, 56). The disciples must "pass by" the present corruptible existence (saying 42). The existence of the ideal gnostic disciple is characterized by the term "solitary one," which describes the one who has left behind everything that binds human beings to the world (cf. sayings 16, 23, 30, and 76). Even women can obtain this goal, if they achieve the "maleness" of the solitary existence (saying 114).

THE GOSPEL OF THOMAS

II 32, 10-51, 28

These are the secret sayings which the living Jesus <sup>1</sup> spoke and which Didymos Judas Thomas wrote down. <sup>1</sup>

(1) And he said, <sup>1</sup> "Whoever finds the interpretation of these sayings will <sup>1</sup> not experience death."

(6) His disciples questioned him <sup>15</sup> and said to him, "Do you want us to fast? <sup>1</sup> How shall we pray? Shall we give alms? <sup>1</sup> What diet shall we observe?"

(10) Jesus said, "I have cast fire upon<sup>15</sup> the world, and see, I am guarding it<sup>1</sup> until it blazes."

(11) Jesus said, "This heaven will<sup>1</sup> pass away, and the one above it will pass away.<sup>1</sup> The dead are not alive, and the living<sup>1</sup> will not die. In the days when you consumed<sup>20</sup> what is dead, you made it what is alive.<sup>1</sup> When you come to dwell in the light,<sup>1</sup> what will you do? On the day when you<sup>1</sup> were one you became two. But when<sup>1</sup> you become two, what<sup>25</sup> will you do?"

(12) The disciples said to Jesus,<sup>1</sup> "We know that you will depart from us. Who is<sup>1</sup> to be our leader?"

Jesus said to them,<sup>1</sup> "Wherever you are, you are to<sup>1</sup> go to James the righteous,<sup>30</sup> for whose sake heaven and earth came into being."

(13) Jesus said<sup>1</sup> to his disciples, "Compare me to someone and<sup>1</sup> tell me whom I am like."

Matthew said to him, 35 "You are like a wise philosopher."

Thomas said to him,<sup>1</sup> "Master, my mouth is wholly incapable<sup>1</sup> of saying whom you are like."

Jesus said,<sup>5</sup> "I am not your (sg.) master. Because you (sg.) have drunk, you (sg.) have become intoxicated<sup>1</sup> from the bubbling spring which I<sup>1</sup> have measured out."

And he took him and withdrew <sup>1</sup> and told him three things. <sup>1</sup> When Thomas returned to his companions, they asked him, <sup>10</sup> “What did Jesus say to you?”

Thomas said to them, <sup>1</sup> “If I tell you one of the things <sup>1</sup> which he told me, you will pick up stones and <sup>1</sup> throw them at me; a fire will come out of <sup>1</sup> the stones and burn you up.” <sup>15</sup>

(18) The disciples said to Jesus, “Tell <sup>10</sup> us how our end will be.” <sup>1</sup>

Jesus said, “Have you discovered, then, <sup>1</sup> the beginning, that you look for <sup>1</sup> the end? For where the beginning is, <sup>1</sup> there will the end be. Blessed is <sup>15</sup> he who will take his place in the beginning; <sup>1</sup> he will know the end and will not experience <sup>1</sup> death.”

(21) Mary said to Jesus, "Whom are your disciples <sup>35</sup> like?"

He said, "They are like 37 children who have settled in a field <sup>1</sup> which is not theirs. When the owners of the field come, <sup>1</sup> they will say, 'Let us have back our field.' <sup>1</sup> They (will) undress in their presence <sup>5</sup> in order to let them have back their field and to give <sup>1</sup> it back to them. Therefore I say, <sup>1</sup> if the owner of a house knows that the thief is coming, <sup>1</sup> he will begin his vigil before he comes and will not <sup>1</sup> let him dig through into his house of his <sup>10</sup> domain to carry away his goods. You (pl.), <sup>1</sup> then, be on your guard against the world. Arm <sup>1</sup> yourselves with great strength <sup>1</sup> lest the robbers find a way to come <sup>1</sup> to you, for the difficulty which you expect <sup>15</sup> will (surely) materialize. Let there be <sup>1</sup> among you a man of understanding. <sup>1</sup> When the grain ripened, he came quickly <sup>1</sup> with his sickle in his hand and reaped it. <sup>1</sup> Whoever has ears to hear, let him hear." <sup>20</sup>

They said to him, "Shall we then, as children, <sup>1</sup> enter the kingdom?"

Jesus said to them, <sup>25</sup> "When you make the two one, and <sup>1</sup> when you make the inside like the outside <sup>1</sup> and the outside like the inside, and the above <sup>1</sup> like the below, and when <sup>1</sup> you make the male and the female one and the same, <sup>30</sup> so that the male not be male nor <sup>1</sup> the female female; and when you fashion <sup>1</sup> eyes in place of an eye, and a hand <sup>1</sup> in place of a hand, and a foot in place <sup>1</sup> of a foot, and a likeness in place of a likeness; <sup>35</sup> then will you enter [the kingdom]." <sup>38</sup>

(24) His disciples said to him, "Show us the place <sup>5</sup> where you are, since it is necessary for us <sup>1</sup> to seek it."

He said to them, "Whoever has <sup>1</sup> ears, let him hear. There is light <sup>1</sup> within a man of light, <sup>1</sup> and he lights up the whole world. If he <sup>10</sup> does not shine, he is darkness."

(30) Jesus said, <sup>1</sup> "Where there are three gods, <sup>1</sup> they are gods. Where there are two or one, I <sup>5</sup> am with him."

(37) His disciples said, "When <sup>1</sup> will you become revealed to us and when <sup>1</sup> shall we see you?"

Jesus said, "When <sup>30</sup> you disrobe without being <sup>1</sup> ashamed and take up your garments <sup>1</sup> and place them under your feet <sup>1</sup> like little children and <sup>1</sup> tread on them, then [will you see] 40 the son of the living one, and you will not be <sup>1</sup> afraid."

(38) Jesus said, "Many times have you <sup>1</sup> desired to hear these words <sup>1</sup> which I am saying to you, and you have <sup>5</sup> no one else to hear them from. There will be days <sup>1</sup> when you will look for me and <sup>1</sup> will not find me."

(39) Jesus said, "The pharisees <sup>1</sup> and the scribes have taken the keys of knowledge (gnosis) and hidden them. They themselves have not entered, <sup>10</sup> nor have they allowed to enter those who wish to. You, however, be as wise as serpents and as innocent as doves.”

(40) Jesus said, “A grapevine has been planted outside of the father, but being <sup>15</sup> unsound, it will be pulled up by its roots and destroyed.”

(41) Jesus said, “Whoever has something in his hand will receive more, and whoever has nothing will be deprived of even the little he has.”

(42) Jesus said, “Become passers-by.” <sup>20</sup>

(43) His disciples said to him, “Who are you, that you should say these things to us?”

⟨Jesus said to them,⟩ “You do not realize who I am from what I say to you, but you have become like the Jews, for they (either) love the tree and hate <sup>25</sup> its fruit (or) love the fruit and hate the tree.”

(44) Jesus said, “Whoever blasphemes against the father will be forgiven, and whoever blasphemes against the son will be forgiven, but whoever blasphemes against the holy spirit <sup>30</sup> will not be forgiven either on earth or in heaven.”

(45) Jesus said, “Grapes are not harvested from thorns, nor are figs gathered from thistles, for they do not produce fruit. A good man brings forth good from his storehouse; an evil man brings forth evil things from his evil storehouse, which is in his heart, and says evil things. For out of <sup>5</sup> the abundance of the heart he brings forth evil things.”

(46) Jesus said, “Among those born of women, from Adam until John the Baptist, there is no one so superior to John the Baptist that his eyes should not be lowered (before him). <sup>10</sup> Yet I have said, whichever one of you comes to be a child will be acquainted with the kingdom and will become superior to John.”

(47) Jesus said, “It is impossible for a man to mount two horses or to stretch two bows. And it is impossible <sup>15</sup> for a servant to serve two masters; otherwise, he will honor the one and treat the other contemptuously. No man drinks old wine and immediately desires to drink new wine. And new wine is not put into old wineskins, <sup>20</sup> lest they burst; nor is old wine put into a new wineskin, lest it spoil it. An old patch is not sewn into a new garment, because a tear would result.”

(48) Jesus said, “If two make peace with <sup>25</sup> each other in this one house, they will say to the mountain, ‘Move away,’ and it will move away.”

(51) His disciples said to him, <sup>1</sup> "When will the repose of <sup>1</sup> the dead come about, and when <sup>10</sup> will the new world come?"

He said to them, <sup>1</sup> "What you look forward to has already come, but <sup>1</sup> you do not recognize it." <sup>1</sup>

(52) His disciples said to him, "Twenty-four <sup>1</sup> prophets spoke in Israel, <sup>15</sup> and all of them spoke in you." <sup>1</sup>

He said to them, "You have omitted the one living in <sup>1</sup> your presence and have spoken (only) of the <sup>1</sup> dead."

(53) His disciples said to him, <sup>1</sup> "Is circumcision beneficial or not?"

(54) Jesus said, "Blessed are the poor, <sup>1</sup> for yours is the kingdom of heaven." <sup>25</sup>

They said to him, “So that he may <sup>1</sup> kill it and eat it.”

He said to them, “While <sup>1</sup> it is alive, he will not eat it, but only when he has <sup>1</sup> killed it and it has become a corpse.”

They said to him, <sup>1</sup> “He cannot do so otherwise.”

(61) Jesus said, “Two will rest <sup>1</sup> on a bed: the one will die, and the other <sup>25</sup> will live.”

Salome said, “Who are you, <sup>1</sup> man, that you . . . have come up on <sup>1</sup> my couch and eaten from my <sup>1</sup> table?”

Jesus said to her, “I am he <sup>1</sup> who exists from the undivided. <sup>30</sup> I was given some of the things of my father.”

ner have asked to be excused.' The master said to <sup>1</sup> his servant, 'Go outside to the streets <sup>1</sup> and bring back those whom you happen to meet, so that <sup>1</sup> they may dine.' Businessmen and merchants <sup>35</sup> [will] not enter the places of my father.'" 45

(66) Jesus said, "Show me the stone which <sup>1</sup> the builders have rejected. That one is the <sup>1</sup> cornerstone."

(67) Jesus said, "If one who knows the all <sup>20</sup> still feels a personal deficiency, he is completely deficient." <sup>1</sup>

(68) Jesus said, "Blessed are you when <sup>1</sup> you are hated and persecuted. <sup>1</sup> Wherever you have been persecuted <sup>1</sup> they will find no place." <sup>25</sup>

(70) Jesus said, <sup>30</sup> "That which you have will save you <sup>1</sup> if you bring it forth from yourselves. <sup>1</sup> That which you do not have within you [will] kill you <sup>1</sup> if you do not have it within you." <sup>1</sup>

(71) Jesus said, "I shall [destroy this] house, <sup>35</sup> and no one will be able to build it [ . . . ]" 46

(72) [A man said] to him, "Tell my brothers <sup>1</sup> to divide my father's possessions <sup>1</sup> with me."

He said to him, "O man, who <sup>1</sup> has made me a divider?"

He turned to <sup>5</sup> his disciples and said to them, "I am not a divider, <sup>1</sup> am I?"

He said to [her], <sup>1</sup> “Blessed are those who have heard <sup>1</sup> the word of the father and have truly kept it. <sup>1</sup> For there will be days <sup>10</sup> when you (pl.) will say, ‘Blessed are the womb <sup>1</sup> which has not conceived and the breasts which have not <sup>1</sup> given milk.’ ”

(80) Jesus said, “He who has recognized <sup>1</sup> the world has found the body, but he who has found <sup>1</sup> the body is superior to the world.” <sup>15</sup>

(81) Jesus said, “Let him who has grown rich <sup>1</sup> be king, and let him who possesses power <sup>1</sup> renounce it.”

(87) Jesus said, “Wretched <sup>5</sup> is the body that is dependent upon a body, <sup>1</sup> and wretched is the soul that is dependent <sup>1</sup> on these two.”

(88) Jesus said, “The angels <sup>1</sup> and the prophets will come to you and <sup>1</sup> give to you those things you (already) have. And <sup>10</sup> you too, give them those things which you have, <sup>1</sup> and say to yourselves, ‘When <sup>1</sup> will they come and take what is theirs?’ ” <sup>1</sup>

(89) Jesus said, “Why do you wash the outside <sup>1</sup> of the cup? Do you not realize that <sup>15</sup> he who made the inside is the same one <sup>1</sup> who made the outside?”

(91) They said to him, “Tell us <sup>1</sup> who you are so that we may believe in you.” <sup>1</sup>

He said to them, “You read the face of the sky <sup>1</sup> and of the earth, but you have not recognized <sup>1</sup> the one who is before you, and <sup>25</sup> you do not know how to read this moment.” <sup>1</sup>

(94) Jesus [said], “He who seeks will find, <sup>1</sup> and [he who knocks] will be let in.” <sup>35</sup>

(95) [Jesus said], “If you have money, 49 do not lend it at interest, but give [it] to one <sup>1</sup> from whom you will not get it back.”

(99) The disciples said to him, “Your brothers <sup>1</sup> and your mother are standing outside.” <sup>1</sup>

He said to them, “Those here <sup>1</sup> who do the will of my father are <sup>25</sup>

my brothers and my mother. It is they who will <sup>1</sup> enter the kingdom of my father.” <sup>1</sup>

(100) They showed Jesus a gold coin and said to him, <sup>1</sup> “Caesar’s men demand taxes from us.” <sup>1</sup>

He said to them, “Give Caesar what belongs <sup>30</sup> to Caesar, give God what belongs to God, <sup>1</sup> and give me what is mine.” <sup>1</sup>

(101) <Jesus said,> “Whoever does not hate his [father] and his <sup>1</sup> mother as I do cannot become a [disciple] to me. <sup>1</sup> And whoever does [not] love his [father and] his <sup>35</sup> mother as I do cannot become a [disciple to] <sup>1</sup> me. For my mother [. . .], 50 but [my] true [mother] gave me life.” <sup>1</sup>

(104) They said to Jesus, “Come, let us pray today <sup>1</sup> and let us fast.”

Jesus said, “What <sup>1</sup> is the sin that I have committed, or wherein have I been defeated? <sup>1</sup> But when the bridegroom leaves <sup>15</sup> the bridal chamber, then let them <sup>1</sup> fast and pray.”

(105) Jesus said, <sup>1</sup> “He who knows the father and the mother will be called <sup>1</sup> the son of a harlot.”

(108) Jesus said, “He who will drink from my mouth <sup>1</sup> will become like me. I myself shall become <sup>30</sup> he, and the things that are hidden will be revealed to him.” <sup>1</sup>

(110) Jesus said, "Whoever finds the world <sup>5</sup> and becomes rich, let him renounce the world." <sup>1</sup>

(111) Jesus said, "The heavens and the earth will be rolled up <sup>1</sup> in your presence. And the one who lives from <sup>1</sup> the living one will not see death." Does not Jesus <sup>1</sup> say, "Whoever finds himself <sup>10</sup> is superior to the world"?

(112) Jesus said, "Woe <sup>1</sup> to the flesh that depends on the soul; woe <sup>1</sup> to the soul that depends on the flesh." <sup>1</sup>

(113) His disciples said to him, <sup>1</sup> "When will the kingdom come?"

Jesus said, <sup>1</sup> "I myself shall lead her <sup>1</sup> in order to make her male, so that <sup>1</sup> she too may become a living spirit resembling <sup>1</sup> you males. For every woman who will make herself <sup>25</sup> male will enter the kingdom <sup>1</sup> of heaven." <sup>1</sup>

THE GOSPEL OF PHILIP (II,3)

Introduced and translated by

WESLEY W. ISENBERG

The Gospel of Philip is a compilation of statements pertaining primarily to the meaning and value of sacraments within the context of a Valentinian conception of the human predicament and life after death.

Like the gospels of the New Testament canon these statements employ a variety of literary types: aphorism, analogy, parable, paraenesis, polemic, narrative dialogue, dominical sayings, biblical exegesis, and dogmatic propositions. However, The Gospel of Philip is not a gospel like one of the New Testament gospels. To be sure, it does provide the occasional word or deed of Jesus. It contains seventeen sayings of Jesus, nine of which are citations and interpretations of Jesus' words already found in the canonical gospels (55,33-34; 57,3-5; 68,8-12; 68,26-27; 72,33-73,1; 77,18; 83,11-13; 84,7-9; 85,29-31). The new sayings (55,37-56,3; 58,10-14; 59,25-27; 63,29-30; 64,2-9; 64,10-12; 67,30-35; and 74,25-27), identified by the formula introducing them ("he said," "the Lord said," or "the Savior said") are brief and enigmatic and are best interpreted from a gnostic perspective. There are also a few stories about Jesus; they are similar to those in the early Christian apocryphal gospels. During a revelation on a mountain he appeared larger than life to his disciples (57,28-58,10). His three female companions were each named Mary (59,6-11), though he had an apparent preference for Mary Magdalene (63,32-36). After he had put seventy-two colors into a single vat in the dye-works of Levi, they coalesced into white (63,25-30). Philip the apostle is said to be the source of the story that Joseph the carpenter made the cross on which his offspring later hung (73,8-15).

These few sayings and stories about Jesus, however, are not set in any kind of narrative framework like one of the New Testament gospels. In fact, The Gospel of Philip is not organized in a way that can be conveniently outlined. Although some continuity is achieved through an association of ideas (cf. 51,29-52,35), a series of contrasts) or by catchwords (cf. 77,15-78,24, the word love), the line of thought is rambling and disjointed. Complete changes of subject are common.

The text gives the impression of logical coherence because of the recurrence of certain themes (e.g., the meaning of the names of Jesus, 56,3-15; 62,7-17; 63,21-24; the need to experience resurrection before one dies, 56,15-20; 56,26-57,22; 66,16-23; 73,1-8; putting on light to escape the hostile powers, 70,5-9; 76,22-77-1; 86,4-10), but this coherence is probably more coincidental than planned.

It is possible that the compiler of this collection purposely disjoined what were once whole paragraphs of thought and distributed the pieces in various places in this work. A clear thought results if one joins 70,5-9 with 76,22-77,1 and 66,7-29, in that order. Indefinite pronouns gain proper antecedents in the process. Similarly 75,13-14 seems to provide the theme amplified by 61,36-62,5. In 63,5-11 one has the analogy prefacing the point made in 70,22-29.

Since The Gospel of Philip is eccentrically arranged, its contents can best be considered by reference to summarizing statements. The statement at 69,1-4 reflects a dominant concern, the mysteries of the bridal chamber, and distinguishes those who may participate – the free men and virgins – from those who may not – the animals, slaves, and defiled women.

Those excluded from the bridal chamber are described entirely in negative terms. We learn, inter alia, that animals and men must remain separate (78,25-28; 75,25-26). But “there are many animals in the world which are in human form” (81,7-8). If one is an “animal” he belongs “outside or below” rather than “above” or “within” (79,5-11). “Slaves” are to be contrasted with “sons” (52,2-6), with “children” (81,12-14) and with the “free” (79,13-18). A “slave” is one who commits sin (77,18), who is ignorant of the inner wickedness which enslaves him (83,18-29; 85,24). “Defiled women” are all women who participate in sexual intercourse, i.e., in “the marriage of defilement,” which is fleshly and lustful (81,34-82,10). Unclean spirits seek to defile men and woman sexually (65,1-23).

“Free men and virgins” are the opposite of “animals, slaves, and defiled women.” A virgin has never been defiled by sexual intercourse (55,27-28; cf. 81,34-82,8). The “free man” does not sin (77,15-18). He neither fears the flesh nor loves it (66,4-6). He is endangered by the deceptions of the archons who seek to enslave him (54,16-31). “Free men and virgins” are those called “Christians” (74,13-16), who possess “the resurrection, the light, the cross, the holy spirit” (74,18-21).

According to this gospel the existential malady of humanity results from the differentiation of the sexes. When Eve was separated from Adam, the original androgynous unity was broken (68,22-26). The purpose of Christ’s coming is to reunite Adam and Eve (70,12-17). Just as a husband and wife unite in the bridal chamber, so also the reunion effected by Christ takes place in a bridal chamber, the sacramental one (70,17-22), where a person receives a foretaste and assurance of ultimate union with an angelic, heavenly counterpart (cf. 58,10-14).

This leads us to another summarizing statement (67,27-30), “The lord did everything in a mystery, a baptism and a chrism and a eucharist and a redemption and a bridal chamber.” The sentence probably describes five stages of a complete initiation, rather than five separate, unrelated sacraments. It is possible that “bridal chamber” is a covering term for the whole initiation, since a particular benefit of one stage of the initiation (e.g., “light,” associated usually with chrism, 67,5-6; 69,12-14; 57,27-28) is also connected with bridal chamber (86,4-11; cf. 70,5-9). In 74,12-24 the person anointed in chrism is said to possess everything – resurrection, light, the cross, the holy spirit – but then the author adds, “the father gave him this in the bridal chamber.” Conversely, what one expects to be connected with bridal chamber appears in reference to eucharist (58,10-14) or baptism and chrism (69,4-14).

The Gospel of Philip does not describe, step by step, the ritual of all or any of the five stages of initiation. It does explain, however, that in baptism one “goes down into the water and comes up” with the gift of the name “Christian,” so that one can say, “I am a Christian” (64,22-31; cf. 77,9-12). The analogy of God as a dyer suggests that baptism was by immersion (61,12-20). The initiate takes off his clothes before entering the water so that he may put on the perfect man as a new garment (75,21-25). That the chrism was a warm perfumed oil is apparent from references to the chrism as fire (67,5-9; 57,27-28) and to the oil as being fragrant (77,36-78,7; 82,15-23). Perhaps a trinitarian formula was used at the moment of anointing (67,19-24). The priest consecrates the bread and the cup for the eucharist (77,2-8). The consecrated cup contains wine mixed with water (75,14-21). The consecrated bread is "bread from heaven," food fit for the initiate (55,10-14). To partake of the bread and the cup is to receive "the flesh and the blood" of Jesus (56,26-57,22; cf. 63,21-24). A further ritual called ransom, or redemption, is mentioned, but no details are given. This stage of the initiation is compared to "the holy of the holy" in the Jerusalem temple and is said to take place in the bridal chamber (69,23-27).

Because of the contents, the eccentric arrangement, and the literary types exhibited, it is likely that The Gospel of Philip is a collection of excerpts mainly from a Christian Gnostic sacramental catechesis. It explains the significance of sacramental rites of initiation, the meaning of sacred names, especially names of Jesus, and provides paraenesis for the life of the initiated. It interprets Biblical passages, particularly from the book of Genesis, makes use of typology, both historical and sacramental, and, as catechists do, argues on the basis of analogy and parable. In these and other ways The Gospel of Philip resembles the orthodox catechisms from the second through fourth centuries.

The title of this text may be derived merely from the fact that Philip is the only apostle named in it (73,8), though Philip, along with Thomas and Matthew, had an eminence among Gnostics as a privileged recipient and custodian of dominical revelation. The Coptic text is undoubtedly a translation of a Greek text which was written perhaps as late as the second half of the third century C.E. Because of the interest in the meaning of certain Syriac words (63,21-23; 56,7-9), its affinities to Eastern sacramental practice and catecheses, and its ascetic ethics, an origin in Syria is probable.

THE GOSPEL OF PHILIP

A Hebrew makes another Hebrew, <sup>30</sup> and such a person is called <sup>1</sup> "proselyte." But a proselyte does not <sup>1</sup> make another proselyte. [. . .] <sup>1</sup> just as they [. . .] <sup>1</sup> and make others like themselves, 52 while [others] simply exist. <sup>1</sup>

A gentile <sup>1</sup> does not die, for he has never lived in order that <sup>1</sup> he may die. He who has believed in the truth <sup>1</sup> has found life, and this one is in danger of dying, for he is alive. <sup>1</sup> Since Christ came the world has been <sup>20</sup> created, the cities adorned, <sup>1</sup> the dead carried out. When we were <sup>1</sup> Hebrews we were orphans and <sup>1</sup> had only our mother, but when we became <sup>1</sup> Christians we had both father and mother. <sup>25</sup>

Names given <sup>1</sup> to the worldly are very deceptive, <sup>25</sup> for they divert our thoughts <sup>1</sup> from what is correct to what is incorrect. <sup>1</sup> Thus one who hears the word "God" does not perceive <sup>1</sup> what is correct, but perceives <sup>1</sup> what is incorrect. So also with "the father" <sup>30</sup> and "the son" and "the holy spirit" and <sup>1</sup> "life" and "light" and "resurrection" <sup>1</sup> and "the church" and all the rest — <sup>1</sup> people do not perceive what is correct but they <sup>1</sup> perceive what is incorrect, [unless] they <sup>35</sup> have come to know what is correct. The [names which are heard] <sup>1</sup> are in the world [...] <sup>54</sup> deceive. If they] were in the eternal realm (aeon), they would <sup>1</sup> at no time be used as names in the world. <sup>1</sup> Nor were they set among <sup>1</sup> worldly things. They have an end in <sup>5</sup> the eternal realm.

But truth brought names into existence <sup>1</sup> in the world for our sakes because it is not possible <sup>15</sup> to learn it without these names. Truth is one single thing; <sup>1</sup> it is many things and for our sakes to <sup>1</sup> teach about this one thing in love through <sup>1</sup> many things. The rulers (archons) wanted to deceive <sup>1</sup> man, since they saw that he had <sup>20</sup> a kinship with those that are <sup>1</sup> truly good. They took the name of those that are good <sup>1</sup> and gave it to those that are not good, <sup>1</sup> so that through the names they might deceive <sup>1</sup> him and bind them to those that are <sup>25</sup> not good. And afterward, what a <sup>1</sup> favor they do for them! They make them be removed <sup>1</sup> from those that are not good and place them <sup>1</sup> among those that are good. These things they knew, <sup>1</sup> for they wanted to <sup>30</sup> take the free man and make him a <sup>1</sup> slave to them forever.

the house <sup>1</sup> of the father. But do not take (anything) in the house <sup>1</sup> of the father nor carry it off."

"Jesus" is a hidden name, <sup>1</sup> "Christ" is a revealed name. <sup>5</sup> For this reason "Jesus" is not particular <sup>1</sup> to any language; rather he is always called <sup>1</sup> by the name "Jesus." While as for "Christ," in Syriac it is "Messiah," <sup>1</sup> in Greek it is "Christ." Certainly <sup>10</sup> all the others have it <sup>1</sup> according to their own language. <sup>1</sup> "The Nazarene" is he who reveals <sup>1</sup> what is hidden. Christ has everything <sup>1</sup> in himself, whether man or angel <sup>15</sup> or mystery, and the father.

Some <sup>1</sup> are afraid lest they rise naked. <sup>1</sup> Because of this they wish to rise <sup>1</sup> in the flesh, and [they] do not know that it is those who <sup>30</sup> wear the [flesh] who are naked. <sup>1</sup> [It is] those who [. . .] to unclothe <sup>1</sup> themselves who are not naked. "Flesh <sup>1</sup> [and blood shall] not inherit the kingdom <sup>1</sup> [of God]" (1 Co 15:50). What is this which will <sup>57</sup> not inherit? This which is on us. But what <sup>1</sup> is this, too, which will inherit? It is that which belongs to Jesus <sup>1</sup> and his blood. Because of this he said, <sup>1</sup> "He who shall not eat my flesh and drink <sup>5</sup> my blood has not life in him" (Jn 6:53). What <sup>1</sup> is it? His flesh is the word, and his blood <sup>1</sup> is the holy spirit. He who has received these has <sup>1</sup> food and he has drink and clothing. <sup>1</sup> I find fault with the others who say <sup>10</sup> that it will not rise. Then both of them <sup>1</sup> are at fault. You (sg.) say <sup>1</sup> that the flesh will not rise. But tell me <sup>1</sup> what will rise, that we may honor you (sg.). <sup>1</sup> You (sg.) say the spirit in the flesh, <sup>15</sup> and it is also this light in the flesh. (But) this too is a matter <sup>1</sup> which is in the flesh, for whatever you (sg.) shall, say, <sup>1</sup> you (sg.) say nothing outside the flesh. <sup>1</sup> It is necessary to rise in this flesh, since <sup>1</sup> everything exists in it. In this world <sup>20</sup> those who put on garments are better than the <sup>1</sup> garments. In the kingdom of heaven the garments <sup>1</sup> are better than those who have put them on.

but <sup>1</sup> in the manner in which [they would] be able to see <sup>1</sup> him. He appeared to [them all. <sup>1</sup> He appeared] to the great <sup>1</sup> as great. He [appeared] <sup>35</sup> to the small as small. He [appeared 58 to the] angels as an angel, and <sup>1</sup> to men as a man. Because of this his <sup>1</sup> word hid itself from everyone. Some <sup>1</sup> indeed saw him, thinking that they were seeing <sup>5</sup> themselves, but when he appeared <sup>1</sup> to his disciples in glory <sup>1</sup> on the mount he was not small. He <sup>1</sup> became great, but he made the disciples <sup>1</sup> great, that they might be able to see <sup>10</sup> him in his greatness.

The heavenly man has many more sons <sup>1</sup> than the earthly man. If the sons of Adam <sup>1</sup> are many, although they die, <sup>20</sup> how much more the sons of the perfect man, <sup>1</sup> they who do not die but are <sup>1</sup> always begotten. The father makes a son, <sup>1</sup> and the son has not the power to make <sup>1</sup> a son. For he who has been begotten has not the power <sup>25</sup> to beget, but the son gets <sup>1</sup> brothers for himself, not sons. All who <sup>1</sup> are begotten in the world <sup>1</sup> are begotten in a natural way, and <sup>1</sup> the others [are nourished] from [the place] whence they have been born. <sup>30</sup> It is from <sup>1</sup> being promised to the heavenly place <sup>1</sup> that man [receives] nourishment. <sup>1</sup> [...] him from the mouth. <sup>1</sup> [And had] the word gone out from that place 59 it would be nourished from the mouth and <sup>1</sup> it would become perfect. For it is <sup>1</sup> by a kiss that the perfect conceive and give birth. For this reason <sup>1</sup> we also kiss one another. <sup>5</sup> We receive conception from the grace which is in <sup>1</sup> one another.

things. <sup>1</sup> This is quite in keeping with the truth. But you (sg.) saw <sup>1</sup> something of that place, and you became <sup>1</sup> those things. You saw the spirit, you <sup>30</sup> became spirit. You saw Christ, you became <sup>1</sup> Christ. You saw [the father, you] shall become father. <sup>1</sup> So [in this place] you see <sup>1</sup> everything and [do] not [see] yourself, <sup>1</sup> but [in that place] you do see yourself – and what <sup>35</sup> you see you shall [become]. <sup>1</sup>

Faith receives, love gives. [No one will be able 62 to receive] without faith. No one will be able to give without <sup>1</sup> love. Because of this, in order that we may indeed receive, <sup>1</sup> we believe, and in order that we may love, we give, since <sup>1</sup> if one gives without love, he has no <sup>5</sup> profit from what he has given. He who <sup>1</sup> has received something other than the lord is still a Hebrew. <sup>1</sup>

The apostles who were before us had these names for him: <sup>1</sup> “Jesus, the Nazorean, Messiah,” that <sup>1</sup> is, “Jesus, the Nazorean, the Christ.” The last <sup>10</sup> name is “Christ,” the first is “Jesus,” that in <sup>1</sup> the middle is “the Nazarene.” “Messiah” <sup>1</sup> has two meanings, both “the Christ” <sup>1</sup> and “the measured.” “Jesus” in Hebrew is <sup>1</sup> “the redemption.” “Nazara” is “the truth.” “The <sup>15</sup> Nazarene,” then, is “the truth.” “Christ” <sup>1</sup> . . . been measured. It is “the Nazarene” and “Jesus” <sup>1</sup> who have been measured.

If you (sg.) say, “I am a Jew,” <sup>1</sup> no one will be moved. If you say, “I am a <sup>1</sup> Roman,” no one will be disturbed. If you say, “I am a Greek, a barbarian, <sup>30</sup> a slave, [a] free man,” no one <sup>1</sup> will be troubled. [If] you [say], “I am a <sup>1</sup> Christian,” the [. . .] will tremble. Would <sup>1</sup> that I might [. . .] like that – the person whose name <sup>1</sup> [. . .] will not be able to endure <sup>35</sup> [hearing].

God is a 63 man-eater. For this reason men are [sacrificed] <sup>1</sup> to him. Before men were sacrificed <sup>1</sup> animals were being sacrificed, since those <sup>1</sup> to whom they were sacrificed were not gods. <sup>5</sup>

Glass decanters and earthenware <sup>1</sup> jugs are both made by means of fire. <sup>1</sup> But if glass decanters break <sup>1</sup> they are done over, for <sup>1</sup> they came into being through a breath. If earthenware jugs <sup>10</sup> break, however, they are destroyed, <sup>1</sup> for they came into being without breath.

As for the Wisdom <sup>1</sup> who is called “the barren,” she <sup>1</sup> is the mother [of the] angels. And the <sup>1</sup> companion of the [...] Mary Magdalene. <sup>1</sup> [...] loved] her <sup>35</sup> more than [all] the disciples [and used to] <sup>1</sup> kiss her [often] on her [...]. <sup>1</sup> The rest of [the disciples 64 ...]. They said to him, <sup>1</sup> “Why do you love her more than all of us?” The <sup>1</sup> savior answered and said to them, <sup>1</sup> “Why do I not love you <sup>5</sup> like her? When a blind man and one who sees <sup>1</sup> are both together in darkness, they are no different from <sup>1</sup> one another. When the light comes, then <sup>1</sup> he who sees will see the light, and <sup>1</sup> he who is blind will remain in darkness.” <sup>10</sup>

If one <sup>1</sup> go down into the water and come up without <sup>1</sup> having received anything and says, “I am a Christian,” <sup>25</sup> he has borrowed the name at interest. But if he <sup>1</sup> receive the holy spirit, he has <sup>1</sup> the name as a gift. He who has received a <sup>1</sup> gift does not have to give it back, but of him who <sup>1</sup> has borrowed it at interest, payment is demanded. This is the way <sup>30</sup> [it happens to one] when he experiences <sup>1</sup> a mystery.

He who comes out of the world <sup>1</sup> and so can no longer be detained on the grounds that he was in <sup>1</sup> the world evidently is above <sup>30</sup> the desire of the [...] and fear. <sup>1</sup> He is master over [...]. He is superior to <sup>1</sup> envy. If [...] comes, they seize <sup>1</sup> him and throttle [him]. And how will [this one] be able to escape the [great ...] powers? <sup>35</sup> How will he be able to [...] <sup>1</sup> There are some [who say], <sup>1</sup> “We are faithful,” in order that [...] 66 the unclean spirits] and the demons. <sup>1</sup> For if they had the holy spirit, <sup>1</sup> no unclean spirit would cleave <sup>1</sup> to them. Fear not the flesh nor <sup>5</sup> love it. If you (sg.) fear it, it will gain mastery <sup>1</sup> over you. If you love it, it will swallow and paralyze you. <sup>1</sup>

It is from water and fire that the soul<sup>1</sup> and the spirit came into being. It is from water and<sup>1</sup> fire and light that the son of<sup>5</sup> the bridal chamber (came into being). The fire is the chrism, the light<sup>1</sup> is the fire. I am not referring to that fire<sup>1</sup> which has no form, but to the other fire whose<sup>1</sup> form is white, which is bright and beautiful,<sup>1</sup> and which gives beauty.

Truth did not come<sup>10</sup> into the world naked, but it came in<sup>1</sup> types and images. The world will not receive truth in<sup>1</sup> any other way. There is a rebirth and an<sup>1</sup> image of rebirth. It is certainly necessary<sup>1</sup> to be born again through the image. Which<sup>15</sup> one? Resurrection. The image must<sup>1</sup> rise again through the image. The bridal chamber and<sup>1</sup> the image must enter through the image into<sup>1</sup> the truth: this is the restoration. Not only must those who produce the name of<sup>20</sup> the father and the son and the holy spirit do so,<sup>1</sup> but <those who> have produced them for you. If one does not acquire<sup>1</sup> them, the name (“Christian”) will also be taken from him.<sup>1</sup> But one receives the unction of the [...] <sup>1</sup> of the power of the cross. This power the apostles<sup>25</sup> called “the right and the left.”<sup>1</sup> For this person is no longer a Christian but<sup>1</sup> a Christ.

Before Christ some<sup>1</sup> came from a place they were no longer<sup>1</sup> able to enter, and they went where they were no longer<sup>20</sup> able to come out. Then Christ came.<sup>1</sup> Those who went in he brought out, and<sup>1</sup> those who went out he brought in.

When<sup>1</sup> Eve was still in Adam death did not exist.<sup>1</sup> When she was separated from him death came into being.<sup>25</sup> If he enters again and attains his former self,<sup>1</sup> death will be no more.

“My God, my God, <sup>1</sup> why, O lord, have you forsaken me?” (Mk 15:34 and parallels). It was <sup>1</sup> on the cross that he said these words, for he had departed from that place.

There were three buildings specifically for <sup>15</sup> sacrifice in Jerusalem. The one <sup>1</sup> facing west was called <sup>1</sup> “the holy.” Another facing <sup>1</sup> south was called “the holy of <sup>1</sup> the holy.” The third facing <sup>20</sup> east was called “the holy <sup>1</sup> of the holies,” the place where only the high priest <sup>1</sup> enters. Baptism <sup>1</sup> is “the holy” building. Redemption is “the holy <sup>1</sup> of the holy.” “The holy of the holies” <sup>25</sup> is the bridal chamber. Baptism includes <sup>1</sup> the resurrection [and the] redemption; the redemption <sup>1</sup> (takes place) in the bridal chamber. But the bridal chamber <sup>1</sup> is in that which is superior to [...] <sup>1</sup> you (sg.) will not find [...] <sup>30</sup> are those who pray [...] <sup>1</sup> Jerusalem. [...] <sup>1</sup> Jerusalem who [...] <sup>1</sup> Jerusalem, [...] <sup>1</sup> those called “the holy <sup>35</sup> of the holies” [...] the] <sup>1</sup> veil was rent [...] <sup>1</sup> bridal chamber except the image [...] 70 above. Because of this its <sup>1</sup> veil was rent from top to bottom. For it was fitting for some <sup>1</sup> from below to go upward. <sup>5</sup>

Not only <sup>1</sup> will they be unable to detain the perfect man, <sup>1</sup> but they will not be able to see him, for if they see him <sup>25</sup> they will detain him. There is no other way <sup>1</sup> for a person to acquire this quality except by putting on the perfect light <sup>1</sup> [and] he too becoming perfect light. He who has [put it] on will enter <sup>30</sup> [...]. This is the perfect <sup>1</sup> [...] that we [...] become <sup>1</sup> [...] before we leave <sup>1</sup> [...]. Whoever receives everything <sup>1</sup> [...] hither [...] be able <sup>35</sup> [...] that place, but will <sup>1</sup> [...] the middle] as imperfect. 77 Only Jesus knows the end of this person. <sup>1</sup>

The priest is completely holy, down <sup>1</sup> to his very body. For if he has taken the bread, <sup>1</sup> he will consecrate it. Or the cup <sup>5</sup> or anything else that he gets, <sup>1</sup> he will consecrate. Then how will he not consecrate <sup>1</sup> the body also?

The human being has intercourse with the human being. <sup>1</sup> The horse has intercourse with the horse, the ass <sup>1</sup> with the ass. Members of a race usually have associated <sup>1</sup> [with] those of like race. So spirit <sup>1</sup> mingles with spirit, and thought <sup>30</sup> consorts with thought, <sup>1</sup> and [light] shares <sup>1</sup> [with light. If you (sg.) are born a human being, <sup>1</sup> it is [the human being] who will love you. If you become <sup>1</sup> [a spirit], it is the spirit which will be joined to you. If you become <sup>35</sup> thought, it is thought which will mingle 79 with you. If you become light, <sup>1</sup> it is the light which will share <sup>1</sup> with you. If you become one of those who belong above, <sup>1</sup> it is those who belong above who will rest <sup>5</sup> upon you. If you become horse <sup>1</sup> or ass or bull or dog or sheep <sup>1</sup> or another of the animals which are outside <sup>1</sup> or below, then <sup>1</sup> neither human being nor spirit <sup>10</sup> nor thought nor light will be able to love you. Neither <sup>1</sup> those who belong above nor those who belong within <sup>1</sup> will be able to rest in you, <sup>1</sup> and you have no part in them.

define. How shall we be able to accomplish <sup>1</sup> such a great thing? How will he give everyone comfort? <sup>1</sup> Above all, it is not proper <sup>1</sup> to cause anyone distress – whether the person is great or small, <sup>10</sup> unbeliever or believer – and then give comfort <sup>1</sup> only to those who take satisfaction in good deeds. <sup>1</sup> Some find it advantageous to give <sup>1</sup> comfort to the one who has fared well. He who does <sup>1</sup> good deeds cannot give comfort <sup>15</sup> to such people; for he does not seize whatever he likes. <sup>1</sup> He is unable to cause distress, <sup>1</sup> however, since he does not afflict them. To be sure, the one who <sup>1</sup> fares well sometimes causes people distress – <sup>1</sup> not that he intends to do so; rather it is their own wickedness <sup>20</sup> which is responsible for their distress. He who possesses <sup>1</sup> the qualities (of the perfect man) bestows joy upon the good. <sup>1</sup> Some, however, are terribly distressed by all this. <sup>1</sup>

There was a householder who had <sup>1</sup> every conceivable thing, be it son or slave or <sup>25</sup> cattle or dog or pig or corn <sup>1</sup> [or] barley or chaff or grass or <sup>1</sup> [...] or meat and acorn. [Now he was] a sensible fellow <sup>1</sup> and he knew what the food of each <sup>1</sup> one was. He served the children bread <sup>30</sup> [...]. He served the slaves <sup>1</sup> [...] and meal. And <sup>1</sup> [he threw barley] and chaff and grass to the cattle. <sup>1</sup> He threw bones to [the] dogs, <sup>1</sup> and to the pigs he threw acorns 81 and slop. Compare the disciple <sup>1</sup> of God: if he is a sensible fellow he <sup>1</sup> understands what discipleship is all about. The <sup>1</sup> bodily forms will not deceive him, <sup>5</sup> but he will look at the condition <sup>1</sup> of the soul of each one and speak <sup>1</sup> with him. There are many animals in the world <sup>1</sup> which are in human form. When <sup>1</sup> he identifies them, to the swine he will throw <sup>10</sup> acorns, to the cattle he will throw <sup>1</sup> barley and chaff and grass, to the <sup>1</sup> dogs he will throw bones. To the slaves <sup>1</sup> he will give only the elementary lessons, to the children he will give <sup>1</sup> the complete instruction.

There is the son of man <sup>15</sup> and there is the son of the son of man. <sup>1</sup> The lord is the son of man, <sup>1</sup> and the son of the son of <sup>1</sup> man is he who creates through the son <sup>1</sup> of man. The son of man received <sup>20</sup> from God the capacity to create. He also has the ability <sup>1</sup> to beget. He who has received <sup>1</sup> the ability to create is a creature. He who has received <sup>1</sup> the ability to beget is an offspring. He who creates cannot <sup>1</sup> beget. He who begets also has power to create. <sup>25</sup> Now they say, “He who creates begets.” <sup>1</sup> But his so-called “offspring” is merely a creature. Because of [...] <sup>1</sup> of birth, they are not his offspring but [...]. <sup>1</sup> He who creates works openly <sup>1</sup> and he himself is visible. <sup>30</sup> He who begets begets in [private] <sup>1</sup> and he himself is hidden, since [...] <sup>1</sup> image. Also, he who creates [creates] <sup>1</sup> openly. But one who begets [begets] <sup>1</sup> children in private. No [one can] <sup>35</sup> know when [the husband] 82 and the wife have intercourse with one another <sup>1</sup> except the two of them. Indeed marriage in the <sup>1</sup> world is a mystery for those who have taken <sup>1</sup> a wife. If there is a hidden quality to the marriage of defilement, <sup>5</sup> how much more is the undefiled marriage <sup>1</sup> a true mystery! It is not fleshly <sup>1</sup> but pure. It belongs not to desire <sup>1</sup> but to the will. It belongs not to the darkness <sup>1</sup> or the night but to the day and <sup>10</sup> the light. If a marriage is open to the public, <sup>1</sup> it has become prostitution, and the bride <sup>1</sup> plays the harlot not only when she is impregnated by another man <sup>1</sup> but even if she slips out of her bedroom <sup>1</sup> and is seen. <sup>15</sup> Let her show herself only to her father and her <sup>1</sup> mother and to the friend of the bridegroom and <sup>1</sup> the sons of the bridegroom. These are permitted <sup>1</sup> to enter every day into the bridal chamber. <sup>1</sup> But let the others yearn just <sup>20</sup> to listen to her voice and to enjoy <sup>1</sup> her ointment, and let them feed from the <sup>1</sup> crumbs that fall from the table, like the <sup>1</sup> dogs. Bridegrooms and <sup>1</sup> brides belong to the bridal chamber. No one shall be able <sup>25</sup> to see the bridegroom with the bride unless <sup>1</sup> [he become] such a one.

tive. Ignorance <sup>1</sup> is the mother of [all evil]. <sup>1</sup> Ignorance will result in [death, because] <sup>1</sup> those that come from [ignorance] <sup>1</sup> neither were nor [are] <sup>35</sup> nor shall be. [...] 84 will be perfect when all the truth <sup>1</sup> is revealed. For truth is like <sup>1</sup> ignorance: while it is hidden it rests <sup>1</sup> in itself, but when it is revealed <sup>5</sup> and is recognized, it is praised inasmuch as <sup>1</sup> it is stronger than ignorance and error. <sup>1</sup> It gives freedom. The word said, <sup>1</sup> "If you (pl.) know the truth, <sup>1</sup> the truth will make you free" (Jn 8:32). <sup>10</sup> Ignorance is a slave. Knowledge is <sup>1</sup> freedom. If we know the truth, <sup>1</sup> we shall find the fruits of the truth within <sup>1</sup> us. If we are joined to it, it will bring our fulfillment. <sup>1</sup>

At the present time we have the manifest things <sup>15</sup> of creation. We say, <sup>1</sup> "The strong who are held in high regard are great people. <sup>1</sup> And the weak who are despised are the obscure." Contrast the manifest things <sup>1</sup> of truth: they are weak and <sup>1</sup> despised, while the hidden things are strong and <sup>20</sup> held in high regard. The mysteries of truth are <sup>1</sup> revealed, though in type and image. The bridal chamber, <sup>1</sup> however, remains hidden. It is the holy in <sup>1</sup> the holy. The veil at first <sup>1</sup> concealed how God controlled <sup>25</sup> the creation, but when the veil is rent <sup>1</sup> and the things inside are revealed, <sup>1</sup> this house will be left <sup>1</sup> desolate, or rather will be <sup>1</sup> [destroyed]. And the whole (inferior) godhead will flee <sup>30</sup> [from] here but not into the holies <sup>1</sup> [of the] holies, for it will not be able to mix with the <sup>1</sup> unmixed [light] and the <sup>1</sup> [flawless] fullness, but will be under the wings of the cross <sup>1</sup> [and under] its arms. This ark will be <sup>35</sup> [their] salvation when the flood 85 of water surges over them. If <sup>1</sup> some belong to the order of the priesthood <sup>1</sup> they will be able to go <sup>1</sup> within the veil with the high priest. <sup>5</sup> For this reason the veil was not <sup>1</sup> rent at the top only, since it <sup>1</sup> would have been open only to those above; nor <sup>1</sup> was it rent at the bottom only, since <sup>1</sup> it would have been revealed only to those below. <sup>10</sup> But it was rent from top to bottom. Those <sup>1</sup> above opened to us the things below, <sup>1</sup> in order that we may go in to the secret <sup>1</sup> of the truth. This truly is what is <sup>1</sup> held in high regard (and) what is strong! But we shall go in there <sup>15</sup> by means of lowly types and forms of weakness. <sup>1</sup> They are lowly indeed when compared with the perfect glory. <sup>1</sup> There is glory which surpasses glory. There is power which surpasses <sup>1</sup> power. Therefore the perfect things have opened <sup>1</sup> to us, together with the hidden things of truth. The holies <sup>20</sup> of the holies were revealed, and <sup>1</sup> the bridal chamber invited us in.

As long <sup>1</sup> as it is hidden, wickedness is indeed ineffectual, but <sup>1</sup> it has not been removed from the midst of the seed of the holy spirit. <sup>1</sup> They are slaves of evil. But when <sup>25</sup> it is revealed, then the <sup>1</sup> perfect light will flow out on every <sup>1</sup> one. And all those who are in it will [receive the chrism]. <sup>1</sup> Then the slaves will be free [and] <sup>1</sup> the captives ransomed. “[Every] plant [which] <sup>30</sup> my father who is in heaven [has not] planted [will be] <sup>1</sup> plucked out” (Mt 15:13). Those who are separated will unite [. . .] and <sup>1</sup> will be filled. Every one who will [enter] <sup>1</sup> the bridal chamber will kindle the [light], for [. . .] <sup>1</sup> just as in the marriages which are [. . .] happen <sup>35</sup> at night. That fire [. . .] only 86 at night and is put out. But the mysteries <sup>1</sup> of that marriage are perfected rather in <sup>1</sup> the day and the light. Neither that day <sup>1</sup> nor its light ever sets. If anyone becomes a son <sup>5</sup> of the bridal chamber, he will receive the light. <sup>1</sup> If anyone does not receive it while he is here, he will not be able to receive it <sup>1</sup> in the other place. He who will receive that light <sup>1</sup> will not be seen, nor can he be detained. <sup>1</sup> And none shall be able to torment <sup>10</sup> a person like this even while he dwells <sup>1</sup> in the world. And again when he leaves <sup>1</sup> the world he has already received the truth in <sup>1</sup> the images. The world has become the eternal realm (aeon), <sup>1</sup> for the eternal realm is fullness for him. <sup>15</sup> This is the way it is: it is revealed <sup>1</sup> to him alone, not hidden in the darkness and the <sup>1</sup> night, but hidden in a perfect day <sup>1</sup> and a holy light.

THE HYPOSTASIS OF THE ARCHONS (II,4)

ROGER A. BULLARD

BENTLEY LAYTON

The Hypostasis of the Archons ("Reality of the Rulers") is an anonymous tractate presenting an esoteric interpretation of Genesis 1-6, partially in the form of a revelation discourse between an angel and a questioner. While the treatise illustrates a wide-ranging Hellenistic syncretism, the most evident components are Jewish, although in its present form The Hypostasis of the Archons shows clearly Christian features and thus can be considered a Christian work. Its theological perspective is a vigorous Gnosticism of perhaps Sethian affiliation.

It is generally assumed that The Hypostasis of the Archons, like all the other Nag Hammadi texts, is a translation from Greek. The possibility of a Coptic pun on the phrase "beside me" (Is 46:9) and "blind" (Hyp. Arch. 86,30; 94,22), as well as the description of animal-headed Rulers (87,29) suggests that the provenance may have been Egypt.

The document is tentatively dated in the third century C.E. It is obviously no later than the fourth century, to which the Nag Hammadi collection is dated. But the well-developed gnostic treatment of the material in this document as well as the midrashic handling of scriptural material argue against an early date. Further, the philosophical orientation of 96,11-14 has been identified as typical of third-century Neoplatonism.

The questions of date and provenance are complicated by the possibility that the work as it stands is a result of a Christian editor's having combined a narrative source (interpreting parts of Genesis) with a revelation discourse concerned with soteriology and eschatology, and placing them both within a Christian framework.

The Hypostasis of the Archons is certainly the work of a gnostic teacher instructing an audience. While using previous material, he writes from a position of authority, even in the angelic revelation where a character in the discourse is ostensibly speaking. The audience is a Christian Gnostic community, aware of material of both testaments and accepting the authority of Paul. They are familiar with Jewish literary traditions, including apocalyptic. A traditional function of apocalyptic – providing reassurance for an insecure community – is operative here. The Hypostasis of the Archons is thus an esoteric work, written for a self-conscious community which probably felt pressure from a Christian community that defined itself as orthodox and others as heretical.

There is clearly some literary relationship between The Hypostasis of the Archons and On the Origin of the World, which follows this tractate in Codex II.

Both seem to draw from common sources. The latter mentions a Book or Books of Norea (102,11, 24-25), to which Epiphanius also refers. It has been suggested that The Hypostasis of the Archons is to be identified with that source, but without compelling evidence.

After a brief introduction quoting “the great apostle” Paul, The Hypostasis of the Archons offers its mythological narrative. The main characters in the mythological drama which unfolds include the blind ruler Samael, also called Sakla (“fool”) and Yaldabaoth, who blasphemes against the divine; the spiritual Woman, who rouses Adam and outwits the rapacious rulers; the Snake, the Instructor, who counsels the man and woman to eat of the fruit forbidden by the rulers; and Norea, the daughter of Eve, a virgin pure in character and exalted in knowledge. On page 93 of the tractate the focus changes somewhat: on center stage now is the great angel Eleleth, who reveals to Norea the origin and destiny of the archontic powers.

The Hypostasis of the Archons proclaims, as its title indicates, the reality of the archontic rulers: far from being merely fictitious, imaginary powers, the archons are all too real. These rulers indeed exist. This is a grim reality for the Christian Gnostics, who define their own spiritual nature in opposition to that of the ruling and enslaving authorities. Yet, as this document promises, the Christian Gnostics can have hope, for their spiritual nature will be more lasting than the archons, and their heavenly destiny will be more glorious. In the end the rulers will perish, and the Gnostics, the children of the light, will know the Father and praise him.

THE HYPOSTASIS OF THE ARCHONS

They said, “[Come, let] us <sup>1</sup> lay hold of it by means of the form that we have modelled, [so that] <sup>35</sup> it may see its male counterpart [. . .], 88 and we may seize it with the form that we have modelled” – not <sup>1</sup> understanding the force of God, because of <sup>1</sup> their powerlessness. And he breathed into <sup>1</sup> his face; and the man came to have a soul (and remained) <sup>5</sup> upon the ground many days. But they could not <sup>1</sup> make him arise because of their powerlessness. <sup>1</sup> Like storm winds they persisted (in blowing), that they might <sup>1</sup> try to capture that image, which had appeared <sup>1</sup> to them in the waters. And they did not know <sup>10</sup> the identity of its power.

They <sup>1</sup> [. . .] this. They do not understand what <sup>1</sup> [they have said] to him; rather, by the father's will, 89 they said this in such a way that he <sup>1</sup> might (in fact) eat, and that Adam might <not> regard them as would a man of an exclusively <sup>1</sup> material nature.

And the spirit-endowed woman <sup>1</sup> came to him and spoke with him, saying, <sup>1</sup> "Arise, Adam." And when he saw her, <sup>1</sup> he said, "It is you who have given me life; <sup>15</sup> you will be called 'Mother of the living.' <sup>1</sup> – For it is she who is my mother. It is she who is the physician, <sup>1</sup> and the woman, and she who has given birth."

And the snake, the instructor, said, "With death <sup>1</sup> you (pl.) shall not die; for it was out of jealousy <sup>1</sup> that he said this to you (pl.). Rather your (pl.) eyes <sup>1</sup> shall open and you (pl.) shall come to be like gods, recognizing <sup>10</sup> evil and good." <sup>1</sup> And the female instructing principle was taken away from the snake, <sup>1</sup> and she left it behind merely a thing of the earth. <sup>1</sup>

And the carnal woman took from the tree <sup>1</sup> and ate; and she gave to her husband as well as herself; and <sup>15</sup> these beings that possessed only a soul, ate. And their imperfection <sup>1</sup> became apparent in their lack of acquaintance; and <sup>1</sup> they recognized that they were naked of the spiritual element, <sup>1</sup> and took fig leaves and bound them <sup>1</sup> upon their loins.

Then the chief ruler came; <sup>20</sup> and he said, "Adam! Where are you?" – for he did not <sup>1</sup> understand what had happened.

And Adam <sup>1</sup> said, "I heard your voice and was <sup>1</sup> afraid because I was naked; and I hid." <sup>1</sup>

The ruler said, "Why did you (sg.) hide, unless it is <sup>25</sup> because you (sg.) have eaten from the tree <sup>1</sup> from which alone I commanded you (sg.) not to eat? <sup>1</sup> And you (sg.) have eaten!" <sup>1</sup>

Adam said, "The woman that you gave me, <sup>1</sup> [she gave] to me and I ate." And the arrogant <sup>30</sup> ruler cursed the woman.

The woman <sup>1</sup> said, "It was the snake that led me astray and I ate." <sup>1</sup> [They turned] to the snake and cursed its shadowy reflection, <sup>1</sup> [...] powerless, not comprehending <sup>1</sup> [that] it was a form they themselves had modelled. From that day, 91 the snake came to be under the curse of the authorities; <sup>1</sup> until the all-powerful man was to come, <sup>1</sup> that curse fell upon the snake.

Now afterwards, <sup>1</sup> she bore Cain, their son; and Cain <sup>1</sup> cultivated the land. Thereupon he knew his <sup>1</sup> wife; again becoming pregnant, she bore Abel; and Abel <sup>15</sup> was a herdsman of sheep. Now Cain brought <sup>1</sup> in from the crops of his field, but <sup>1</sup> Abel brought in an offering (from) among <sup>1</sup> his lambs. God looked upon the <sup>1</sup> votive offerings of Abel; but he did not accept the votive offerings <sup>20</sup> of Cain. And carnal Cain <sup>1</sup> pursued Abel his brother.

Again Eve became pregnant, and she bore [Norea]. <sup>35</sup> And she said, “He has begotten on [me a] virgin 92 as an assistance [for] many generations <sup>1</sup> of mankind.” She is the virgin whom the <sup>1</sup> forces did not defile.

Then mankind began <sup>1</sup> to multiply and improve.

But when the ruler of the forces <sup>1</sup> came to know of their decision, he said to Noah, <sup>10</sup> “Make yourself an ark from some wood <sup>1</sup> that does not rot and hide in it – you <sup>1</sup> and your children and the beasts and <sup>1</sup> the birds of heaven from small to large – and set it <sup>1</sup> upon Mount Sir.”

Then Orea came <sup>15</sup> to him wanting to board the ark. <sup>1</sup> And when he would not let her, she blew upon the <sup>1</sup> ark and caused it to be consumed by fire. Again he <sup>1</sup> made the ark, for a second time.

But Norea turned to <sup>1</sup> them and said to them, “It is you who are the rulers of <sup>1</sup> the darkness; you are accursed. And you did not know <sup>1</sup> my mother; instead it was your female <sup>25</sup> counterpart that you knew. For I am not your descendant; <sup>1</sup> rather it is from the world above that I am come.” <sup>1</sup>

But Norea turned, with the might of <sup>1</sup> [. . .]; and in a loud voice [she] cried out <sup>1</sup> [up to] the holy one, the God of the entirety, <sup>93</sup> “Rescue me from the rulers of unrighteousness <sup>1</sup> and save me from their clutches – forthwith!”

Norea said, "Who are you?"<sup>1</sup>

The rulers of unrighteousness had withdrawn from<sup>1</sup> her. He said, "It is I who am Eleleth,<sup>1</sup> sagacity, the great angel, who stands<sup>10</sup> in the presence of the holy spirit.<sup>1</sup> I have been sent to speak with you and<sup>1</sup> save you from the grasp of the lawless. And I<sup>1</sup> shall teach you about your root."

"Opening his<sup>20</sup> eyes he saw a vast quantity of matter without limit;<sup>1</sup> and he became arrogant, saying, 'It is I who am God, and there<sup>1</sup> is none other apart from me.'

– “You, together with your offspring, are from <sup>20</sup> the primeval father; <sup>1</sup> from above, out of the imperishable light, <sup>1</sup> their souls are come. Thus the authorities <sup>1</sup> cannot approach them because of <sup>1</sup> the spirit of truth present within them; <sup>25</sup> and all who have become acquainted with this way <sup>1</sup> exist deathless in the midst <sup>1</sup> of dying mankind. Still that sown element (sperma) <sup>1</sup> will not become known now.

He said <sup>1</sup> to me, “Until the moment when the true man, <sup>1</sup> within a modelled form, reveals the existence of (?) <sup>35</sup> [the spirit of] truth, which the father has sent. 97

Of the Rulers

ON THE ORIGIN OF THE WORLD (II,5 AND XIII,2)

Introduced by

HANS-GEHARD BETHGE

Translated by

HANS-GEHARD BETHGE, BENTLEY LAYTON,
SOCIETAS COPTICA HIERSOLYMITANA

The text of this tractate is quite well preserved. It is a compendium of central gnostic ideas, especially on cosmogony, anthropogony, and eschatology. Based on various sources and traditions, the treatise is in part presented in a semi-scholarly style, with numerous etiologies and etymologies. It is in the form of an apologetic tract designed for public effectiveness in attracting adherents. Earthly history, but also the presentation of the world above, including its development, are largely ignored. On the basis of the unnamed and unknown author's intention, stated at the beginning and then carried through in the text itself, scholarship has assigned the document the hypothetical title On the Origin of the World.

There are good reasons to assume that we have to do with a conscious, well-planned literary composition without extensive secondary alterations, rather than with the product of a rather long process in the transmission of tradition. The early fourth century could possibly be the time of composition. The remarkable mixture of various kinds of Jewish views, Manichaean elements, Christian ideas, Greek philosophical conceptions, and figures of Greek or Hellenistic mythology, magic, and astrology, as well as a clear emphasis on Egyptian thought, all point to Alexandria as the probable place of origin for the Greek original of On the Origin of the World. The process of translating into Coptic may have involved several stages. The seemingly corrupt condition of many passages that invite emendation, along with other difficult, often barely intelligible, parts could be explained by assuming that the text as it lies before us still represents a provisional stage in the process of translation. On the Origin of the World would thus be an "opus imperfectum" (B. Layton).

The author uses various sources and traditions, some not, that are difficult to define more closely in terms of literary criticism, much less to reconstruct. In the process there are on occasion tensions, unevenness, and contradictions, since at least a few of these traditions or works presuppose a very special system all their own, or contain other tendencies, e.g., Sethian, or Valentinian, or even Manichaean. On the Origin of the World itself offers no closed system of its own, nor does it represent one of the known gnostic systems. The author works with direct or indirect quotations, references, summaries, explanations, and etymologies, which stand in sharp contrast to the otherwise dominant narrative style. This way of working, defending one's own view by appeal or reference to other works, is intended as a demonstration of a substantive and convincing argumentation. On the Origin of the World has many parallels with The Hypothesis of the Archons, indicating a close relation between the two texts. Yet the dissimilar nature of both documents, the diverging world views, and numerous differences in details, indicate that direct literary relationships are rather improbable. The parallelism probably results from the use of the same source material.

The cosmogony and anthropogony that follow upon the semi-philosophical beginning are in part oriented to Genesis 1-2, but beyond that to concepts such as those known from Jubilees or the Enoch literature. In general, characteristically Jewish influences dominate, e.g., in the angelology, demonology, and eschatology, as well as in etymologies. The gnostic reinterpretation of the received material varies considerably. It extends from complete reevaluation, e.g., in the case of the demiurge's presumption (making use of Is 45:5; 46:9 LXX), and what took place in Genesis 3, on to relatively unbroken appropriation of Jewish ideas and motifs, such as the presentation of paradise.

The primordial history emphasizes the creation of the earthly man by the Archons, in connection with the doctrine of the primal man, which to be sure is hard to understand, due to varying motifs and heterogeneous concepts. On the other hand, the primordial history initiates already the story of redemption on the part of Pistis Sophia or Sophia Zoe, who are encountered or act in various ways. In this complex soteriology, however, Jesus Christ has no central function, but rather a marginal role. For these reasons On the Origin of the World belongs to the gnostic Nag Hammadi texts that are essentially non-Christian.

On the Origin of the World is oriented towards universal eschatology. This is shown by the many allusions to the end, as well as by the broad presentation of the final events with a massive appropriation of thoughts, terms, and motifs from apocalypticism. The final state, brought about by the higher world, distinguishing the redemption of the gnostics from the destruction of the creation together with its creator, surpasses the primal condition, and renders impossible a repetition of events such as these presented in On the Origin of the World.

On the Origin of the World is a significant gnostic work. We attain through this relatively long document a good insight into an educated author's thinking, work habits, and argumentation on fundamental themes. Furthermore, On the Origin of the World shows to what a high degree and with what freedom and authority a gnostic author makes use of foreign, even non-gnostic and heterogeneous thoughts. It thus attests the greater importance ascribed to the gnostic stance toward the world and existence than to its mythological formulation. On the Origin of the World can help us understand how the gnostic world view, in debate with other intellectual currents, but also making use of them, could maintain itself or perhaps at times even win the field.

ON THE ORIGIN OF THE WORLD

Seeing that everybody, gods of the world <sup>25</sup> and mankind, says that nothing <sup>1</sup> existed prior to chaos, I <sup>1</sup> in distinction to them shall demon-

Eloaios: his feminine name is Jealousy. <sup>1</sup>

These are the [seven] forces <sup>1</sup> of the seven heavens of [chaos]. And they were born <sup>1</sup> androgynous, consistent with the immortal pattern <sup>1</sup> that existed before them, according to the wish <sup>5</sup> of Pistis: so that the likeness of what had <sup>1</sup> existed since the beginning might reign to <sup>1</sup> the end.

forces<sup>1</sup> and all their administration, the prime parent<sup>5</sup> became insolent. And he was honored by<sup>1</sup> all the army of angels. And<sup>1</sup> all the gods and their angels<sup>1</sup> gave blessing and honor to him. And for his part he<sup>1</sup> was delighted and continually boasted,<sup>10</sup> saying to them,<sup>1</sup> "I have no need of anyone." He said,<sup>1</sup> "It is I who am God, and there is no other one that exists<sup>1</sup> apart from me." And when he said this, he sinned against<sup>1</sup> all the immortal beings who give answer. And they laid it<sup>15</sup> to his charge.

there. <sup>1</sup> And thus the number <sup>1</sup> of the six authorities of chaos was achieved. Then Death, <sup>1</sup> being androgynous, mingled with his (own) nature <sup>1</sup> and begot seven androgynous offspring. <sup>30</sup> These are the names of the male ones: Jealousy, Wrath, <sup>1</sup> Tears, Sighing, Suffering, Lamentation, <sup>1</sup> Bitter Weeping. And these are the names <sup>1</sup> of the female ones: Wrath, Pain, Lust, <sup>1</sup> Sighing, Curse, Bitterness, Quarrelsomeness. <sup>35</sup> They had intercourse with one another, and each <sup>1</sup> one begot seven, so that they amount to 107 forty-nine androgynous demons. <sup>1</sup>

And having seen the likeness <sup>1</sup> of Pistis in the waters, the prime parent grieved very much, <sup>20</sup> especially when he heard her voice, <sup>1</sup> like the first voice that had <sup>1</sup> called to him out of the waters. And <sup>1</sup> when he knew that it was she who had given a name <sup>1</sup> to him, he sighed. He was ashamed on account of his <sup>25</sup> transgression. And when he had come to know in truth <sup>1</sup> that an immortal man <sup>1</sup> of light had been existing before him, he was greatly disturbed; <sup>1</sup> for he had previously said <sup>1</sup> to all the gods and their angels, <sup>30</sup> "It is I who am god. No other one <sup>1</sup> exists apart from me." For he had been afraid <sup>1</sup> they might know that another <sup>1</sup> had been in existence before him, and might condemn him. But he, being devoid of understanding, <sup>35</sup> scoffed at the condemnation <sup>1</sup> and acted recklessly. He said, "If 108 anything has existed before me, let it appear, <sup>1</sup> so that we may see its light."

And <sup>1</sup> immediately, behold! Light came out of the eighth heaven <sup>1</sup> above and passed through all of the heavens <sup>5</sup> of the earth. When the prime parent saw that the light was beautiful as it radiated, <sup>1</sup> he was amazed. And he was greatly ashamed. As <sup>1</sup> that light appeared, a human likeness <sup>1</sup> appeared within it, very wonderful. <sup>10</sup> And no one saw it except for <sup>1</sup> the prime parent and Pronoia, <sup>1</sup> who was with him. Yet its light appeared <sup>1</sup> to all the forces of the heavens. Because of this <sup>1</sup> they were all troubled by it.

Out of that first blood <sup>1</sup> Eros appeared, being androgynous. <sup>1</sup> His masculinity is Himireris (i.e., Himeros), being <sup>1</sup> fire from the light. His femininity, <sup>5</sup> that is with him – a soul of blood – is from <sup>1</sup> the stuff of Pronoia. He is very lovely <sup>1</sup> in his beauty, having a charm beyond <sup>1</sup> all the creatures of chaos. Then all the gods <sup>1</sup> and their angels, when they beheld <sup>10</sup> Eros, became enamored of him. And appearing <sup>1</sup> in all of them he set them afire: just as <sup>1</sup> from a single lamp many lamps <sup>1</sup> are lit, and one and the same light is there, but the lamp <sup>1</sup> is not diminished. And in this way Eros <sup>15</sup> became dispersed in all the created beings of chaos, <sup>1</sup> and was not diminished. Just as from <sup>1</sup> the midpoint of light and darkness <sup>1</sup> Eros appeared and at the midpoint <sup>1</sup> of the angels and mankind <sup>20</sup> the sexual union of Eros was consummated, so <sup>1</sup> out of the earth the primal pleasure blossomed. <sup>1</sup> The woman followed earth. <sup>1</sup> And marriage followed woman. <sup>1</sup> Birth followed marriage. Dissolution <sup>25</sup> followed birth.

color <sup>1</sup> of the tree of life is like the sun. And <sup>15</sup> its branches are beautiful. Its leaves are like <sup>1</sup> those of the cypress. Its fruit is like <sup>1</sup> a bunch of grapes when it is white. Its height <sup>1</sup> goes as far as heaven. And next to it (is) the tree <sup>1</sup> of acquaintance (gnosis), having the strength <sup>20</sup> of God. Its glory is like the moon <sup>1</sup> when fully radiant. And its branches are beautiful. <sup>1</sup> Its leaves are like fig leaves. <sup>1</sup> Its fruit is like a good appetizing date. <sup>1</sup> And this tree is to the north of Paradise, <sup>25</sup> so that it might arouse the souls from <sup>1</sup> the torpor of the demons, in order that they might approach <sup>1</sup> the tree of life and eat of <sup>1</sup> its fruit and so condemn the <sup>1</sup> authorities and their angels.

For <sup>1</sup> this reason she is held to have said: <sup>1</sup>

“It is I who am the part of my mother;
 And it is I who am <sup>1</sup> the mother;
 It is I who am the wife;
 It is I who am the virgin; <sup>10</sup>
 It is I who am pregnant;
 It is I who am the midwife;
 It is I who am the one that <sup>1</sup> comforts pains of travail;
 It is my husband who bore me;
 And <sup>1</sup> it is I who am his mother,
 And it is he who is my father <sup>1</sup> and my lord.
 It is he who is my force;
 What he desires, <sup>1</sup> he says with reason.
 I am in the process of becoming.
 Yet <sup>15</sup> I have borne a man as lord.”

Now these through the will <sup>1</sup> (. . .). The souls <sup>1</sup> that were going to enter the modelled forms of the authorities were manifested to Sabaoth and his Christ. <sup>1</sup> And regarding these the holy voice <sup>1</sup> said, “Multiply and improve! Be lord <sup>20</sup> over all creatures.” And it is they who were <sup>1</sup> taken captive, according to their destinies, by <sup>1</sup> the prime parent. And thus <sup>1</sup> they were shut into the prisons of the modelled forms. <sup>1</sup> Or: at the consummation of the age. And at that time, <sup>25</sup> the prime parent <sup>1</sup> then rendered an opinion concerning man to those who were with him. <sup>1</sup> Then each of them cast <sup>1</sup> his sperm into the midst of the navel of <sup>1</sup> the earth. Since that day, the seven rulers <sup>30</sup> have fashioned man with his body <sup>1</sup> resembling their body, but his likeness <sup>1</sup> resembling the man that had appeared to them. <sup>1</sup> His modelling took place by parts, <sup>1</sup> one at a time. And their leader fashioned <sup>35</sup> the brain and the nervous system. Afterwards <sup>1</sup> he appeared as prior to him. He became 115 a soul-endowed man. And he was called <sup>1</sup> Adam, that is, “father,” according to <sup>1</sup> the name of the one that existed before him.

And when they had finished <sup>1</sup> Adam, he abandoned him as an inanimate vessel, since he had taken form <sup>5</sup> like an abortion, in that no spirit was in him. <sup>1</sup> Regarding this thing, when the chief ruler <sup>1</sup> remembered the saying of Pistis, he was afraid <sup>1</sup> lest the true man enter his <sup>1</sup> modelled form and become its lord. For this reason he <sup>10</sup> left his modelled form forty days without <sup>1</sup> soul, and he withdrew and abandoned it. Now on the fortieth <sup>1</sup> day, Sophia Zoe sent <sup>1</sup> her breath into Adam, who had no <sup>1</sup> soul. He began to move upon the ground. <sup>15</sup> And he could not stand up.

Then when the seven <sup>1</sup> rulers came, they saw him and <sup>1</sup> were greatly disturbed. They went up to <sup>1</sup> him and seized him. And he (viz., the chief ruler) said to <sup>1</sup> the breath within him, "Who are you? And <sup>20</sup> whence did you come hither?" It answered <sup>1</sup> and said, "I have come from the force <sup>1</sup> of the man for the destruction of your work." <sup>1</sup> < . . . > When they heard, they glorified him, since he <sup>1</sup> gave them respite from the fear and the anxiety in which they found themselves. <sup>25</sup> Then they called that day <sup>1</sup> "Rest," in as much as they had rested <sup>1</sup> from toil. And when they saw that Adam <sup>1</sup> could not stand up, they were glad, and they took him <sup>1</sup> and put him in Paradise. And they withdrew <sup>30</sup> up to their heavens.

Then the authorities were informed <sup>1</sup> that their modelled form was alive and had arisen, and they <sup>10</sup> were greatly troubled. They sent seven archangels <sup>1</sup> to see what had happened. They came <sup>1</sup> to Adam. When they saw Eve talking to <sup>1</sup> him they said to one another, "What sort of thing is this luminous woman? <sup>1</sup> For she resembles that likeness which appeared <sup>15</sup> to us in the light. Now come, <sup>1</sup> let us lay hold of her and cast our <sup>1</sup> seed into her, so that when she becomes soiled <sup>1</sup> she may not be able to ascend into her light. <sup>1</sup> Rather, those whom she bears will be under <sup>20</sup> our charge. But let us not tell Adam, for he is not one <sup>1</sup> of us. Rather let us bring a deep sleep <sup>1</sup> over him. And let us instruct him in his <sup>1</sup> sleep to the effect that she came from <sup>1</sup> his rib, in order that his wife may obey, <sup>25</sup> and he may be lord over her."

Afterwards, <sup>1</sup> when they had recovered from the daze, they came <sup>35</sup> [to Adam]; and seeing the likeness of this woman 117 with him, they were greatly disturbed, thinking it was she <sup>1</sup> that was the true Eve. And they acted rashly; they came <sup>1</sup> up to her and seized her and cast <sup>1</sup> their seed upon her. They did so <sup>5</sup> wickedly, defiling not only <sup>1</sup> in natural ways but also in foul ways, <sup>1</sup> defiling first the seal of her voice <sup>1</sup> – that had spoken with them, saying, “What is it that exists <sup>1</sup> before you?” – intending to defile those who might say <sup>10</sup> at the consummation (viz., of the age) that they had been born <sup>1</sup> of the true man through verbal expression. <sup>1</sup> And they erred, not knowing <sup>1</sup> that it was their own body that they had defiled: it was the likeness that <sup>1</sup> the authorities and their angels defiled in every way. <sup>15</sup>

“Perhaps this is the true man – this being who has brought a fog upon us and <sup>15</sup> has taught us that she who was soiled is like him – and so we shall be conquered!”

Then the seven of them together laid plans. They came up to Adam and Eve timidly: they said to him, “The fruit of all the trees created for you in Paradise <sup>20</sup> shall be eaten; but as for the tree of acquaintance, control yourselves and do not eat from it. If you eat you will die.” Having imparted great fear to them they withdrew up to their authorities.

Then <sup>25</sup> came the wisest of all creatures, who was called Beast. And when he saw the likeness of their mother Eve he said to her, “What did God say to you (pl.)? Was it ‘do not eat from the tree <sup>30</sup> of acquaintance (gnosis)?’” She said, “He said, ‘Not only do not eat from it, but do not touch it, lest you (sg.) die.’” He said to her, “Do not be afraid. In death you (pl.) shall not die. For he knows that when you eat 119 from it, your intellect will become sober and you will come to be like gods, recognizing the difference that obtains between evil men and good ones. <sup>5</sup> Indeed, it was in jealousy that he said this to you, so that you would not eat from it.”

Now Eve had confidence in the words of the instructor. She gazed at the tree and saw that it was beautiful and appetizing, and liked it; she took some of <sup>10</sup> its fruit and ate it; and she gave some also to her husband, and he too ate it. Then their intellect became open. For when they had eaten, the light of acquaintance had shone upon them. When they clothed themselves with shame, they knew that they were naked <sup>15</sup> of acquaintance. When they became sober, they saw that they were naked and became enamored of one another. When they saw that the ones who had modelled them had the form of beasts, they loathed them: they were very aware.

Then when the rulers knew that they had broken <sup>20</sup> their commandments, they entered Paradise and came to Adam and Eve with earthquake and great threatening, to see the effect of the aid. Then Adam and Eve trembled greatly <sup>25</sup> and hid under the trees in Paradise. Then the rulers did not know where they were and said, “Adam, where are you?” He said, “I am here, for through fear of you I hid, being ashamed.” And they said to him ignorantly, <sup>30</sup> “Who told you about the shame with which you clothed yourself? – unless you have eaten from that tree!” He said, “The woman whom you gave me – it is she that gave to me and I ate.” Then they said to the latter, 120 “What is this that you have done?” She answered and said, “It is the instructor that urged me on, and I ate.”

Then the rulers came up to the instructor. <sup>1</sup> Their eyes became misty because of him, <sup>5</sup> and they could not do anything to him. They cursed him, <sup>1</sup> since they were powerless. Afterwards, they came up to the woman <sup>1</sup> and cursed her and her offspring. After <sup>1</sup> the woman, they cursed Adam; and (cursed) the land because of him, <sup>1</sup> and the crops; and all things that they had created <sup>10</sup> they cursed. They have no blessing. <sup>1</sup> Good cannot result from <sup>1</sup> evil.

nes) from <sup>1</sup> the creation to the consummation – both the angels <sup>20</sup> of righteousness and the men of unrighteousness. <sup>1</sup> Thus did the world come to exist in distraction, <sup>1</sup> in ignorance, and in a stupor. <sup>1</sup> They all erred, until the appearance (parousia) <sup>1</sup> of the true man.

Let this suffice <sup>25</sup> so far as the matter goes. Now we shall proceed to consideration of our world, <sup>1</sup> so that we may accurately finish the description of its structure <sup>1</sup> and management. <sup>1</sup> Then it will become obvious how <sup>1</sup> belief in the unseen realm, which has been apparent <sup>30</sup> from creation down to the consummation <sup>1</sup> of the age was discovered.

I come, therefore, to the main points <sup>1</sup> [regarding] the immortal man: I shall <sup>1</sup> speak of all the beings that belong to him, explaining how <sup>1</sup> they happen to be here.

When a multitude <sup>35</sup> of human beings had come into existence, through the parentage of [the Adam] 124 who had been fashioned, and out of matter, <sup>1</sup> and when the world had already become full, the rulers were master <sup>1</sup> over it – that is, they kept <sup>1</sup> it restrained by ignorance. For what reason? <sup>5</sup> For the following: since the immortal father knows <sup>1</sup> that a deficiency of truth came into being amongst the eternal realms <sup>1</sup> and their universe, when he wished <sup>1</sup> to bring to naught the rulers of perdition through the <sup>1</sup> creatures they had modelled he sent your (pl.) likenesses down into the world <sup>10</sup> of perdition, namely, the blessed little <sup>1</sup> innocent spirits. They are not alien to <sup>1</sup> acquaintance. For all acquaintance is vested in one angel <sup>1</sup> who appeared before them; he is not without power <sup>1</sup> in the company of the father. And <he> gave them acquaintance. <sup>15</sup> Whenever they appear in the world <sup>1</sup> of perdition, immediately and first of all they reveal <sup>20</sup> the pattern of imperishability as a condemnation <sup>1</sup> of the rulers and their forces. Thus when the blessed beings <sup>1</sup> appeared in forms modelled by authorities, <sup>1</sup> they were envied. And out of envy the authorities <sup>1</sup> mixed their seed with them, in hopes of <sup>25</sup> polluting them. They could not. Then when the blessed beings <sup>1</sup> appeared in luminous form, <sup>1</sup> they appeared in various ways. And each one <sup>1</sup> of them, starting out in his land, revealed <sup>1</sup> his (kind of) acquaintance to the visible church <sup>30</sup> constituted of the modelled forms of perdition. <sup>1</sup> It (viz., the church) was found to contain all kinds of seed, because of the seed <sup>1</sup> of the authorities that had [mixed with it].

Then <sup>1</sup> the savior created [. . .] of <sup>1</sup> them all – and the spirits of these [are manifestly] <sup>35</sup> superior, being blessed 125 and varying in election – and <sup>1</sup> also (he created) many other beings, which have no king and are superior <sup>1</sup> to everyone that was before them. Consequently, four <sup>1</sup> races exist. There are three that belong to the kings <sup>5</sup> of the eighth heaven. But the fourth <sup>1</sup> race is kingless and perfect, being <sup>1</sup> the highest of all. For these shall enter <sup>1</sup> the holy place of their father. <sup>1</sup> And they will gain rest in repose <sup>10</sup> and eternal, unspeakable glory <sup>1</sup> and unending joy. Moreover they are <sup>1</sup> kings within the mortal domain, in that they are immortal. They <sup>1</sup> will condemn the gods of chaos and <sup>1</sup> their forces.

Before the consummation <sup>1</sup> [of the age], the whole place will shake <sup>1</sup> with great thundering. Then the rulers <sup>35</sup> will be sad, [...] their 126 death. The angels will mourn for their mankind, <sup>1</sup> and the demons will weep over their seasons, <sup>1</sup> and their mankind will wail and scream <sup>1</sup> at their death. Then the age <sup>5</sup> will begin, and they will be disturbed. Their kings will <sup>1</sup> be intoxicated with the fiery sword, and they will <sup>1</sup> wage war against one another, so that <sup>1</sup> the earth is intoxicated with bloodshed. <sup>1</sup> And the seas will be disturbed by <sup>10</sup> those wars. Then the sun will become dark. <sup>1</sup> And the moon will cause its light to cease. <sup>1</sup> The stars of the sky will cancel their circuits. <sup>1</sup> And a great clap of thunder will come out <sup>1</sup> of a great force that is above <sup>15</sup> all the forces of chaos, where <sup>1</sup> the firmament of the woman is situated. <sup>1</sup> Having created the first product, she will <sup>1</sup> put away the wise fire of intelligence <sup>1</sup> and clothe herself with witless wrath. <sup>20</sup> Then she will pursue the gods <sup>1</sup> of chaos, whom she created along with the prime parent. <sup>1</sup> She will cast them down into the abyss. <sup>1</sup> They will be obliterated because of their wickedness. For they will <sup>1</sup> come to be like volcanoes <sup>25</sup> and consume one another until they perish <sup>1</sup> at the hand of the prime parent. <sup>1</sup> When he has destroyed them, he will turn against himself <sup>1</sup> and destroy himself until he ceases to exist.

The light will <sup>1</sup> [. . . the] darkness and obliterate it: it will be like 127 something that has never been. And the product <sup>1</sup> to which the darkness had been posterior will dissolve. And <sup>1</sup> the deficiency will be plucked out by the root (and thrown) down into <sup>1</sup> the darkness. And the light will withdraw up <sup>5</sup> to its root. And the glory of the unbegotten <sup>1</sup> will appear. And it will fill <sup>1</sup> all the eternal realm. When the prophecy and <sup>1</sup> the account of those that are king becomes known and <sup>1</sup> is fulfilled by those who are called <sup>10</sup> perfect, those who – in contrast – have not become perfect <sup>1</sup> in the unbegotten father will receive their glory <sup>1</sup> in their realms and in the kingdoms of the <sup>1</sup> immortals: but they will never enter <sup>1</sup> the kingless realm.

THE EXEGESIS ON THE SOUL (II,6)

Introduced by

MADDALENA SCOPELLO

Translated by

WILLIAM C. ROBINSON, JR.

The Exegesis on the Soul is a short tale (ten pages of papyrus) narrating the gnostic myth of the soul from her fall into the world to her return to heaven. The soul, whose nature is feminine – she even had a womb – was virginal and androgynous in form when she was alone with her Father in heaven, but when she fell into the world and into a body she polluted herself with many lovers. These lovers are brigands and bandits who treat the soul as a whore, then abandon her. In her suffering, she seeks for other lovers who also deceive her, making her the slave of their sexual pleasure. Ashamed, the soul remains in slavery, living in a brothel, going from one market place to another. The only gift she receives from her lovers is their polluted seed: her children are dumb, blind, sick and feeble-minded.

The soul remains in this sexual and psychic captivity until the day she perceives her situation and repents. She asks help from the Father who has mercy on her. He performs two actions to help the soul: first, he makes her womb turn inward so that the soul regains her proper character: “the womb of the soul is around the outside like the male genitalia, which are external” (131,19-27). This turning inward protects the soul from further sexual contaminations by her lovers. Secondly, the Father sends a bridegroom from heaven to the soul. The bridegroom is her brother, the firstborn of the house of the Father.

Renewed and purified, the soul adorns herself in the bridal chamber waiting for the fiancé. At his arrival, they love each other passionately. Their love, which is spiritual and eternal, is described with a vivid sensuality normally used for carnal intercourse. The fruit of this marriage are good and beautiful children (i.e., in allegory, the good, virtuous ideas: cf. Philo, Cher. 44). Finally the soul regenerates herself and returns to her former state.

In its main lines, the story of the soul in Exeg. Soul follows the Valentinian myth of Sophia, the last aeon who leaves the Pleroma searching for new horizons. From prostitution to repentance in tears and from repentance to her return to the house of the Father, the itinerary of the soul closely recalls Sophia’s journey.

Nevertheless, much of the originality of Exeg. Soul is to be found in the theatrical approach to the myth, now presented not in a philosophical and complex way but in a novelistic adaptation, capable of capturing the reader’s attention.

Two close literatures and traditions have certainly influenced the author in the composition of his treatise: Hellenistic and Jewish romance literature. Love and adventures are the chief ingredients of Hellenistic novels, love being the first cause of the action. These novels are governed by a single motif: the tragic separation of two lovers and their final reunion after thousands of misadventures (tricks, brigands, ambiguous figures tempting the soul's chastity; cf. the Greek novels of Achilles Tatius, Chariton, Heliodorus, Longus, and Xenophon of Ephesus).

However, two features having no connection with the Greek novel can be observed in the gnostic story: first, the heroine in Exeg. Soul is unique. The fiancé has little part in the narration, while in the Greek novel the primary role is always given to a couple. Second, if Greek heroines are always chaste and pure, the heroine in Exeg. Soul (as in other gnostic novels) has led a life of prostitution. Only later will she attain virginity.

The Jewish influence is deeper. Exeg. Soul is a female story, the soul in fact is presented as a woman. This is quite rare in ancient literature. We find women's stories in Jewish writings, however, especially in Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha. The story of the soul from prostitution to virginity through repentance recalls the stories of Jewish sinners such as Rahab, Tamar, Ruth, and Bathsheba (cf., Joshua, Jubilees, Testament of Judah, Ruth, 2 Kings).

Exeg. Soul is not the only Nag Hammadi treatise consecrated to a female figure. Comparisons exist also with Auth. Teach, Thund., Norea, Trim. Prot., and with other gnostic texts recounting short women's stories. Under the different names and physiognomies of all these women there is hidden one and only one personage: soul searching for her heavenly origin. The common feature linking these female figures is the opposition, the polarity "virginity-prostitution." Rehabilitation consists in recovering original purity which is essential to attain knowledge.

In Exeg. Soul emphasis on pollution shows how the author was influenced by Apocryphal Judaism. This intense focus on pollution is typical of Essenic psychology (cf., Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs and Qumran literature). In Exeg. Soul as well as in Essenic spirituality, purification and repentance are the only remedies for impurity. The turning inward of the womb is to be compared with spiritual circumcision; both express the will to abandon the outside, symbol of worldly temptations.

The author of Exeg. Soul illustrates the myth of the soul by a series of biblical quotations and two Homeric references. These quotations are part of the narrative and strictly linked to it: they even give the writer the occasion to develop themes related to the myth of the soul. Part of these quotations are grouped together in order to point out the three stages of the soul's journey: prostitution, repentance, return to the Father. These groups of quotations were not gathered by the author but drawn from an anthology of which traces had been preserved by some Christian authors of Alexandria: Clement, Didymos and Origen.

This helps to determine the author's milieu. He is dependent on an academic culture in which florilegia and anthologies formed an important part of an intellectual education.

The use of biblical as well as of Homeric references shows that Greek and Jewish wisdom had the same prophetic value for the author. Both of them expound the gnostic doctrine in a comprehensible way to a Christian, Jewish, or pagan public. These elements show that the gnostic author of Exeg. Soul was part of a cultivated, syncretistic milieu where Jewish and Greek scriptures were well known, probably Alexandria at the beginning of the third century C.E. Even though the author borrowed traditions from Judaism and, partly, from Christianity and Paganism, nonetheless he was able to reinterpret them in the light of a new message, the gnostic one.

THE EXEGESIS ON THE SOUL

II 127, 18-137, 27

The Expository Treatise on the Soul <sup>1</sup>

As long as <sup>1</sup> she was alone with the father, <sup>1</sup> she was virgin and in form androgynous. <sup>25</sup> But when she fell <sup>1</sup> down into a body and came to this life, then she <sup>1</sup> fell into the hands of many robbers. And <sup>1</sup> the wanton creatures passed her from one to another <sup>1</sup> and [...] her. Some made use of <sup>30</sup> her [by force], while others did so by seducing <sup>1</sup> her with a gift. In short, <sup>1</sup> they defiled her, and she [...] her] 128 virginity.

count <sup>1</sup> [to thee, for I abandoned] my house and 129 fled from my maiden's quarters. <sup>1</sup> Restore me to thyself again." When he sees her <sup>1</sup> in such a state, then he will count <sup>1</sup> her worthy of his mercy upon her, for many are the afflictions <sup>5</sup> that have come upon her because she abandoned her house.

Come, go to law with <sup>1</sup> your (pl.) mother, for she is not to be a wife to me <sup>25</sup> nor I a husband to her. <sup>1</sup> I shall remove her prostitution from my presence, <sup>1</sup> and I shall remove her adultery from <sup>1</sup> between her breasts. I shall make her naked <sup>1</sup> as on the day she was born, and <sup>30</sup> I [shall] make her desolate like a land without <sup>1</sup> [water], and I shall make her [longingly] childless. <sup>1</sup> [I] shall show her children no pity, for <sup>1</sup> they are children of prostitution, since their mother <sup>1</sup> prostituted herself and [put her children to shame]. 130 For she said, "I shall prostitute myself to <sup>1</sup> my lovers. It was they who gave me my <sup>1</sup> bread and my water and my garments and my <sup>1</sup> clothes and my wine and my oil and everything <sup>5</sup> I needed." Therefore behold <sup>1</sup> I shall shut them up so that she shall not be able <sup>1</sup> to run after her adulterers. And when she <sup>1</sup> seeks them and does not find them, she will say, <sup>1</sup> "I shall return to my former husband, for <sup>10</sup> in those days I was better off than now." <sup>1</sup>

Again he said in Ezekiel (16:23-26), <sup>1</sup>

But as to this prostitution the <sup>1</sup> apostles of the savior commanded (cf. Acts 15:20, 29; 21:25; 1 Th 4:3; 1 Co 6:18; 2 Co 7:1), <sup>30</sup>

Yet the greatest <sup>1</sup> [struggle] has to do with the prostitution 131 of the soul. From it arises the prostitution <sup>1</sup> of the body as well. Therefore Paul, <sup>1</sup> writing to the Corinthians (1 Co 5:9-10), said,

I wrote <sup>1</sup> you in the letter, “Do not associate with prostitutes,” <sup>5</sup> not at all (meaning) the prostitutes of this world <sup>1</sup> or the greedy or the thieves or the <sup>1</sup> idolators, since then you would have to <sup>1</sup> go out from the world.

herself she is powerless to beget <sup>1</sup> a child. From heaven the father sent her <sup>1</sup> her man, who is her brother, <sup>1</sup> the firstborn. Then the bridegroom came <sup>10</sup> down to the bride. She gave up <sup>1</sup> her former prostitution and cleansed herself of the pollutions <sup>1</sup> of the adulterers, and she was renewed so as to be a bride. <sup>1</sup> She cleansed herself in the bridal chamber; she filled it with perfume; <sup>1</sup> she sat in it waiting <sup>15</sup> for the true bridegroom. No longer does she <sup>1</sup> run about the market place, copulating with whomever she <sup>1</sup> desires, but she continued to wait for him – <sup>1</sup> (saying) “When will he come?” – and to fear him, <sup>1</sup> for she did not know what he looked like: <sup>20</sup> she no longer remembers since the time she fell <sup>1</sup> from her father’s house. But by the will <sup>1</sup> of the father (< . . . >). And she dreamed of him like <sup>1</sup> a woman in love with a man.

They will become a single flesh. <sup>1</sup>

For they were originally joined to one another when they were with the father <sup>5</sup> before the woman led astray the man, who <sup>1</sup> is her brother. This marriage <sup>1</sup> has brought them back together again and the <sup>1</sup> soul has been joined to her true love, her <sup>1</sup> real master, as it is written (cf. Gn 3:16; 1 Co 11:1; Ep 5:23), <sup>10</sup>

And the <sup>1</sup> prophet said in the Psalms (45:10-11),

For he requires her <sup>1</sup> to turn her face from her <sup>1</sup> people and the multitude of her adulterers, <sup>1</sup> in whose midst she once was, to devote herself <sup>1</sup> only to her king, her real <sup>1</sup> lord, and to forget the house of the <sup>1</sup> earthly father, with whom things went <sup>1</sup> badly for her, but to remember her father <sup>1</sup> who is in heaven. Thus also it was said <sup>1</sup> (Gn 12:1) to Abraham, Come out from your <sup>30</sup> country and your kinsfolk and from <sup>1</sup> your father's house.

Now it is fitting that the soul <sup>1</sup> regenerate herself and become again as <sup>1</sup> she formerly was. The soul then moves of her own accord. <sup>1</sup> And she received the divine nature from the father <sup>10</sup> for her rejuvenation, so that she might be restored to <sup>1</sup> the place where originally she had been. This is <sup>1</sup> the resurrection that is from the dead. <sup>1</sup> This is the ransom from captivity. <sup>1</sup> This is the upward journey of ascent to heaven. This <sup>15</sup> is the way of ascent to the father. Therefore <sup>1</sup> the prophet said (Ps 103:1-5), <sup>1</sup>

It is therefore fitting to pray to the father and to call <sup>5</sup> on him with all our soul – not externally with the lips <sup>1</sup> but with the spirit, <sup>1</sup> which is inward, which came forth from the <sup>1</sup> depth – sighing; repenting for <sup>1</sup> the life we lived; confessing <sup>10</sup> our sins; perceiving the empty deception <sup>1</sup> we were in, and the empty zeal; <sup>1</sup> weeping over how we were <sup>1</sup> in darkness and in the wave; mourning for ourselves, <sup>1</sup> that he might have pity on us; hating <sup>15</sup> ourselves for how we are now. Again <sup>1</sup> the savior said (cf. Mt 5:4, 6; Lk 6:12),

Blessed <sup>1</sup> are those who mourn, for it is they who will be pitied; <sup>1</sup> blessed, those who are hungry, for <sup>1</sup> it is they who will be filled.

Again he said (cf. Lk 14:26),

If <sup>20</sup> one does not hate his soul he cannot follow <sup>1</sup> me.

For the beginning of salvation is <sup>1</sup> repentance. Therefore (cf. Acts 13:24),

Again another place (Is 30:15),

Thus says <sup>5</sup> the lord, the holy one of <sup>1</sup> Israel: "If you (sg.) return and sigh, <sup>1</sup> then you will be saved and will know where you were <sup>1</sup> when you trusted in what is empty."

Again <sup>1</sup> he said in another place (Is 30:19-20) ,

Jerusalem wept <sup>10</sup> much, saying, "Have pity on me." He will have pity on the sound <sup>1</sup> of your (sg.) weeping. And when he saw he heeded you. <sup>1</sup> And the lord will give you (pl.) bread of <sup>1</sup> affliction and water of oppression. <sup>1</sup> From now on those who deceive will not approach you (sg.) again. <sup>15</sup> Your eyes will see those who are deceiving <sup>1</sup> you.

[My heart] turned itself from me. 137 It is to my house that I want to return.

For she sighed, <sup>1</sup> saying (Odyssey 4.261-264),

Certainly Israel would not have been visited <sup>1</sup> in the first place, to be brought out of the land of Egypt, <sup>1</sup> out of the house of bondage, if it had not sighed <sup>1</sup> to God and wept for the oppression <sup>15</sup> of its labors. Again it is written in the Psalms (6:6-9), <sup>1</sup>

I was greatly troubled in my groaning. I will <sup>1</sup> bathe my bed and my cover each <sup>1</sup> night with my tears. I have become old in the midst of all my enemies. <sup>1</sup> Depart from me, all <sup>20</sup> you who work at lawlessness, for behold the <sup>1</sup> lord has heard the cry of my weeping and <sup>1</sup> the lord has heard my prayer.”

If <sup>1</sup> we repent, truly God will <sup>1</sup> heed us, he who is long suffering and abundantly <sup>25</sup> merciful, to whom is the glory for <sup>1</sup> ever and ever. Amen. <sup>1</sup>

The Expository Treatise on the Soul

THE BOOK OF THOMAS THE CONTENDER (II,7)

Introduced and translated by

JOHN D. TURNER

The Book of Thomas the Contender is the seventh and last treatise in Codex II of the Coptic Gnostic library from Nag Hammadi. It is a revelation dialogue between the resurrected Jesus and his twin brother Judas Thomas, ostensibly recorded by Mathaias (the apostle Matthew?) at a time just before Jesus' ascension. It is a literary expression of traditions native to Syrian Edessa about the apostle Jude, surnamed Thomas, the missionary to India. It was likely composed in the first half of the third century C.E. Two products of this tradition have been dated with fair certainty: The Gospel of Thomas, composed ca. C.E. 50-125, and the Acts of Thomas, composed ca. C.E. 225. Both seem to derive from the ascetic, pre-Manichaean Christianity in the Osrhoëne (eastern Syria, between Edessa [modern Urfu] and Messene). The Book of Thomas the Contender seems to occupy a median position between the Gos. Thom. and the Acts in 1) date of composition, 2) relative dominance of the role played by Thomas in these works, and 3) in developing from a sayings collection preserved by Thomas (Gos. Thom.) to a dialogue between Jesus and Thomas (Thom. Cont.), to a full-blown romance centered on the missionary exploits of Thomas (Acts of Thomas). The present Coptic version was probably translated from Greek; the existence of the text is otherwise unattested in antiquity.

The subscripted title designates the work as a "book" of "Thomas the athletes (i.e., "one who struggles" against the fiery passions of the body) writing to the perfect, while the opening lines designate the work as "secret sayings" spoken by Jesus to Judas Thomas and recorded by Mathaias as he heard them speaking. The designation "sayings" does not really correspond to the genre of the work, which is a revelation dialogue. This type of dialogue is unlike the Platonic dialogue in which a conversational process of statement, counterstatement, and clarification leads step by step to the birth of knowledge. It is instead more related to the literature sometimes called eratapokriseis ("questions and answers"), in which an initiate elicits revealed truth from a spiritual authority in the form of catachetical answers to topical questions. Such revelation dialogues are found in many pagan Hermetic and gnostic Christian texts, including many from Nag Hammadi (Ap. John, Soph. Jes. Chr., Dis. 8-9, Dial. Sav., Ep. Pet. Phil.) These dialogues are set at a time between the resurrection and ascension, when the Savior appeared on earth in his true divine form, so that both he and his teaching were available to select apostles in a form unclouded by the sort of materiality which was believed to obscure the spiritual significance of his rather parabolic earthly, preresurrection teaching. This special teaching might consist of enlightening commentary on his darker earthly teaching, or even new revelations to special apostles. As the Savior's twin, Thomas had a claim to direct insight into the nature of the Savior and his teaching. By "knowing himself," Thomas would also know the "depth of the all," whence the Savior came, and whither he was about to return, and thus become a missionary possessing the true teaching of Jesus.

This true teaching of Jesus turns out to be consistently ascetic. Its basic theme or catchword is "fire," the fire of bodily passions that torment the soul, and its counterpart in the flames of hell: one shall be punished by that by which one sins. Around this principal theme are gathered a number of conceptual oppositions. It is of course the presence of the Savior as the emissary of the light which serves to illumine the eyes to see invisible reality within that which heretofore was only perceptually visible and thus illusory. The treatise thus evinces a Platonic dualism of a radically ascetic stripe, and may be properly considered broadly ascetic rather than gnostic. The gnostic myth of the creation of the world by a divine accident or evil power is neither mentioned nor apparently presupposed, and the dualism of the treatise is much more anthropological (body/soul) than cosmic (the above/below). A more appropriate designation for the doctrine of this work is Christian(ized) wisdom with ascetic application: the wisdom themes of seeking, finding, being troubled, resting, and ruling (cf. Gospel of Thomas, saying 2, etc.) are distinctly present and pressed into the service of an exhortation to the ascetic life by means of a Platonic dualism between the visible-passional-illusory and the invisible-spiritual-real.

There are presently two competing theories concerning the composition of The Book of Thomas the Contender. The more recent one, developed by H.M. Schenke, holds that its underlying source lay in a probably non-Christian Hellenistic Jewish wisdom treatise. Subsequently, in the Christian orbit, this ascetic treatise was Christianized by the substitution of Jesus for the figure of divine wisdom as the revelatory figure of the work, by the addition to the title of the phrase "The Book of Thomas," and by the attendant recasting of the whole from the genre of expository treatise into the genre of revelation dialogue. That is, the text was dissected into smaller expository sections placed upon the lips of the risen Jesus; these were recast as answers to fictitious questions put to him by the apostle Thomas, which themselves were inserted into the text as pretexts for the ensuing answers of the Savior.

The earlier theory, developed by the author of this article, began with the observation that the actual dialogue between Thomas and Jesus occupies only the first three fifths of the treatise (138,4-142,21), while the remaining two fifths (142,21-end) actually constitute a long monologue of the Savior, in which Thomas no longer plays a role. This and the detection of a transitional editorial seam at 142,21 suggest that The Book of Thomas the Contender could have been compiled by a redactor from two separate works, the first three fifths from a dialogue between Thomas and Jesus, perhaps entitled "The Book of Thomas the Contender writing to the Perfect," and the second two fifths from a collection of the sayings of the Savior gathered into a homiletical discourse perhaps entitled "The hidden words which the Savior spoke, which I recorded, even I, Mathaias." A redactor later prefixed the dialogue to the sayings collection, prefaced the whole with the present opening lines, augmented by the reference to Thomas as the recipient of the secret words and Mathaias as the scribe, but then appended a subscript title designating Thomas as the author of the whole.

While a final decision between these two compositional theories is still awaited, there can be no question that The Book of Thomas the Contender displays the marks of a redactional history. On either view, it represents a new source for the critical investigation of early Christian literature and for the process by which ever new literary genres were adapted for Christian teaching. It also constitutes another instance in a growing body of Christian wisdom literature, with its emphasis on seeking, finding, resting on, and ruling by the truth, and thus escaping the troubles of life.

THE BOOK OF THOMAS THE CONTENDER

145, 20-23

The secret words that the savior spoke to <sup>1</sup> Judas Thomas which I, even I Mathaias, <sup>1</sup> wrote down, while I was walking, listening to them speak with <sup>1</sup> one another.

The savior said, "Brother Thomas, while <sup>5</sup> you (sg.) have time in the world, listen to me, <sup>1</sup> and I will reveal to you the things you have pondered <sup>1</sup> in your mind.

"Now since it has been said that you are my <sup>1</sup> twin and true companion, examine yourself and learn <sup>1</sup> who you are, in what way you exist, and <sup>10</sup> how you will come to be. Since you will be called my brother, <sup>1</sup> it is not fitting that you be ignorant <sup>1</sup> of yourself. And I know that you have understood, <sup>1</sup> because you had already understood that I am the knowledge of the truth. <sup>1</sup> So while you accompany me, although you are uncomprehending, <sup>15</sup> you have (in fact) already come to know, and you will be called 'the one who <sup>1</sup> knows himself.' For he who has not known himself <sup>1</sup> has known nothing, but he who has known himself <sup>1</sup> has at the same time already achieved knowledge about the depth of the all. <sup>1</sup> So then, you, my brother Thomas, have beheld what is obscure <sup>20</sup> to men, that is, what they ignorantly stumble against." <sup>1</sup>

Now Thomas said to the lord, <sup>1</sup> "Therefore I beg you to tell me <sup>1</sup> what I ask you before your ascension, <sup>1</sup> and when I hear from you about <sup>25</sup> the hidden things, then I can speak about <sup>1</sup> them. And it is obvious to me that the truth is difficult to <sup>1</sup> perform before men."

The savior answered, saying, <sup>1</sup> "If the things that are visible to you (pl.) are obscure <sup>1</sup> to you, how can you hear <sup>30</sup> about the things that are not visible? If the deeds of the truth <sup>1</sup> that are visible in the world are difficult for you (pl.) to perform, <sup>1</sup> how indeed, then, shall you perform those that pertain to the <sup>1</sup> exalted height and to the pleroma which are not visible? <sup>1</sup> And how shall you be called 'laborers'? <sup>35</sup> In this respect-

The savior said, “[All] bodies [...] <sup>40</sup> the beasts are begotten [...] . . . <sup>1</sup> it is evident like [...] . . . <sup>1</sup> [...] . . . this, too, those that are above <sup>1</sup> [...] things that are visible, but [they are] visible 139 in their own root, and it is their fruit <sup>1</sup> that nourishes them. But these visible bodies <sup>1</sup> survive by devouring creatures similar to them <sup>1</sup> with the result that the bodies change. Now that which changes will <sup>5</sup> decay and perish, and has no hope of life from then on, <sup>1</sup> since that body is bestial. So just as the body of the beasts <sup>1</sup> perishes, so also will these formations <sup>1</sup> perish. Do they not derive from intercourse <sup>1</sup> like that of the beasts? If it, (the body) too derives from intercourse, <sup>10</sup> how will it beget anything different from <sup>1</sup> beasts? So, therefore, you are babes until <sup>1</sup> you become perfect.”

Then <sup>1</sup> the savior continued and said, “O <sup>1</sup> unsearchable love of the light! O bitterness of <sup>1</sup> the fire that blazes in the bodies of men and in <sup>35</sup> their marrow, kindling in them night and <sup>1</sup> day, and burning the limbs of men and <sup>1</sup> [making] their minds become drunk and their souls become deranged <sup>1</sup> [...] them within males and females <sup>1</sup> . . . [...] night and moving them, [...] <sup>40</sup> . . . secretly and visibly. <sup>1</sup> For the males [move . . . upon the females] <sup>1</sup> and the females upon [the males. Therefore it is] 140 said, ‘Everyone who seeks the truth from <sup>1</sup> true wisdom will make himself wings so as to <sup>1</sup> fly, fleeing the lust that scorches the

Again the savior answered and said, "Therefore it is necessary<sup>10</sup> for us to speak to you (pl.), since this is the doctrine for the perfect.<sup>1</sup> If, now, you (pl.) desire to become perfect, you shall<sup>1</sup> observe these things; if not, your (pl.) name is 'Ignorant,'<sup>1</sup> since it is impossible for an intelligent man to dwell with a<sup>1</sup> fool, for the intelligent man is perfect in all wisdom.<sup>15</sup> To the fool, however, the good and bad are<sup>1</sup> the same – indeed the wise man will be nourished by<sup>1</sup> the truth and (Ps 1:3) 'will be like a tree growing by<sup>1</sup> the meandering stream' – seeing that there are some who, although having wings,<sup>1</sup> rush upon the visible things, things that<sup>20</sup> are far from the truth. For that which guides them,<sup>1</sup> the fire, will give them an illusion of truth,<sup>1</sup> [and] will shine on them with a [perishable] beauty,<sup>1</sup> and it will imprison them in a dark<sup>1</sup> sweetness and captivate them with fragrant pleasure.<sup>25</sup> And it will blind them with insatiable lust<sup>1</sup> and burn their souls and become<sup>1</sup> for them like a stake stuck in their heart<sup>1</sup> which they can never dislodge. And like<sup>1</sup> a bit in the mouth it leads them according to its<sup>30</sup> own desire.

"And it has fettered them with its<sup>1</sup> chains and bound all their limbs<sup>1</sup> with the bitterness of the bondage of lust for those<sup>1</sup> visible things that will decay and change<sup>1</sup> and swerve by impulse. They have<sup>35</sup> always been attracted downwards; as they are killed,<sup>1</sup> they are assimilated to all the beasts of<sup>1</sup> the perishable realm."

Thomas answered and said, "It<sup>1</sup> is obvious and has been said, '[Many are . . .<sup>1</sup> . . . those who do not know [. . .]<sup>40</sup> soul.]'"

Thomas answered<sup>1</sup> and said, "Is it beneficial for us, lord, to rest<sup>1</sup> among our own?"

The savior said, "Yes, it is useful.<sup>5</sup> And it is good for you (pl.) since things visible<sup>1</sup> among men will dissolve – for the vessel of<sup>1</sup> their flesh will dissolve, and when it is brought to naught<sup>1</sup> it will come to be among visible things, among things that are seen.<sup>1</sup> And then the fire which they see gives them pain<sup>10</sup> on account of love for the faith they<sup>1</sup> formerly possessed. They will be gathered back to that which is visible.<sup>1</sup> Moreover, those who have sight among things that are not visible, without <sup>1</sup> the first love they will perish in the concern for this <sup>1</sup> life and the scorching of the fire. Only a little while longer, <sup>15</sup> and that which is visible will dissolve; then <sup>1</sup> shapeless shades will emerge and <sup>1</sup> in the midst of tombs they will forever dwell upon the corpses <sup>1</sup> in pain and corruption of soul.” <sup>1</sup>

Thomas answered and said, “What have we <sup>20</sup> to say in the face of these things? What shall we say to <sup>1</sup> blind men? What doctrine should we express to these miserable <sup>1</sup> mortals who say, ‘We came to [do] <sup>1</sup> good and not to curse,’ and yet [claim], <sup>1</sup> ‘Had we not been begotten in the flesh, we would not have known <sup>25</sup> [iniquity]?’”

The savior said, “Truly, as for <sup>1</sup> [those], do not esteem them as men, but regard them [as] <sup>1</sup> beasts, for just as beasts devour one another, <sup>1</sup> so also men of this sort <sup>1</sup> devour one another. On the contrary, they are deprived of [the kingdom] <sup>30</sup> since they love the sweetness of the fire and are <sup>1</sup> servants of death and rush to the works of corruption. <sup>1</sup> They fulfill the lust of their fathers. They will <sup>1</sup> be thrown down to the abyss and be afflicted <sup>1</sup> by the torment of the bitterness of their evil nature. <sup>35</sup> For they will be scourged so as to make them <sup>1</sup> rush backwards, whither they do not know, and <sup>1</sup> they [will recede] from their limbs not patiently, but <sup>1</sup> [with] despair. And they rejoice over [...] <sup>1</sup> [...] madness and derangement . . . <sup>40</sup> [They] pursue [this] derangement without realizing [their <sup>1</sup> madness, thinking] that they [are] wise. [They . . .] <sup>1</sup> . . . their body [...] 142 Their mind is directed to their own selves, for their thought is occupied <sup>1</sup> with their deeds. But it is the fire that will burn them!” <sup>1</sup>

And Thomas answered and said, “Lord, what will the one <sup>1</sup> thrown down to them do? For I am most anxious <sup>5</sup> about them; many are those who fight them.” <sup>1</sup>

Judas – the one called <sup>1</sup> Thomas – said, “It is you, lord, whom it befits <sup>1</sup> to speak, and me to listen.” <sup>10</sup>

The savior replied, “Listen to what I am going to tell you (sg.) <sup>1</sup> and believe in the truth. That which sows and that which is sown <sup>1</sup> will dissolve in their fire – within the fire <sup>1</sup> and the water – and they will hide in tombs of darkness. <sup>1</sup> And after a long time they shall show forth <sup>15</sup> the fruit of the evil trees, being punished, <sup>1</sup> being slain in the mouth of beasts and men <sup>1</sup> at the instigation of the rains and winds and air <sup>1</sup> and the light that shines above.”

Thomas <sup>1</sup> replied, “You have certainly persuaded us, lord. <sup>20</sup> We realize in our heart, and it is obvious, that this <sup>1</sup> [is so], and that your word is sufficient. But these words <sup>1</sup> that you speak to us are ridiculous and contemptible to the world <sup>1</sup> since they are misunderstood. <sup>1</sup> So how can we go <sup>25</sup> preach them, since we are [not] esteemed <sup>1</sup> [in] the world?"

The savior answered and said, <sup>1</sup> "Truly I tell you (pl.) that he who will listen to <sup>1</sup> [your] word and turn away his face or sneer <sup>1</sup> at it or smirk at these things, truly <sup>30</sup> I tell you that he will be handed over to <sup>1</sup> the ruler above who rules over <sup>1</sup> all the powers as their king, and he will turn <sup>1</sup> that one around and cast him from heaven down to <sup>1</sup> the abyss, and he will be imprisoned in a narrow <sup>35</sup> dark place. Moreover, he can neither turn nor move on account of <sup>1</sup> the great depth of Tartaros and the [heavy bitterness] <sup>1</sup> of Hades that is steadfast [...] <sup>1</sup> [...] them to it ... <sup>1</sup> [...] they will not forgive ... <sup>40</sup> [...] pursue you (pl.). They will hand <sup>1</sup> [...] over [to...] angel Tartarouchos <sup>1</sup> [...] fire pursuing them 143 [...] fiery scourges that cast a shower of sparks into <sup>1</sup> the face of the one who is pursued. If he flees westward, he <sup>1</sup> finds the fire. If he turns southward, he finds it there as well. <sup>1</sup> If he turns northward, the threat <sup>5</sup> of seething fire meets him again. Nor does he find the way to the east <sup>1</sup> so as to flee there and be saved, for he did not find it in the day <sup>1</sup> he was in the body, so that he might find it in the day of judgment." <sup>1</sup>

Then the savior continued, saying, <sup>1</sup> "Woe to you, godless ones, who have no hope, <sup>10</sup> who rely on things that will not happen!

"Woe to you (pl.) <sup>1</sup> who hope in the flesh and in the prison that will perish! <sup>1</sup> How long will you be oblivious? And how long will you suppose that the imperishables <sup>1</sup> will perish too? Your hope is set <sup>1</sup> upon the world, and your god is this life! <sup>15</sup> You are corrupting your souls!

"Woe to you (pl.) within <sup>1</sup> the fire that burns in you, for it is insatiable! <sup>1</sup>

"Woe to you because of the wheel that turns in <sup>1</sup> your minds!

"Woe to <sup>1</sup> you, captives, for you are bound in caverns! <sup>1</sup> You laugh! In mad laughter you rejoice! <sup>1</sup> You neither realize your perdition, nor <sup>25</sup> do you reflect on your circumstances, nor have [you] <sup>1</sup> understood that you dwell in darkness and [death]! <sup>1</sup> On the contrary, you are drunk with the fire and [full] <sup>1</sup> of bitterness. Your mind is deranged on account of the [burning <sup>1</sup> that is in] you, and sweet to you are the poison and <sup>30</sup> the blows of your enemies! And the darkness rose for <sup>1</sup> you like the light, for you surrendered your freedom <sup>1</sup> for servitude! You darkened your hearts <sup>1</sup> and surrendered your thoughts <sup>1</sup> to folly, and you

THE GOSPEL OF THE EGYPTIANS (III,2 AND IV,2)

ALEXANDER BÖHLIG and FREDERIK WISSE

The so-called Gospel of the Egyptians is preserved in two Coptic versions which were translated independently from the Greek. It is not related to the apocryphal Gospel of the Egyptians which is cited in Patristic literature. The tractate, which is also entitled "The Holy Book of the Great Invisible Spirit," is an esoteric writing representing a Sethian type of mythological Gnosticism. It may be described as a work which presents a gnostic salvation history. Since the mythological, heavenly Seth is portrayed as the father of the gnostic race, it is appropriate that the tractate lists him as the author of this divinely inspired book.

The tractate is divisible into four main sections. The first section (III 40,12-55,16 = IV 50,1-67,1) deals with the origin of the heavenly world: from the supreme God, dwelling in solitary height as the transcendent Great Invisible Spirit, there evolves and emanates a series of glorious beings, from the mighty trinity of Father, Mother Barbelo, and Son, through the pleroma of heavenly powers, to Adamas' great son Seth, the father and savior of the incorruptible race. The second section (III 55,16-66,8 = IV 67,2-78,10) discusses the origin, preservation, and salvation of the race of Seth: because of the arrogance and hostility of Saklas and the Archons, Seth comes from heaven, puts on Jesus as a garment, and accomplishes a work of salvation on behalf of his children. The third section (III 66,8-67,26 = IV 78,10-80,15) is hymnic in character; and the fourth section (III 68,1-69,17 = IV 80,15-81,end) contains a concluding account of the Sethian origin and transmission of the tractate.

Thus, in a manner analogous to that in which the New Testament gospels proclaim the life of Jesus, The Gospel of the Egyptians presents the life of Seth. His pre-history, the origin of his seed, the preservation of his seed by the heavenly powers, the coming of Seth into the world, and his work of salvation, especially through baptism, are proclaimed with drama and praise.

The following translation is based primarily on the text of Codex III; the more fragmentary (though probably more reliable) text of Codex IV has been utilized for the missing pages 45-48, and when the text of III,2 appears to be corrupted.

THE GOSPEL OF THE EGYPTIANS

III 40, 12-44, 28

IV 55, 20-60, 30

He passed through<sup>5</sup> the three parousias which I mentioned<sup>1</sup> before: the flood, and the conflagration,<sup>1</sup> and the judgment of the archons and the powers<sup>1</sup> and the authorities, to save her (the race) who went astray,<sup>1</sup> through the reconciliation of the world, and<sup>10</sup> the baptism through a Logos-begotten<sup>1</sup> body which the great Seth<sup>1</sup> prepared for himself,<sup>1</sup> secretly through the virgin, in order that the<sup>1</sup> saints may be begotten by the holy Spirit, through<sup>15</sup> invisible, secret symbols,<sup>1</sup> through a reconciliation of the world with the world,<sup>1</sup> through the renouncing of the world<sup>1</sup> and the god of the thirteen aeons,<sup>1</sup> and (through) the convocations of the saints, and<sup>20</sup> the ineffable ones, and the incorruptible bosom,<sup>1</sup> and (through) the great light of the Father<sup>1</sup> who preexisted with his Providence<sup>1</sup> and established through her<sup>1</sup> the holy baptism that surpasses<sup>25</sup> the heaven, through the incorruptible, 64 Logos-begotten one,

THE SOPHIA OF JESUS CHRIST (III,4 AND BG 8502,3)

Introduced and translated by

DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

Eugnostos begins as a formal letter written by a teacher to his disciples and subsequently shifts to take on qualities of a revelation discourse. It is without apparent Christian influence. With some minor omissions and one major one, it was used by a Christian gnostic editor as he composed The Sophia of Jesus Christ. In form, Soph. Jes. Chr. is a revelation discourse given by the risen Christ in response to the questions of his disciples. Thus the placing of the two tractates together in the present edition allows one to see the process by which a non-Christian tractate was modified and transformed into a Christian gnostic one. On the basis of the model provided by these two tractates, scholars have conjectured that the same process may have been responsible for other Christian gnostic writings, such as The Gospel of the Egyptians and The Apocryphon of John.

Eugnostos seems to be directed to a general audience interested in certain religious-philosophical problems. Soph. Jes. Chr. was directed to an audience for whom Christianity was an added element in their religious environment. The audience may have been made up of non-Christian Gnostics who already knew the tractate Eugnostos. By connecting Christ, in Soph. Jes. Chr., with the prediction at the end of Eugnostos (90,6-11), the editor may have hoped to persuade them that Christ was the latest incarnation of the gnostic savior. Or the audience may have consisted of non-gnostic Christians, and the editor may have wanted to persuade them that the religion revealed by Christ was gnostic Christianity. Perhaps the editor had both groups in mind.

The main intent of Eugnostos appears to have been to assert and describe the existence of an invisible, supercelestial region beyond the visible world — a region not reflected in the speculations of philosophers (whose views, as they are described, resemble those of Stoics, Epicureans, and Babylonian astrologers). Ruling that region is a hierarchy of five principal divine beings: Unbegotten Father; his reflection, called Self-Father; Self-Father's hypostatized power, Immortal Man, who is androgynous; Immortal Man's androgynous son, Son of Man; and Son of Man's androgynous son, the Savior. The names of the female aspects of the last three include the term Sophia. These divine beings each have their own sphere or aeon, and numerous attendant and subordinate beings. A special group, called "the generation over whom there is no kingdom among the kingdoms that exist," has its origin and true home with Unbegotten Father (75,12-19). A second group of six divine beings spring from the first five. These are said to resemble the first. Ineffable joy and unutterable jubilation characterize existence in the supercelestial region; and from there come patterns or types for subsequent creations. Following a summary passage (85,9-21), the tractate concludes with an appendix dealing with the realm of Immortal Man, which is our aeon. Eugnostos shows the influence of the transcendent realm upon this world. With one brief exception (85,8), which is probably an editorial addition, the influence is benign. Eugnostos, then, cannot be considered gnostic in any classic sense.

In the Soph. Jes. Chr. the following major points are added: the Savior (Christ) came from the supercelestial region (III 93,8-10; 94,10-14; 107,11-14; 118,15-16). Sophia is the one responsible for the fall of drops of light from the divine realm into the visible world (III 107,16-17; III 114,13/BG 119,9). Furthermore, a god exists who, with his subordinate powers, directly rules this world to the detriment of those who come from the divine realm (III 107,3-11; BG 119,2-121,13). Sex, it is suggested, is the means by which enslavement to the powers is perpetuated (III 108,10-14). But the Savior (Christ) broke the bonds imposed by the powers, and taught others to do the same (III 107,15-108,4; BG 121,13-122,3; III 118,3-25). Two classes of persons will be saved: those who know the Father in pure knowledge (that is, as described in Soph. Jes. Chr.), who will go to him; and those who know the Father defectively (III 117,8-118,2), who will go to the Eighth. In addition, it should be noted that the disciples named in Soph. Jes. Chr., Philip, Matthew, Thomas, Bartholomew, and Mary, reflect a tradition within Gnosticism of disciples who are distinctively gnostic, and who are contrasted with some regularity, and in various ways, with "orthodox" or "orthodox turned gnostic" disciples (principally, Peter and John).

The notion of three divine men in the heavenly hierarchy appears to be based on Genesis 1-3 (Immortal Man = God; Son of Man = Adam [81,12]; Son of Son of Man, Savior = Seth). Because of the presence of Seth (although unnamed in the tractate), Eugnostos must be thought of as Sethian, in some sense. However, since it is not classically gnostic and lacks other elements of developed Sethian thought, it can only be characterized as proto-Sethian. Egyptian religious thought also appears to have influenced its picture of the supercelestial realm. The probable place of origin for Eugnostos, then, is Egypt. A very early date is suggested by the fact that Stoics, Epicureans and astrologers are called "all the philosophers." That characterization would have been appropriate in the first century B.C.E., but not later. Eugnostos and Soph. Jes. Chr. may have influenced the Sethian-Ophites, as described by Irenaeus. Some have proposed an influence by Eugnostos on Valentianism. Because of the dating of Eugnostos, it would not be surprising if Soph. Jes. Chr. had been composed soon after the advent of Christianity in Egypt – the latter half of the first century C.E. That possibility is supported by the tractate's relatively nonpolemical tone.

The two versions of Eugnostos differ from each other at significant points, attesting a long period of usage. The two versions of Soph. Jes. Chr. are very close. The translation which follows is based on the versions of Codex III; the other versions have been employed in instances where pages are no longer extant and where the text has required restoration.

who are his.

THE SOPHIA OF JESUS CHRIST

III 90, 1-119, 18
Supplemented by BG 107, 1-111, 1
and 118, 13-112, 9

The Sophia of Jesus Christ.

After<sup>15</sup> he rose from the<sup>1</sup> dead, his twelve<sup>1</sup> disciples and seven<sup>1</sup> women continued to be his followers and<sup>1</sup> went to Galilee onto the mountain<sup>91</sup> called "Divination<sup>1</sup> and Joy." When they gathered together<sup>1</sup> and were perplexed about the underlying reality<sup>1</sup> of the universe and the plan and<sup>5</sup> the holy providence and<sup>1</sup> the power of the authorities and about<sup>1</sup> everything that the Savior is doing<sup>1</sup> with them in the secret<sup>1</sup> of the holy plan,<sup>10</sup> the Savior appeared, not in his<sup>1</sup> previous form, but in the<sup>1</sup> invisible spirit. And his likeness<sup>1</sup> resembles a great angel of light.<sup>1</sup> But his resemblance I must not describe.<sup>15</sup> No mortal flesh<sup>1</sup> could endure it, but only<sup>1</sup> pure (and) perfect flesh, like<sup>1</sup> that which he taught us about on the mountain<sup>1</sup> called<sup>20</sup> "Of Olives" in Galilee. And<sup>1</sup> he said: "Peace be to you (pl.)! My peace<sup>1</sup> I give<sup>1</sup> to you!" And they all marveled<sup>1</sup> and were afraid.

Rejoice in this, <sup>1</sup> that you know (V [1], 3-4: Greetings! I want [you to know]) that all men <sup>1</sup> born from the foundation <sup>5</sup> of the world until now are <sup>1</sup> dust. While they have inquired about God, <sup>1</sup> who he is and what he is like, <sup>1</sup> they have not found him. The wisest <sup>1</sup> among them have speculated about the truth from the ordering <sup>10</sup> of the world. <sup>1</sup> And the speculation has not reached <sup>1</sup> the truth. For the ordering <sup>1</sup> is spoken of in three (different) opinions <sup>1</sup> by <sup>15</sup> all the philosophers, (and) hence <sup>1</sup> they do not agree. For some <sup>1</sup> of them say <sup>1</sup> about the world that it was directed <sup>1</sup> by itself. Others, <sup>20</sup> that it is providence (that directs it). <sup>1</sup> Others, that it is fate. <sup>1</sup> But it is none of these. <sup>1</sup> Again, of the three voices I have just <sup>1</sup> mentioned, none 71 is true.

The Savior said to them: <sup>1</sup> “I want you to know <sup>1</sup> that all men born <sup>1</sup> on earth from the foundation of <sup>10</sup> the world until now, being <sup>1</sup> dust, while they have inquired about God, <sup>1</sup> who he is and what he <sup>1</sup> is like, have not found him. Now the <sup>1</sup> wisest among <sup>15</sup> them have speculated from the ordering of <sup>1</sup> the world and (its) movement. <sup>1</sup> But their speculation has not reached <sup>1</sup> the truth. For it <sup>1</sup> is said that the ordering is directed in three ways <sup>20</sup> by all the philosophers, <sup>1</sup> (and) hence they do not <sup>1</sup> agree. For some of <sup>1</sup> them say about the world <sup>1</sup> that it is directed by itself. 93 Others, <sup>1</sup> that it is providence (that directs it). Others, <sup>1</sup> that it is fate. <sup>1</sup> But it is none of these. <sup>5</sup> Again, of the three voices I have <sup>1</sup> just mentioned, none <sup>1</sup> is close to the truth, and (they are) from <sup>1</sup> man. But I, who came <sup>1</sup> from Infinite Light, <sup>10</sup> I am here – for I know him (Light) – <sup>1</sup> that I might speak to you about the precise nature <sup>1</sup> of the truth. For whatever is from <sup>1</sup> itself is a polluted life; <sup>1</sup> it is self-made. Providence <sup>15</sup> has no wisdom in it. And <sup>1</sup> fate does not discern.

For he <sup>1</sup> is immortal and eternal, <sup>20</sup> having no birth; for everyone <sup>1</sup> who has birth will perish. <sup>1</sup> He is unbegotten, having no beginning; <sup>1</sup> for everyone who has a beginning <sup>1</sup> has an end. No one rules 72 over him. He has no name; for whoever has <sup>1</sup> a name is the creation of another. <sup>1</sup> He is unnameable. He has no <sup>1</sup> human form; for whoever has <sup>5</sup> human form is the creation <sup>1</sup> of another. He has his own semblance – <sup>1</sup> not like <sup>1</sup> the semblance we have received and seen, <sup>1</sup> but a strange semblance <sup>10</sup> that surpasses all things <sup>1</sup> and is better than the totalities. It looks <sup>1</sup> to every side and sees itself <sup>1</sup> from itself. <sup>1</sup> He is infinite; he is incomprehensible. <sup>15</sup> He is ever imperishable <sup>1</sup> (and) has no likeness (to anything). He is <sup>1</sup> unchanging good. He is <sup>1</sup> faultless. He is everlasting. <sup>1</sup> He is blessed. He is unknowable, <sup>20</sup> while he (none-

His disciples<sup>1</sup> said to him: “Lord, reveal to us<sup>5</sup> about the one<sup>1</sup> called ‘Man’ that<sup>1</sup> we also may know his glory exactly.”<sup>1</sup> The perfect<sup>1</sup> Savior said: “Whoever has<sup>10</sup> ears to hear, let him<sup>1</sup> hear. First Begetter<sup>1</sup> Father is called ‘Adam,<sup>1</sup> Eye of Light,’ because he came<sup>1</sup> from shining Light,<sup>15</sup> [and] his holy angels, who are ineffable<sup>1</sup> (and) shadowless,<sup>1</sup> ever rejoice with joy<sup>1</sup> in their reflecting,<sup>1</sup> which they received from their Father. The whole kingdom<sup>20</sup> of Son of Man,<sup>1</sup> who is called ‘Son<sup>1</sup> of God,’ is full of<sup>1</sup> ineffable and shadowless joy,<sup>1</sup> and unchanging jubilation, (they) rejoicing<sup>25</sup> over his imperishable 106 glory, which has never been heard until<sup>1</sup> now, nor has it been revealed<sup>1</sup> in the aeons that came<sup>1</sup> afterward and their worlds.<sup>5</sup> I came from Self-<sup>1</sup> begotten and First<sup>1</sup> Infinite Light that<sup>1</sup> I might reveal everything to you.”<sup>1</sup>

 1 is designated <sup>5</sup> "Sophia, All-Begettress." Some 1 call her
 "Pistis." 1

Then Savior consented with 1 his consort, Pistis Sophia, 1 and revealed six androgynous spiritual beings <sup>10</sup> who are the type 1 of those who preceded them. 1 Their male names are these: first, "Unbegotten"; 1 second, "Self- 1 begotten"; third, <sup>15</sup> "Begetter"; fourth, 1 "First Begetter"; fifth, 1
 "All-Begetter"; sixth, 1 "Arch-Begetter." Also the names 1 of the females are these: first, <sup>20</sup> "All-wise Sophia"; second, 1 "All-Mother Sophia"; third, 1
 "All-Begettress Sophia"; 1 fourth, "First Begettress 1
 Sophia"; fifth, "Love Sophia";
[83] [sixth], "Pistis Sophia." 1

[From the] consenting 1 of those I have just mentioned, thoughts appeared 1 in the aeons that exist.
<sup>5</sup> From thoughts, reflectings; 1 from reflectings, 1 considerings; from considerings, 1 rationalities;
 from rationalities, 1 wills; from <sup>10</sup>
 wills, words.

Then the twelve 1 powers, whom I have just discussed, 1 consented with each other. 1 <Six> males (each) (and) <six> females (each) were revealed, 1 so that there are seventy- <sup>15</sup> two powers.
 Each one of the seventy-two 1 revealed 1 five spiritual (powers), 1 which (together) are the three hundred sixty 1 powers. The union of them all is <sup>20</sup> the will.

Begetter of All Things.' His 1 female name is designated 'All-Begettress Sophia.' 1 Some call her 1

Therefore our aeon came to be as the type <sup>1</sup> of Immortal Man. <sup>1</sup> Time came to be as <sup>1</sup> the type of First Begetter, [84] his son. [The year] came to be as <sup>1</sup> the type of [Savior. The] twelve <sup>1</sup> months came to be as the type <sup>1</sup> of the twelve powers. The three <sup>5</sup> hundred sixty days of the year <sup>1</sup> came to be as the type of the three hundred <sup>1</sup> sixty powers who appeared <sup>1</sup> from Savior. Their hours <sup>1</sup> and moments came to be as the <sup>10</sup> type of the angels who came <sup>1</sup> from them (the three hundred sixty powers) (and) who are without number. <sup>1</sup>

All who come <sup>25</sup> into the world, like 107 a drop from the Light, <sup>1</sup> are sent by him <sup>1</sup> to the world of Almighty, <sup>1</sup> that they might be guarded <sup>5</sup> by him. And the bond of <sup>1</sup> his forgetfulness bound him by the will <sup>1</sup> of Sophia, that the matter might be <revealed> through it <sup>1</sup> to the whole world in poverty <sup>1</sup> concerning his (Almighty's) arrogance <sup>10</sup> and blindness and <sup>1</sup> the ignorance that he was named. But I <sup>1</sup> came from the places <sup>1</sup> above by the will of the great <sup>1</sup> Light, (I) who escaped from that bond; <sup>15</sup> I have cut off the work of the <sup>1</sup> robbers; I have wakened that drop <sup>1</sup> that was sent from Sophia, <sup>1</sup> that it <sup>1</sup> might bear much fruit <sup>20</sup> through me and be perfected and not again be <sup>1</sup> defective but be <joined> through <sup>1</sup> me, the Great Savior, that his <sup>1</sup> glory might be

retinue for the twelve <sup>1</sup> angels.

And in <sup>1</sup> each aeon there were six (heavens), <sup>1</sup> so <sup>20</sup> there are seventy-two heavens of the seventy-two <sup>1</sup> powers who appeared <sup>1</sup> from him. And in each of the heavens <sup>1</sup> there were five firmaments, <sup>1</sup> so there are (altogether) three hundred sixty [85] [firmaments] of the three hundred <sup>1</sup> sixty powers that appeared <sup>1</sup> from them.

When the firmaments <sup>1</sup> were complete, they were called <sup>5</sup> "The Three Hundred Sixty Heavens," according to the name of the <sup>1</sup> heavens that were before them.
And all these <sup>1</sup> are perfect and good. And in this <sup>1</sup> way the defect

The first <sup>10</sup> aeon, then, is that of Immortal Man. <sup>1</sup> The second aeon is that of Son of <sup>1</sup> Man, who is called <sup>1</sup> "First Begetter," ( V 13, 12-13 adds here: The third is that of son of Son of Man), who <sup>1</sup> is called "Savior." <sup>15</sup>

That which embraces these is the aeon <sup>1</sup> over which there is no kingdom, (the aeon) of the <sup>1</sup> Eternal Infinite God, the <sup>1</sup> aeon of the aeons of the immortals <sup>1</sup> who are in it, (the aeon) above the Eighth

for retinue <sup>1</sup> for the twelve <sup>1</sup>

All <sup>1</sup> these are perfect <sup>10</sup> and good.
<sup>1</sup> Thus <sup>1</sup> the defect <sup>1</sup> in the female appeared."

And <he> said <sup>1</sup> to him: "How many are the <sup>15</sup> aeons of the immortals, <sup>1</sup> starting from the infin-
"Whoever has <sup>1</sup> ears to hear, let him 108 hear. The first aeon <sup>1</sup> is that of Son of Man, <sup>1</sup> who is called <sup>1</sup> 'First Begetter,' <sup>5</sup> who is call-
<sup>1</sup> The second aeon (is) that of <sup>1</sup>

That which embraces <sup>1</sup> these is the aeon <sup>1</sup> over which there is no

"Now <sup>5</sup> Immortal Man revealed <sup>1</sup> aeons <sup>1</sup> and powers and kingdoms <sup>1</sup> and gave authority <sup>1</sup> to all who appear <sup>10</sup> in him that they might <sup>1</sup> exercise their desires until <sup>1</sup> the last things that are above <sup>1</sup> chaos. For these <sup>1</sup> consented with each <sup>15</sup> other and revealed <sup>1</sup> every magnificence, even <sup>1</sup> from spirit, <sup>1</sup> multitudinous lights that are glorious <sup>1</sup> and without number. These 110 were called <sup>1</sup> in the beginning, that is, <sup>1</sup> the first aeon <sup>1</sup> and <the second> and <the third>. <sup>5</sup> The first <is> called <sup>1</sup> 'Unity <sup>1</sup> and Rest.' Each one has <sup>1</sup> its (own) name; for <sup>10</sup> the <third> aeon <sup>1</sup> was designated 'Assembly' <sup>1</sup> from the <sup>1</sup> great multitude that <sup>1</sup> appeared: <sup>15</sup> in one, a multitude revealed themselves. <sup>1</sup> Now because <sup>1</sup> the multitudes 111 gather III 111 and come to a unity, (BG 111, 2-5 adds here: therefore <they> are called 'Assembly,' from that Assembly that surpasses heaven) we call <sup>1</sup> them 'Assembly <sup>1</sup> of the Eighth.' It appeared <sup>1</sup> as androgynous and was named <sup>5</sup> partly as male and <sup>1</sup> partly as female. The male <sup>1</sup> is called 'Assembly,' while the <sup>1</sup> female is called 'Life,' <sup>1</sup> that it might be shown that from <sup>10</sup> a female came the life for <sup>1</sup> all the aeons. And every name was <sup>1</sup> received, starting from the beginning.

And all natures<sup>1</sup> from the Immortal One, from Unbegotten<sup>1</sup> to the revelation of<sup>1</sup> chaos, are in the light that shines without shadow<sup>1</sup> and (in) ineffable joy<sup>20</sup> and unutterable jubilation.<sup>1</sup> They ever delight themselves<sup>1</sup> on account of their glory that does not change<sup>1</sup> and the rest that is not measured,<sup>1</sup> which cannot be described<sup>90</sup> or conceived<sup>1</sup> among all the aeons<sup>1</sup> that came to be and their powers.<sup>1</sup> But this much is enough. All<sup>5</sup> I have just said to you,<sup>1</sup> I said in the way you might<sup>1</sup> accept, until the one who need not be taught<sup>1</sup> appears among you,<sup>1</sup> and he will speak all these things to you<sup>10</sup> joyously and in<sup>1</sup> pure knowledge.<sup>1</sup>

it took <sup>1</sup> thought, (then) <sup>1</sup> names were received by all who <sup>1</sup> are in the world of chaos <sup>10</sup> and all things that are in <sup>1</sup> it through that <sup>1</sup> Immortal One, when the breath <sup>1</sup> blew into him. <sup>1</sup> But when this came about <sup>15</sup> by the will of Mother <sup>1</sup> Sophia – so that Immortal Man <sup>1</sup> might piece together 121 the garments there <sup>1</sup> for a judgment <sup>1</sup> on the robbers – <sup>1</sup> <he> then welcomed the blowing <sup>5</sup> of that breath; <sup>1</sup> but since he was soul-like, <sup>1</sup> he was not able to take <sup>1</sup> that power for himself <sup>1</sup> until <sup>10</sup> the number of chaos should be complete, (that is,) when the time <sup>1</sup> determined by the great <sup>1</sup> angel is complete.

THE DIALOGUE OF THE SAVIOR (III,5)

Introduced by

HELMUT KOESTER and ELAINE H. PAGELS

Translated by

STEPHEN EMMEL

The title The Dialogue of the Savior appears in the incipit and the explicit of the manuscript and is apparently a later addition. No specific author is indicated anywhere in the text. But the speaker is the "Savior" or the "Lord" (he is never called Jesus or Jesus Christ) in conversation with his disciples Judas, Mary, and Matthew. In this respect, the title "dialogue" is appropriate, except for the first section of the text (120,3-124,22) which is an uninterrupted monologue of the Savior. The text is preserved only in this somewhat fragmentary manuscript, and it is not referred to or quoted in any ancient source. Thus, no external attestation for the date of its composition is available.

The Dialogue of the Savior is a writing of considerable complexity, and its several parts exhibit a great variety in style and content. It is best seen as a compilation of various generations of Christianity and composed in its extant form, originally in Greek, some time during the 2nd century. Parallels to the author's understanding of baptism in deutero-Pauline epistles suggest a date close to the turn of the first century.

The primary source was a dialogue between the Lord and three disciples. This source is preserved in the following sections of the extant work: 124,23-127,19; 128,23-129,16; 131,19-133,21(?); 137,3-146,20, i.e., in about 65% of the present text. These sections are characterized by brief questions, usually from one of the named disciples (sometimes by all disciples) and equally brief answers of the Lord. Sometimes these questions and answers are expanded into longer units discussing a particular topic. Traditional sayings of Jesus used in these questions and answers have parallels in the Gospels of Matthew, Luke, and John, and particularly in The Gospel of Thomas. However, a literary dependence upon any of these writings seems unlikely. Rather, the sayings tradition used here appears to be an independent parallel to the one used in The Gospel of Thomas and the Gospel of John.

The form of these brief dialogue units parallels the dialogues found in the Gospel of John. In contrast to some gnostic dialogues which are actually secondarily arranged theological discourses (such as The Sophia of Jesus Christ and Pistis Sophia), the dialogues of the Gospel of John and of The Dialogue of the Savior are not free compositions of an author, but elaborations and interpretations of traditional sayings. In some instances, the dialogical development of the sayings tradition in our document is less advanced and theologically less complex than the Johannine parallels. This would argue for a date of the original dialogue source of this document before the end of the first century.

The sequence of the topics explored in these dialogues has close parallels in sayings of The Gospel of Thomas, especially in its saying 2 about the seeking, finding, marvelling, ruling and resting. That saying presents an eschatological timetable which is further explored in the dialogues of this writing. The disciples have sought and found and marvelled, but their ruling and resting will come only in the future. At the present time, they still carry the burden of the flesh, i.e., the body and earthly labor or, in the words of this writing, of "the works of womanhood." Mary who recognizes this receives the highest praise. This theme, the continuation of the works of the female, i.e., the continuation of the human race through childbirth, is prominent in the last portion of the dialogue. It deals with the role of the female in the process of salvation more explicitly than most other early Christian writings (close parallels can be found in The Gospel of the Egyptians, quoted by Clement of Alexandria), and it gives Mary a very high estimate as "a woman who had understood completely" (139,11-13).

In the final form of the document, several other traditional pieces have been added to the original dialogue: 1) Fragments of a creation myth (127,19-131,18) which is based upon Gen 1-2. The myth relates how water, originally separated from the earth by a wall of fire, made the world fruitful. In 128,1-129,12, the author has interrupted the account of this myth in order to interpret the term spirit. 2) A cosmological wisdom list (133,23-134,24). The author has added comments about the root of wickedness and about baptism. 3) An apocalyptic vision of which fragments are still recognizable in 134,24-137,3. The vision, taking place on a high mountain from where the whole of heaven and earth can be seen, originally spoke about the rescue of a soul and its installation before God in a new garment. The process is explained by an angelic figure called "Son of Man," a title which The Dialogue of the Savior never uses for Jesus.

The final author opened his compilation of these materials with an intriguing section (120,2-124,22), consisting of an exhortation, a prayer of thanksgiving and a gnostic discourse about the passage of the soul through the heavenly powers. This section employs established Christian soteriological language with allusions to passages from the New Testament epistles; it also contains a reference to the Gospel of John (Jn 1:18). With this introduction the entire dialogue is placed into a new context: baptismal initiation. The baptismal theology resolves the conflict between the "already" of a realized eschatology and the "not yet" of a futuristic eschatology. As baptism is understood in the same way as in Eph 2:1-6 and Col 3:1-4, those who are baptized have already passed through death into true life. Metaphorical and mythical language is thus related to a cultic act for the expression of realized eschatology.

Yet, receiving visions in the context of baptism is not the culmination of the experience of redemption. Instead, through the utilization and interpretation of the older dialogue used in the composition, the author presents a discussion of the complex eschatological situation of the disciples. Although the disciples have already sought and found and have marvelled at visions, have experienced the indwelling of the living God and passed through the powers in the experience of baptism, their final entry into ruling and resting is still to come. Their present existence is defined as work in behalf of the revelation, so that they, like their Lord, may save others and "reveal the greatness of the revealer," while they are still wearing the flesh, carrying a burden just as the Lord himself. This also indicates that the “Lord” who is speaking in this dialogue is not the exalted Lord but the “earthly” Jesus. The “place of truth” is not defined in terms of otherworldly existence, but as the place where the Lord is. This emphasis upon the tasks of a Christian life in this world implies that the “dissolution of the works of womanhood” does not suggest a metaphysically motivated sexual asceticism, but speaks of the secret birth through the one who “is coming from the Father.” In spite of the evident employment of gnostic language in the description of the baptismal experience, The Dialogue of the Savior cannot be understood as the simple product of gnostic theology. Rather, it resembles the Gospel of John in its attempt to reinterpret the sayings of Jesus in the horizon of gnostic thought.

THE DIALOGUE OF THE SAVIOR

say, 'Behold! The time <sup>1</sup> has come!' But when you see <sup>1</sup> a single staff ... [...] <sup>1</sup> ... this ... [...] ... [...] <sup>10</sup> ... [...] <sup>1</sup> ... [...] <sup>1</sup> understand ... [...] <sup>1</sup> ... the work ... [...] <sup>1</sup> and the governors ... [...] <sup>15</sup> come upon you ... [...]. <sup>1</sup> Truly, fear is the [power ...] <sup>1</sup> .... So if you are going to be [afraid] <sup>1</sup> of what is about to come upon [you], <sup>1</sup> it will engulf you. <sup>20</sup> For there is not one among them who will <sup>1</sup> spare you or show [you] mercy. <sup>1</sup> But in this way, look at [the ...] <sup>1</sup> in it, since you have mastered every word <sup>1</sup> on earth. It 123 [...] take] you up to the ... <sup>1</sup> [...] place] where there is no rule <sup>1</sup> [...] tyrant]. When you <sup>1</sup> [...] you] will see those who <sup>5</sup> [...] ... and also ... <sup>1</sup> [...] tell] you ... <sup>1</sup> [...] ... the reasoning power <sup>1</sup> [...] reasoning power ... <sup>1</sup> [...] place] of truth <sup>10</sup> [...] ... but ... <sup>1</sup> [...]. But you <sup>1</sup> [...] ... truth, this <sup>1</sup> [...] ... living ... <sup>1</sup> [...] and] your joy <sup>15</sup> [...]. So [...] ... in order that <sup>1</sup> [...] your souls <sup>1</sup> [...] lest it <sup>1</sup> [...] the word [...] ... raise ... <sup>20</sup> [...] ... [...] ... <sup>1</sup> [...] ... [...] ... your ... <sup>1</sup> [...] ... [...] ... <sup>1</sup> [...] .... For the crossing place 124 is fearful [before you]. <sup>1</sup> But you, [with a] <sup>1</sup> single mind, pass [it] by! <sup>1</sup> For its depth is great; [its] <sup>5</sup> height [is] enormous [...] <sup>1</sup> a single mind ... [...] <sup>1</sup> and the fire ... [...] <sup>1</sup> ... [...] all] the powers [...] <sup>10</sup> ... you, they ... [...] <sup>1</sup> and the [powers ...] <sup>1</sup> they ... [...] <sup>1</sup> ... [...] <sup>1</sup> ... soul ... [...] <sup>15</sup> ... [...] <sup>1</sup> in everyone [...] you] <sup>1</sup> are the ... [...] <sup>1</sup> and ... [...] <sup>1</sup> ... forget ... [...] <sup>20</sup> ... son ... [...] <sup>1</sup> and you [...] ... [...] <sup>1</sup> you ... [...] ... [...].” <sup>1</sup>

(10) [The Lord said to them], <sup>1</sup> “He who seeks [...] <sup>10</sup> reveals ...

(11) [Matthew said, “Lord, when <sup>1</sup> I [...] <sup>1</sup> and [when] I speak, who is it who ... [...] <sup>1</sup> ... who listens?”

(12) [The Lord] said, <sup>15</sup> “It is the one who speaks who also [listens],

(13) [Mary] said, <sup>1</sup> “Lord, behold! <sup>1</sup> Whence [do I] bear the body

(14) The Lord said, “[...] <sup>1</sup> weep on account of its works [...] <sup>1</sup> remain and the mind laughs [...] ... [...] 127 ...] ... spirit. If one does not <sup>1</sup> [...] darkness, he will be able to see <sup>1</sup> [...]. So I tell you <sup>1</sup> [...]
light is the darkness <sup>5</sup> [...] ... stand in <sup>1</sup> [...] not see the light <sup>1</sup> [...]
the lie [...] ... they brought them from <sup>1</sup> [...] ... [...] ... You will
ever. Then <sup>1</sup> [all] the powers <sup>15</sup> which are above as well as those <sup>1</sup>
[gnashing] of teeth over the end of [all] these things.” <sup>1</sup>

(15) Judas [said], “Tell <sup>20</sup> [us, Lord], what was [...] before <sup>1</sup> [the heaven and the] earth existed.” <sup>1</sup>

(16) The Lord said, <sup>1</sup> “There was darkness and water and 128 spirit

(17) [...] said, “[Lord], <sup>1</sup> tell us <sup>1</sup> where [the ... is established] and

(18) The Lord [said], “The fire [of the] <sup>1</sup> spirit came into existence
... [...] <sup>1</sup> both. On this account, the [...] <sup>1</sup> came into existence, and <sup>20</sup>
the [true] mind came into existence [within] them [...]. <sup>1</sup> If someone

hearts. For just as <sup>1</sup> your hearts [...], so <sup>10</sup> [...] the means to overcome the powers <sup>1</sup> [above] as well as those below <sup>1</sup> [...]. I say to you, <sup>1</sup> let him [who possesses] power renounce <sup>1</sup> [it and repent]. And <sup>15</sup> [let] him who [...] seek and find and [rejoice].” <sup>1</sup>

signs upon <sup>1</sup> [...]. On this account did they happen thus.” <sup>20</sup>

(29) [Matthew] said, <sup>1</sup> “Lord, [even if I will] <sup>1</sup> not [be able] to see it, let me [know it]!” <sup>15</sup>

(30) The Lord [said], “[Everyone] <sup>1</sup> who has known himself has seen [it in] <sup>1</sup> everything given to him to do [...] <sup>1</sup> ... and has come to [...] <sup>1</sup> it in his [goodness].”

(32) The Lord picked up a [stone and] <sup>1</sup> held it in his hand, [saying, 133 “What] am I holding <sup>1</sup> [in] my [hand]?”

(33) He said, “[It is] a stone.” <sup>1</sup>

(34) He [said] to them, “That which supports <sup>1</sup> [the earth] is that which supports the heaven. <sup>5</sup> When a Word comes forth <sup>1</sup> from the Greatness, it will come on what <sup>1</sup> supports the heaven and the earth. For the earth <sup>1</sup> does not move. Were it to move, it would <sup>1</sup> fall. But it neither moves nor falls, in order that the First Word might not <sup>10</sup> fail. For it was that which established <sup>1</sup> the cosmos and inhabited <sup>1</sup> it and inhaled fragrance from <sup>1</sup> it. For, . . . [ . . . ] . . . which do not move I <sup>1</sup> [ . . . ] . . . you, all the sons of [men. <sup>15</sup> For] you are from [that] place. <sup>1</sup> [In] the hearts of those who speak out of [joy] <sup>1</sup> and truth you exist. <sup>1</sup> Even if it comes forth in <sup>1</sup> [the body] of the Father among men <sup>20</sup> and is not received, still <sup>1</sup> it [ . . . ] return to its place. Whoever [does not] know <sup>1</sup> [the work] of perfection [knows] <sup>1</sup> nothing. If one does not stand <sup>1</sup> in the darkness, he will not be able to see the light. 134

from a power was <sup>1</sup> deficient and it went down to <sup>20</sup> [the] abyss of the earth. And the Greatness <sup>1</sup> remembered [it] and he sent the [Word <sup>1</sup> to] it. It brought it up into <sup>1</sup> [his presence] so that 136 the First Word might not fail.” [Then his disciples] were <sup>1</sup> amazed at [all the things] <sup>1</sup> he had said to them, and they accepted them on [faith]. <sup>1</sup> And they concluded that it is useless <sup>5</sup> to regard wickedness.

(43) Then they all said to him, <sup>1</sup> “Tell us about it!”

(50) The Lord said, <sup>15</sup> “It is you who will rule over them! <sup>1</sup> But when

(51) Judas said, <sup>1</sup> “How will [our] garments be brought to us?” <sup>1</sup>

(52) The Lord said, “There are <sup>1</sup> some who will provide for you, and <sup>1</sup> there are others who will receive [ . . . ]. 139 For [it is] they [who will give you] your <sup>1</sup> garments. [For] who [will] be able to reach <sup>1</sup> that place [which] is [the] reward? <sup>1</sup> But the garments of life were given to <sup>5</sup> man because he knows the <sup>1</sup> path by which he will leave. And <sup>1</sup> it is difficult even for me to reach it!” <sup>1</sup>

(54) The disciples said to him, <sup>1</sup> “What is the fullness and <sup>15</sup> what is the deficiency?”

(58) Judas said, <sup>10</sup> “Why else, for the sake of truth, do they <sup>1</sup> <die> and live?”

(62) Mary said to him, <sup>20</sup> “Lord, is there then a place which is . . . , <sup>1</sup> or lacking truth?” <sup>1</sup>

(63) The Lord said, “The place where I <sup>1</sup> am not!”

(64) Mary said, <sup>1</sup> “Lord, you are fearful and [wonderful], 141 and . . . [ . . . ] . . . <sup>1</sup> . . . those who do not know [you].” <sup>1</sup>

(65) Matthew said, “[Why] do we <sup>1</sup> not rest [at once]?” <sup>5</sup>

(66) The Lord said, “When you lay down <sup>1</sup> these burdens!”

(68) The Lord said, <sup>1</sup> “When you abandon <sup>10</sup> the works which will not be able <sup>1</sup> to follow you, then you will rest.” <sup>1</sup>

(71) His [disciples] said to him, <sup>20</sup> “What should we do to ensure that <sup>1</sup> our work will be perfect?” <sup>1</sup>

(75) Matthew said, “Lord, <sup>10</sup> you have spoken about the end of everything without concern.” <sup>1</sup>

(76) The Lord said, “You have understood all the things <sup>1</sup> I have said to you <sup>1</sup> and you have accepted them on faith. <sup>1</sup> If you have known them, then they are [yours]. <sup>15</sup> If not, then they are not yours.” <sup>1</sup>

(77) They said to him, “What is the place <sup>1</sup> to which we are going?”

(80) The Lord [said], “I have told you [that] <sup>1</sup> it is the one who can see who [reveals].” <sup>1</sup>

(82) The Lord said, “. . . [ . . . ] . . . everything <sup>1</sup> which I have . . . [ . . . ] you will . . . <sup>5</sup> . . . [ . . . ] . . . you [ . . . ] . . . everything.” <sup>1</sup>

(85) The Lord said, “The governors <sup>1</sup> [and] the administrators possess <sup>1</sup> garments granted [only for a time,] <sup>1</sup> which do not last. [But]

(91) The Lord said, <sup>1</sup> “Pray in the place where there is no woman.” <sup>1</sup>

(92) Matthew said, <sup>1</sup> “‘Pray in the place where there is [no woman],’ he tells us, <sup>1</sup> meaning, ‘Destroy the <sup>20</sup> works of womanhood,’ not because there is any other [manner of birth], <sup>1</sup> but because they will cease [giving birth].” <sup>1</sup>

(93) Mary said, “They will never be obliterated.” <sup>1</sup>

(99) Judas said, “How <sup>1</sup> is the [spirit] apparent?” <sup>1</sup>

(100) The Lord said, “How [is] <sup>10</sup> the sword [apparent]?”

(101) [Judas] said, <sup>1</sup> “How is the [light] apparent?” <sup>1</sup>

THE APOCALYPSE OF PAUL (V,2)

The first of the four apocalypses in Codex V is a highly syncretistic, gnostic version of the ascension of Paul through the heavens. It bears no literary relationship to the Greek work of the same name, though the latter also deals with Paul's vision of judgment in the heavens. Whether it had affinities with the now lost "Ascension of Paul" used by the "Gnostics" according to Epiphanius, it is impossible to tell, but it should be noted that in Epiphanius' account the "Ascension" refers only to three heavens, whereas it is the uniqueness of the present work that it describes Paul's experience of the fourth to the tenth heavens; the third is mentioned only as a starting point.

Apoc. Paul begins with a narrative of Paul's encounter with a small child on the "mountain of Jericho" en route to Jerusalem. The child, who is Paul's guiding spirit or interpreting angel, sometimes called the Holy spirit in the text, takes him to the heavens to meet his fellow apostles, who accompany him during his further ascent. In the fourth heaven Paul witnesses the judgment of souls; in the fifth, angels driving souls to judgment. The sixth heaven is illuminated by a light from above, and in the seventh Paul meets an old man on a shining throne who threatens to block his further ascent. He continues, however, into the Ogdoad and the ninth and tenth heavens, and when he reaches the last he has been transformed so that he greets, no longer his fellow-apostles, but his fellow-spirits. The language of the narrative fluctuates from third person to first at 19,8, back to third person at 19,18, and finally to first person again from 20,5 on. The inconsistency may perhaps be attributed to literary carelessness rather than to multiple sources, for at these points in the narrative no clear "seams" can be detected on other grounds.

For purposes of analysis, the contents of Apoc. Paul may be divided into three distinct episodes: an epiphany scene, a scene of judgment and punishment, and a heavenly journey. In the first, the little child who meets Paul on the mountain and gives him a revelation most naturally suggests an epiphany of the risen Christ, who is sometimes described as a small child (e.g., in Ap. John (BG,2) 20,19-21,4, Act. Jn. 88). This experience, as the allusion to Gal 1:15 (Jer 1:5) in 18,15-16 suggests, functions as the calling of Paul to be an apostle and thus interprets Gal 1:11-17. The heavenly visitor not only reveals to Paul but conducts him above to (the heavenly) Jerusalem, to the apostles, thus interpreting Gal 2:1-2 also. The ascent itself builds on 2 Co 12:2-4.

The scene of the judgment and punishment of souls in the fourth and fifth heavens has its closest parallel in Jewish apocalyptic literature, notably in the Testament of Abraham 10 (long recension) and even more closely in the Coptic version of the short recension, which has several details peculiar to it. The author of Apoc. Paul is indebted to other traditions, however, for his picture of the three angels who rival one another in whipping the souls forward to judgment (22,5-10). This is clearly an evocation of the Erinyes of Greek mythology. Likewise the toll-collector who is also judge belongs to Babylonian and Hellenistic astrology. The scene is thus the result of popular syncretism.

The third main element of the work, the heavenly journey, is concentrated for the most part in the sixth and seventh heavens. The ascent theme may have been borrowed from Jewish apocalyptic tradition, but its gnostic coloring is obvious in the depiction of the "old man" on the throne in the seventh heaven (Dan 7:13; 1 Enoch 46-47) as a hostile figure who tries to block the gnostic soul's ascent to the Ogdoad and the higher heavens. And the interrogation of Paul also recalls similar dialogues or formulas in other gnostic works (e.g., 1 Apoc. Jas. (V,3), Gos. Mary (BG,1), Gos. Thom. (II,2, saying 50).

The date and provenance of the document cannot be determined with any certainty. That it comes from gnostic circles with a typical anti-Jewish bias seems assured by the negative view of the deity in the seventh heaven. The portrayal of Paul as exalted even above the other apostles is at home in second-century Gnosticism, especially Valentinianism, and, according to Irenaeus (Haer. II.30.7), there was a gnostic tradition of interpreting Paul's experience in 2 Co 12:2-4. Nothing in Apoc. Paul demands any later date than the second century for its composition.

THE APOCALYPSE OF PAUL

THE (FIRST) APOCALYPSE OF JAMES (V,3)

DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

The manuscript names this writing The Apocalypse of James. We refer to it here as The (First) Apocalypse of James to distinguish it from the next writing (V,4) which the manuscript also entitles The Apocalypse of James. Our apocalypse is an excellent example of a "revelation dialogue." The partners in the dialogue are the Lord and James the Lord's brother (though the latter is said to be the Lord's brother only in a purely spiritual sense). In the first part of the writing (24,10-30,11) James addresses questions to the Lord that reflect his anxiety at the suffering soon to overtake both himself and the Lord, and the Lord provides James consolation in terms of standard gnostic teaching about the place of man in the universe. An oblique and very brief reference to the crucifixion in 30,12-13 serves as the turning point in the account. After the reappearance of the Lord, the story is dominated by a series of formulae transmitted to James to enable him to meet the challenges of the hostile powers who will attempt to block his ascent to "the Pre-Existent One" after his martyrdom (32,23-36,1). These formulae represent a dramatized version of texts that appear elsewhere in the context of rites for the dying in forms of Valentinian Gnosticism (Irenaeus, Haer. 1.21.5; Epiphanius, Pan. 36.3.1-6). It is worth noting, however, that at least one characteristic line that appears here ("I am an alien, a son of the Father's race") has a close parallel in the Corpus Hermeticum (13.3). Other interesting matters taken up in the second part of our apocalypse include the directions concerning the handing on of the teaching in secret (36,13-38,11), the comments about the value of women as disciples (38,15-41,18), the mention of James' rebuke of the twelve disciples (42,20-24), and the relatively lengthy account (now much mutilated) of James' martyrdom at the conclusion of the writing.

The designation of James as "James the Just" (32,2-3; cf. 43,19) indicates contact with Jewish Christian tradition (cf. Hegesippus, in Eusebius, H.E. 2.23.4,7; Gospel according to the Hebrews, in Jerome, De viris inl. 2; Gos. Thom., saying 12). The inclusion of Addai (36,15-24) in the list of figures who will hand on the teaching in secret points to contact with Syria and thereby possibly also to a Semitic form of Christianity (cf. Eusebius, H.E. 1.13). Some scholars have argued that numerous other themes in our apocalypse also betray the influence of Jewish Christian theology. But apart from the importance attributed to James the Just there is little in the writing that can with any confidence be attributed to the influence of Jewish Christianity in particular. There is a good possibility, then, that the figure of James was chosen by a circle of Gnostics as a convenient peg on which to hang their teaching.

One reason for the appeal of the figure of James was the fact that he stood outside the circle of twelve disciples and because of his relationship to Jesus (here understood in purely spiritual terms) could be appealed to as the originator of a purer form of Christian teaching than that represented by the twelve. In this connection, the command to hand on the teaching in secret presumably served to explain why it was that Gnosticism appeared to the uninitiated as a relatively late flowering of the religion of Jesus. Our apocalypse, in short, was attempting to present an alternative to the apostolic authority claimed for the teaching of a steadily advancing catholic form of Christianity. It appears, however, that whereas Jerusalem and Judaism are associated with the darker powers of the universe, the twelve (and thus catholic Christianity) move within the more beneficent spheres of the activity of Achamoth, the lesser Sophia.

Another reason for the appeal that the figure of James had for some Gnostics was that it enabled them to make more sense of the history of the first century. The fall of Jerusalem was an event that cried out for explanation. And though it soon seemed natural to attribute the disaster to the treatment of Jesus by the Jews (cf. Origen, Contra Celsum 2.13; Eusebius, H.E. 3.7), it was even more natural to connect the fall of Jerusalem with the treatment meted out to James by Jewish authorities just before the great war with Rome (Hegesippus, in Eusebius, H.E. 2.23). A careful Christian scholar was bound to find this disquieting (cf. Origen, Contra Celsum 1.47). Our apocalypse, however, has no such uneasiness and finds it possible to exploit the role of James for two reasons. First, the difference between the redeemer (the Lord) and the redeemed (James, the prototypical disciple) is significantly less pronounced in Gnosticism (cf. 27,8-10 where James is flatly identified with "Him-who-is"). Consequently, the two figures complement rather than rival one another in ways that are difficult for catholic Christianity to contemplate. Second, the general gnostic view that martyrdom could be (and in the minds of some Gnostics inevitably was) embraced for the wrong reasons made the emergence of resolve in this regard only after a long period of fear and anxiety a perfectly natural expectation. Thus the crucifixion of Jesus and the martyrdom of James are seen as complementary events, both of which are required for the full exemplification of the victory over the powers of darkness. In this connection, the defeat of the archons by James during his ascent to God is presumably connected with the fall of Jerusalem, the dwelling place (according to 25,15-19) of many archons.

A guide to the place of James in early Christianity is provided by a fragment of Clement of Alexandria: "To James the Just and John and Peter the Lord transmitted the gnosis after the resurrection. They transmitted it to the other apostles. And the other apostles transmitted it to the seventy . . ." (Eusebius, H.E. 2.1.4). The passage strongly suggests that there were three main (no doubt overlapping) stages in the development of the image of James: 1) as James the Just, a symbol of Jewish-Christian values; 2) as the recipient of postresurrection revelation in a Gnosticizing milieu; and 3) as a colleague of the apostles of the Lord in a catholicizing milieu. Our apocalypse presumably reflects an interest in James that corresponds to the second main stage of the development of his image.

It should be noted finally that there is some evidence of the direct influence of esoteric Jewish speculation in our apocalypse. For it is only through an unusual manipulation of numbers and an awareness of the importance of the number 72 in Jewish lore that we can account for the fact that "twelve hebdomads" ( $12 \times 7$ ) amount to "seventy-two heavens (26,2-18).

THE (FIRST) APOCALYPSE OF JAMES

The Apocalypse of James <sup>1</sup>

It is the Lord who spoke with me: <sup>1</sup> "See now the completion of my redemption. <sup>1</sup> I have given you a sign of these things, James, <sup>1</sup> my brother. For not without reason have I called <sup>15</sup> you my brother, although you are not my brother <sup>1</sup> materially. And I am not ignorant <sup>1</sup> concerning you; so that <sup>1</sup> when I give you a sign – know and <sup>1</sup> hear.

"Nothing existed except <sup>20</sup> Him-who-is. He is unnameable <sup>1</sup> and ineffable. <sup>1</sup> I myself also am unnameable, <sup>1</sup> from Him-who-is, just as I have been <sup>1</sup> [given a] number of names – two <sup>25</sup> from Him-who-is. And I, <sup>1</sup> [I] am before you. Since you have <sup>1</sup> [asked] concerning femaleness, femaleness existed, <sup>1</sup> but femaleness was <sup>1</sup> not [first]. And <sup>30</sup> [it] prepared for itself powers and gods. <sup>1</sup> But [it did] not exist [when] I came forth, 25 since I am an image of Him-who-is. <sup>1</sup> But I have brought forth the image of [him] <sup>1</sup> so that the sons of Him-who-is <sup>1</sup> might know what things are theirs <sup>5</sup> and what things are alien (to them). Behold, <sup>1</sup> I shall reveal to you everything <sup>1</sup> of this mystery. For they will seize <sup>1</sup> me the day after tomorrow. But my <sup>1</sup> redemption will be near." <sup>10</sup>

James said, <sup>1</sup> “Rabbi, behold then, I have received <sup>15</sup> their number. There are seventy-two measures!” <sup>1</sup> The Lord said, “These <sup>1</sup> are the seventy-two heavens, which <sup>1</sup> are their subordinates. These are the powers of <sup>1</sup> all their might; and they were <sup>20</sup> established by them; <sup>1</sup> and these are they who were distributed <sup>1</sup> everywhere, existing under the [authority] <sup>1</sup> of the twelve archons. <sup>1</sup> The inferior power among them <sup>25</sup> [brought forth] for itself angels <sup>1</sup> [and] unnumbered hosts. <sup>1</sup> Him-who-is, however, has been given <sup>1</sup> [...] on account of <sup>1</sup> [...] Him-who-is <sup>30</sup> [...] they are unnumbered. 27 If you want <sup>1</sup> to give them a number now, you [will] <sup>1</sup> not be able to (do so) until you cast away <sup>1</sup> from yourself blind thought, <sup>5</sup> this bond of flesh which encircles you. <sup>1</sup> And then you will reach <sup>1</sup> Him-who-is. <sup>1</sup> And you will no longer be <sup>1</sup> James; rather you are <sup>10</sup> the One-who-is. And all those who are <sup>1</sup> unnumbered will <sup>1</sup> all have been named.” <sup>1</sup>

You have come with knowledge, that <sup>1</sup> you might rebuke their forgetfulness.
You have come with <sup>1</sup> recollection, that you might rebuke their <sup>10</sup> ignorance.

But I was concerned <sup>1</sup> because of you.

For you descended into a <sup>1</sup> great ignorance, but <sup>1</sup> you have not been defiled by anything in it. <sup>1</sup>
For you descended into a great mindlessness, <sup>15</sup> and your recollection remained. <sup>1</sup>

You walked in mud, <sup>1</sup> and your garments were not soiled, <sup>1</sup> and you have not been buried <sup>1</sup> in their filth, and <sup>20</sup> you have not been caught.

yet I <sup>1</sup> remember things that are not theirs. <sup>25</sup>
There is in me [...], <sup>1</sup> and I am in their <sup>1</sup> [...].

THE (SECOND) APOCALYPSE OF JAMES (V,4)

Introduced and translated by

CHARLES W. HEDRICK

Edited by

DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

The fourth tractate in Codex V has been given the modern title The (Second) Apocalypse of James in order to distinguish it from the preceding tractate, since both documents have the same ancient title: The Apocalypse of James. The twenty pages comprising the tractate are preserved in a fragmentary state. The literary form is difficult to describe. The title of the text calls it an apocalypse, and the first line describes it as a discourse. In the sense that James relates a revelation received from the resurrected Jesus, it may be called a revelation discourse. However, its actual structure is cast in the form of a two-part report to Theuda, the father of James, by Mareim, a priest and relative of Theuda, who apparently was present at the stoning of James.

The tractate contains at least four sections artistically arranged. Because of their balance and stylized form they have been described as “harmonic prose” possessing a “hymnic” quality. Three of these units are aretalogies. One (49,5-15) is a series of self-assertions by the resurrected Jesus in the “I am” style. Another (58,2-20) is a series of predications about the resurrected Jesus made by James in the third person (i.e., “he is”). In a further aretalogy (55,15-56,13) the resurrected Jesus describes James’ special role in the second person (i.e., “you are”). The entire description in the third aretalogy suggests that James is intended to perform the function of gnostic redeemer.

The fourth unit (62,16-63,29) is a prayer attributed to James. Its present setting requires that one read it as the prayer of a martyr shortly before death. However, it is by no means certain that the present setting of the prayer was its original setting. Apart from its context, it has the character of a prayer that one might pray if one were facing some future period of persecution or trial. The request in 62,21-22 suggests that there was a prospect of continued existence in the world. The material in 63,23-24 speaks of something other than a painful death, already mentioned in 63,5-6, and in fact suggests trials and tribulations such as one might anticipate in one’s daily experience.

The tractate as a whole is clearly gnostic in character, yet it shows remarkable restraint in treating usual gnostic themes. Nor can it be identified with any of the known gnostic systems of the second century. On the other hand, the author has made extensive use of Jewish-Christian traditions. James, who held a position of special prominence in Jewish-Christian circles, is regarded as the possessor of a special revelation from Jesus and is assigned a role in the gnostic tradition that rivals, and perhaps exceeds, that of Peter in the canonical tradition. For example,

James is the “escort” who guides the Gnostic through the door of the heavenly kingdom and even rewards him (55,6-14; cf. 55,15-56,13). The description is similar to Peter’s charge as the keeper of the keys of heaven (Mt 16:19).

As to the date and place of composition, little can be said with certainty. Because of the basic Jewish-Christian traditions out of which the tractate is composed, it is probable that its origin is to be associated with Jewish-Christian circles. The absence of allusions to the later developed gnostic systems, and the almost total absence of allusions to the New Testament tradition suggest an early date for the origin of the tractate.

The presence and order of the two James apocalypses in Codex V are undoubtedly due to deliberate scribal organization. The two apocalypses stress different aspects of the James tradition and actually complement one another. The setting of I Apoc. Jas. emphasizes the period prior to the suffering of James, while 2 Apoc. Jas. describes his suffering and death in line with the predictions in I Apoc. Jas.

THE (SECOND) APOCALYPSE OF JAMES

I am the beloved. <sup>1</sup>

I am the righteous one. <sup>10</sup>

I am the son of <sup>1</sup> [the Father].

I speak even as <sup>1</sup> [I] heard.

I command <sup>1</sup> even as I [received] the order.

I <sup>1</sup> show you (pl.) even as <sup>15</sup> I have [found].

 You are an illuminator <sup>1</sup> and a redeemer <sup>1</sup> of those who are mine, and now <sup>20</sup> of those who are yours.
 You shall <sup>1</sup> reveal (to them);
 you shall bring good <sup>1</sup> among them all.

You [they shall] <sup>1</sup> admire because of every powerful (deed). <sup>1</sup>
 You are he whom the heavens <sup>25</sup> bless.
 You <sup>1</sup> he shall envy, he [who has] <sup>1</sup> called himself your [Lord]. <sup>1</sup>
 I am the [. . .] 56
 [those who] are instructed in these (things) with [you]. <sup>1</sup>

For your sake
 they will be told <sup>1</sup> [these (things)], and will come to rest. <sup>1</sup>

For your sake
 they will reign,
 [and will] <sup>5</sup> become kings.

For [your] sake <sup>1</sup>
 they will have pity on whomever they pity. <sup>1</sup>

For just as <sup>1</sup> you are first
 you are also the <sup>10</sup> first who will strip himself, <sup>1</sup>

and dwelled in it, <sup>1</sup> did not see.

He was [this one who] <sup>1</sup> is the life.

He <sup>1</sup> was the light.

He <sup>1</sup> was that one who will come to be. <sup>10</sup>

And again he shall provide

He was the Holy Spirit <sup>15</sup> and the Invisible One, <sup>1</sup> who did not descend <sup>1</sup> upon the earth.

He was <sup>1</sup> the virgin, and that which <sup>1</sup> he wishes happens <sup>20</sup> to him.

That which he wills <sup>1</sup> happens to him [...]. 59

 who saved me from<sup>1</sup> this dead hope,<sup>1</sup> who made me alive through a<sup>20</sup> mystery of what he wills,<sup>1</sup>

 but the day of your (sg.) <sup>1</sup> [light . . .] remains <sup>25</sup> in [ . . . ] 63 salvation.

Deliver me from this <sup>1</sup> [place of] sojourn!

 but may <sup>1</sup> your grace become pure! <sup>5</sup>

Save me from an <sup>1</sup> evil death!

Bring me from <sup>1</sup> a tomb alive, because your grace – <sup>1</sup> love – is alive in me <sup>1</sup> to accomplish a work of fullness! <sup>10</sup>

Save me from <sup>1</sup> sinful flesh, because I trusted <sup>1</sup> in you with all my strength!

Because you <sup>1</sup> are the life of the life,

Do not give me into the hand <sup>1</sup> of a judge who is severe <sup>1</sup> with sin!

Forgive me <sup>1</sup> all my debts of the <sup>1</sup> days (of my life)!

Because I am alive <sup>20</sup> in you, your grace is alive in me. <sup>1</sup>

I have renounced everyone, <sup>1</sup>
 but you I have confessed. <sup>1</sup>

But now is the [time] <sup>25</sup> and the hour.

O Holy <sup>1</sup> [Spirit], send [me] <sup>1</sup> salvation [ . . . ] the light [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup>
 the light [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> in a power [ . . . ].' <sup>30</sup>

THE APOCALYPSE OF ADAM (V,5)

The Apocalypse of Adam is a revelation received by Adam from three heavenly visitors and narrated by him to his son Seth. He explains the loss of saving knowledge by himself and Eve (the fall), its transmission to Seth and his descendants, and its preservation, despite the attempts of the creator-god to destroy mankind by flood and by fire, until the third coming of a savior figure, the "Illuminator." The latter is persecuted by the powers of the world but will ultimately triumph over them. At the mention of his coming there is a long hymnic passage (77,27-83,4), which may be an interpolation into an original apocalypse, in which thirteen false or inadequate explanations of his origin are contrasted with a true one by the "generation without a king," i.e., the Gnostics. This unusual passage is a remarkable example of gnostic syncretism.

In terms of literary form the work embodies a whole succession of the traditional revelation devices. First, the revelation comes to Adam in a dream vision (65,24-66,23) in which it is not clearly stated that he sees the events of the future but perhaps is merely told them. Secondly, Adam's narration to Seth takes the form of a secret traditio from father to son (85,19-22). Thirdly, though not written in a book, these words are hidden on a high mountain (85,3-11). Finally, since Adam's revelation takes place just before his death, the work assumes the form of a testament. Though it is clearly dependent on certain episodes of the Genesis story which are often found in gnostic revelation literature, Apoc. Adam does not follow closely the text of Genesis as do Hyp. Arch. (II,4) and Ap. John (II,1), for example.

The most notable feature of this work is the absence of any explicit or clear borrowings from the Christian tradition. This has led several interpreters to see in it a witness to a non-Christian Gnosticism which contains an already well developed redeemer myth. On the other hand, its close dependence on Jewish apocalyptic tradition suggests that it may represent a transitional stage in an evolution from Jewish to gnostic apocalyptic. In this case the document may be a very early one, perhaps first or second century C.E., but no clear indications of its date have been perceived. Apoc. Adam is a Sethian work in the sense that Seth and his posterity are the tradents of the saving knowledge; it does not have any uniquely close affinities to the description of the Sethians found in Hippolytus (Ref. V.19-21) or Epiphanius (Pan. 39). Within the Nag Hammadi collection it has a great deal in common with Gos. Eg. (III,2), which seems to suppose a christianized version of the story. Using as a key the three sets of angel names, which are not common in the gnostic writings (Abraxas, Sablo, and Gamaliel, 75,22-23; Micheu, Michar, and Mnesinous, 84,5-6; Iesseus Mazareus Iessedekus, 85,30-31), we find that Apoc. Adam is related to The Untitled Text in the Bruce Codex, to Gos. Eg., to Zostrianos (VIII,1), and to Trim. Prot. (XIII,1). In addition several of these works share an interest in the personage of Seth and some concern with the interpretation of baptism, thus reflecting at least a remote connection with (Jewish) baptist circles.

There are references to "apocalypses of Adam" in the writings of the heresiologist Epiphanius (4th cent. C.E.) and Manichaean writings refer to "an apocalypse of Adam," but no direct connection with this tractate can be made in either case.

(George W. MacRae †)

The possibility that the third illuminator, described in 76,8-77,18, might be Christ, has continued to be discussed. Some who favor the identification with Christ have argued that the vagueness of the allusions is precisely what one would expect in an apocalyptic work. The apocalyptic tradition, however, did not prevent the writer from being rather precise about the flood. Also, the details that do come through in the illuminator's description only partly resemble the traditional details about Christ: He will come in great glory, bring the knowledge of the eternal God, and perform signs and wonders. The god of the powers will become angry. At that point the glory will withdraw. The flesh of the man, who was the illuminator when he had the glory, will be punished. We are not told the form of the punishment or whether it ended in death. Nor are we told of a subsequent resurrection. Thus the description is that of a charismatic figure who ran afoul of the authorities and was punished. It is difficult to see any compelling reason to identify this figure with Christ.

Seams in the text have invited those interested in source analysis. In addition to the suggestion, noted above, that the long hymnic passage (13 Kingdoms) was originally independent, two other proposals should be mentioned. One is that the tractate originally ended at 84,3 and that the remainder was added later (it seems to have its own theme — opposition to water baptism). The other is that the tractate is the result of the combining of two separate source documents by a redactor, who also made some contributions of his own. One can get a sense of the basis for the latter theory by looking at the following passages, which, it is contended, are the beginning sections of each of the sources: (A) 64,6-65,23; 66,12-67,11; (B) 65,24-66,12; 67,12-67,21).

THE APOCALYPSE OF ADAM

 [that] he came [from . . .]. 78 A spirit [. . .] to heaven.
 He was nourished <sup>1</sup> in the heavens.
 He received the glory <sup>1</sup> of that one and the power. He came <sup>1</sup> to the bosom of his mother. <sup>5</sup>
 And thus he came to the water. <sup>1</sup>

“And the second kingdom says <sup>1</sup> about him that he came <sup>1</sup> from a great prophet. <sup>1</sup> And a bird came, took <sup>10</sup> the child who was born and brought him <sup>1</sup> onto a high moun-
 And he was nourished by <sup>1</sup> the bird of heaven. An angel <sup>1</sup> came forth there. He said to him, <sup>15</sup> ‘Arise! God has given glory <sup>1</sup> to you.’
 He received glory and strength. <sup>1</sup>
 And thus he came to the water. <sup>1</sup>

“The third kingdom says <sup>1</sup> of him that he came <sup>20</sup> from a virgin womb. <sup>1</sup> He was cast out of his ci-
 He was nourished <sup>1</sup> there.
 He came and received <sup>25</sup> glory and power.
 And thus <sup>1</sup> he came to the water. <sup>1</sup>

 he and Phersalo <sup>1</sup> and Sael and his armies, <sup>1</sup> which had been sent out. Solomon <sup>1</sup> himself sent his army <sup>5</sup> of demons to seek out the <sup>1</sup> virgin. And they did not find <sup>1</sup> the one whom they sought, but <sup>1</sup> the virgin who was given to them. <sup>1</sup> It was she
 pregnant and gave birth to <sup>1</sup> the child there. <sup>1</sup>
 She nourished him on a border <sup>1</sup> of the desert. When <sup>15</sup> he had been nourished, he received glory <sup>1</sup> and power from the seed <sup>1</sup> from which he had been begotten. <sup>1</sup>
 And thus he came to the <sup>1</sup> water.

“And the fifth <sup>20</sup> kingdom says of him that <sup>1</sup> he came from a <sup>1</sup> drop from heaven. He was thrown <sup>1</sup> into the sea. The abyss <sup>1</sup> received him, gave birth to him, <sup>25</sup> and brought him to heaven.

He received <sup>1</sup> glory and power.
 And <sup>1</sup> thus he came to [the water]. <sup>1</sup>

 that a [. . . <sup>30</sup> down] to the aeon 80 which is below, in order to [gather] <sup>1</sup> flowers. She became pregnant from <sup>1</sup> the desire of the flowers. She <sup>1</sup> gave birth to him in that place. <sup>5</sup>

 And thus he came <sup>1</sup> to the water.

 that he is a drop. <sup>1</sup> It came from heaven to earth. <sup>1</sup> Dragons brought him down to caves. <sup>1</sup> He became a <sup>15</sup> child. A spirit came upon him and <sup>1</sup> brought him on high to the place where the <sup>1</sup> drop had come forth. <sup>1</sup>

He received glory and power <sup>1</sup> there.
 And thus <sup>20</sup> he came to the water.

 that a cloud came <sup>1</sup> upon the earth and enveloped a <sup>1</sup> rock. He came <sup>25</sup> from it.

 He [received] glory <sup>1</sup> [and] power [there].
 And [thus he] came to [the water]. 81

“And the [ninth] kingdom says <sup>1</sup> of him that from the nine <sup>1</sup> Muses one separated away. <sup>1</sup> She came to a high mountain and spent <sup>5</sup> (some) time seated there, so that <sup>1</sup> she desired herself alone <sup>1</sup> in order to become androgynous. <sup>1</sup> She ful-
 born.

The <sup>1</sup> angels who were over the desire nourished him. <sup>1</sup>
 And he received glory there <sup>1</sup> and power.
 And <sup>1</sup> thus he came to the water.

 and cast <sup>1</sup> upon the cloud above him <sup>20</sup> (some) of the drop, and <sup>1</sup> he was born.

He received glory and <sup>1</sup> power there.
 And <sup>1</sup> thus he came to the water. <sup>1</sup>

 that the father <sup>1</sup> desired his [own] <sup>1</sup> daughter. She herself became pregnant <sup>1</sup> [from] her father. She cast [...] <sup>1</sup> tomb 82 out in the desert.

The angel <sup>1</sup> nourished him there.
 And thus he came <sup>1</sup> to the water.

 that he came from <sup>1</sup> two illuminators.
 He was <sup>1</sup> nourished there.
 He received glory <sup>1</sup> and power.
 And thus he came <sup>10</sup> to the water.

 that every birth <sup>1</sup> of their ruler is a word. <sup>1</sup>
 And his word received <sup>15</sup> a mandate there.
 He <sup>1</sup> received glory and power. <sup>1</sup>
 And thus he came to the water, <sup>1</sup>
 in order that the desire <sup>1</sup> of those powers might be satisfied.

 him from all the aeons. <sup>1</sup> He caused knowledge of the <sup>1</sup> undefiled one of truth to come to be <sup>25</sup> [in] him. [He (or: It)] said, ‘[Out of] <sup>1</sup> a foreign air, <sup>1</sup> [from a] great aeon, [the <sup>1</sup> great] illuminator came forth. [And he made] 83 the generation of those men <sup>1</sup> whom he had chosen for himself

 and (that) of them all, will fight against the power. <sup>1</sup> And a cloud <sup>1</sup> of darkness will come upon them.

 a knowledge <sup>1</sup> of the truth! They shall live forever, <sup>15</sup> because they have not been <sup>1</sup> corrupted by their desire, <sup>1</sup> along with the angels, nor <sup>1</sup> have they accomplished the works of the <sup>1</sup> powers, but they have stood <sup>20</sup> in his presence in a knowledge <sup>1</sup> of God like light <sup>1</sup> that has come forth from <sup>1</sup> fire and blood.

 eternal. These are against our <sup>1</sup> spirits. For now we have known that <sup>1</sup>

THE ACTS OF PETER AND THE TWELVE APOSTLES (VI, J)

Introduced by

DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

Translated by

DOUGLAS M. PARROTT and R. MCL. WILSON

The title appears only at the conclusion of the tractate. At first glance it gives the impression of referring to thirteen apostles (Peter plus the twelve). But a reading of the text makes it clear that the title probably has to do with two different "acts": an act of Peter (1,30-5,5) and an act of the apostolic group (5,5-12,19). The title, however, must nonetheless be secondary, since the number twelve contradicts the explicit statement of the text that the disciples numbered eleven (9,20-21).

The tractate can be divided into four major units:

1. An introductory section, which sets the stage for the tractate. The first seven lines probably contained some indication of initial setting and purpose. The narrator is Peter (1,30) and the time is after the crucifixion, since the apostles undertake their journey on their own immediate initiative, and Jesus is not with them. The fact that there are only eleven disciples, however, suggests the preascension period. Having decided to undertake their ministry together, the apostles find a ship and set sail (1,16-26). They appear to leave their destination to the Lord. The ship arrives at an island city called Habitation, and Peter goes to learn about lodgings.

2. Peter meets a pearl merchant and sees the response of the rich and the poor to him (2,10-5,18). He observes that the rich turn away from him when he hawks his wares because they think he really has none. The poor, however, flock to him, although they lack the means to buy what he offers. They would be content to see a pearl. But the merchant says he will give them one without cost, if they would go to his city. The poor ask Peter about the hazards of the way to the city. Peter tells them what he has heard and turns to the merchant, asking about his name and the hardships of the way. The merchant tells him his name is Lithargoel, which is interpreted in the text as a lightweight, gazelle-like (i.e., gleaming like a gazelle's eyes) stone, presumably a pearl.

3. The journey of Peter and his friends to Lithargoel's city (5,19-8,11), following instructions by Lithargoel. The only way to prepare for the journey to the city of "nine gates" is complete renunciation of possessions and a regimen of fasting, so that one will have nothing predators might want (5,19-6,8). All that is needed is the name of Jesus (6,9-19). Then Peter sees a vision of the walls of the city surrounded by waves. The meaning of this is interpreted in a brief dialogue between Peter and an old man. Peter and the disciples then make the journey to the city.

4. The appearance of Lithargoel as a physician, his revelation of himself as Jesus Christ, and the commissioning of the eleven disciples (8,11-12,19). Lithargoel comes out of the city disguised as a physician and says that he will show them where Lithargoel lives (8,11-35). Instead of doing that, however, he reveals that he is Jesus Christ (9,1-19), in a dialogue with Peter that has been traced to Matthew 16,13-19. After the disciples prostrate themselves in worship and indicate their willingness to do his will, Christ, who is henceforth called the Lord, gives them a box and pouch of medicine and commissions them to return to Habitation, the city from which they came. They are to teach and minister to the faithful, with special emphasis on the poor (9,1-10,13). Peter objects that they have nothing to give the poor, since they have renounced everything, but the Lord points out that they have his name, which is of more value than anything else (10,13-30). After further discussion, the dialogue concludes with the injunction to avoid the rich. The disciples accept the commission and the Lord departs.

The text is composite. This can be seen by the awkward relationship among the various sections. For example, between sections 2 and 3, the reader expects the poor to go to the pearl merchant's city, but only the disciples do; two differing explanations are given for Peter's request about the way; the reader is unprepared for Peter's asking about the merchant's name; the reader is surprised that journey from the island city can be undertaken by foot. Examples of problems between 4 and the earlier sections are these: the sudden shift to third person narrative; the information that the disciples are expected to continue a ministry to Christians (10,4-6) (one had the impression at the start that the disciples were embarking on a mission to a non-Christian world), and the presence of explicit rules regarding church life at the conclusion of the tractate.

Four originally independent accounts seem to have been brought together by an editor. Three probably began as parables or allegories, somewhat resembling those found in The Shepherd of Hermas: the story of the pearl merchant who is rejected by the rich and accepted by the poor; the account of a city surrounded by walls (in part three, above) called Habitation; and the story of a journey whose successful completion required giving up food and possessions, rather than having enough of them. The fourth is the account of Christ's commissioning of the disciples to undertake a ministry of preaching and healing among poor and sick Christians. These accounts are related to each other by the common presence of Peter and the other disciples, and by the name Lithargoel, which serves to connect the pearl merchant, in section 2, with the one who gives instructions about the way, in section 3, and, then, also, with Christ, in section 4, who commissions the disciples.

The narrative intention of the final editor appears to have been to depict the disciples' preparation for apostolic activity. In the course of the account, he shifts the time frame from the earliest apostolic period to that of his own time. The result is that, at the conclusion of the final segment, it is not really the original disciples who are being commissioned, but their latter day representatives. In view of the shift, it appears that the editor wished to remind contemporary church leaders about their true mission.

Lithargoel may originally have been a non-Christian deity. But since no record of a Lithargoel cult has come down to us, it seems more reasonable to think that identification of Lithargoel with Jesus Christ (9,8-15) was the intention when the word was first coined. (See Acts of Peter 20 and Rv 2:17.) The image of Christ as a physician may have been a way of dealing with the popularity of the cult of Asclepius.

It has sometimes been assumed that this tractate is gnostic. But that view has been based more on its presence in the Nag Hammadi library than on the text itself. As has been discussed elsewhere (see introduction to Asclepius 21-29 [VI,8]), the codex in which it is found is not itself gnostic, but rather a miscellaneous collection of spiritual writings reflecting on the ultimate fate of the soul. If one examines the tractate by itself, little is found that would have offended developing orthodoxy. The Christology is that of the divine sonship; the crucifixion and death of Jesus, although not mentioned, may be implied (see 2,14). The theme of apostolic poverty is found in the Gospels, as is the polemic against the rich. A moderate encratite emphasis may be seen in the prohibition on the eating of meat, but there is nothing said about sexual activity or marriage. The tractate, then, does not appear to have sprung from or be directed to a sectarian group within early Christianity. The editor rather seems to be standing within the broad church and to be appealing for a return to apostolic practice on the part of the leaders.

It seems unlikely that this tractate would have been part of the lost portion of the apocryphal Acts of Peter, as has been proposed (see introduction to The Act of Peter [BG,4], for discussion).

The Acts of Peter and the Twelve Apostles is to be grouped with the apocryphal Acts of the second and third centuries, rather than with the later ones, with which it has little in common. The similarity of portions of it to The Shepherd of Hermas suggests a second-century date for them.

THE ACTS OF PETER AND THE TWELVE APOSTLES

VI 1, 1-12, 22

We went down to the sea at <sup>15</sup> an opportune moment, which came <sup>1</sup> to us from the Lord. We <sup>1</sup> found a ship moored at the shore <sup>1</sup> ready to embark, <sup>1</sup> and we spoke with the sailors of <sup>20</sup> the ship about our coming aboard with them. <sup>1</sup> They showed great <sup>1</sup> kindness toward us as <sup>1</sup> was ordained by the Lord. <sup>1</sup> And after we had embarked, <sup>25</sup> we sailed a day <sup>1</sup> and a night. After that, <sup>1</sup> a wind came up behind the ship and <sup>1</sup> brought us to a small city <sup>1</sup> in the midst of the sea. <sup>30</sup>

And <sup>1</sup> having said these things, he cried out, <sup>1</sup> “Pearls! Pearls!” <sup>1</sup> The rich men of that <sup>15</sup> city heard his voice. <sup>1</sup> They came out of their hidden storerooms. <sup>1</sup> And some were <sup>1</sup> looking out from the storerooms <sup>1</sup> of their houses. Others <sup>20</sup> looked out from their <sup>1</sup> upper windows. And they did not see (that they could gain) <sup>1</sup> anything from him, because <sup>1</sup> there was no pouch on his back nor <sup>1</sup> bundle inside his cloth <sup>25</sup> and napkin. And because of their <sup>1</sup> disdain they did not <sup>1</sup> even acknowledge him. <sup>1</sup> He, for his part, did not reveal himself to them. <sup>1</sup> They returned to their <sup>30</sup> storerooms, saying, <sup>1</sup> “This man is mocking us.” <sup>1</sup>

are beggars, we surely know that a man does not give a pearl<sup>20</sup> to a beggar, but (it is) bread and money that is usually received. Now then, the kindness which we want to receive from you (is) that you show us the pearl before our eyes.<sup>25</sup> And we will say to our friends proudly that we saw a pearl with our (own) eyes" – because it is not found among the poor, especially such beggars (as these). He answered<sup>30</sup> (and) said to them, "If it is possible, you yourselves come to my city, so that I may not only show you it, but give it to you for nothing."<sup>35</sup> The poor and the beggars rejoiced because of the man [who gives for] nothing.

[The men asked Peter] about the hardships. Peter answered [and told] those things that he had heard about the [hardships]<sup>5</sup> of [the] way. Because they are [interpreters of the] hardships in their ministry.

He said to the man who sells this pearl, "I want to know your name and the hardships of<sup>10</sup> the way to your city because we are strangers and servants of God. It is necessary for us to spread the word of God in every city harmoniously." He<sup>15</sup> answered and said, "If you seek my name, Lithargoel is my name, the interpretation of which is, the light, gazelle-like stone."

"And also (concerning) the road to the city,<sup>20</sup> which you asked me about, I will tell you about it. No man is able to go on that road, except one who has forsaken everything that he has and has fasted<sup>25</sup> daily from stage to stage. For many are the robbers and wild beasts on that road. The one who carries bread with him on the road, the black dogs<sup>30</sup> kill because of the bread. The one who carries a costly garment of the world with him, the robbers kill<sup>6</sup> [because of the] garment. [The one who carries] water [with him, the wolves kill because of the water], since they were thirsty [for] it. [The one who] is anxious about [meat] and<sup>5</sup> green vegetables, the lions eat because of the meat. [If] he evades the lions, the bulls devour him because of the green vegetables."

When he had said [these] things to me, I sighed<sup>10</sup> within myself, saying, "[Great] hardships are on the road! If only Jesus would give us power to walk it!" He looked at me since my face was sad, and I signed. He said to me, "Why<sup>15</sup> do you sigh, if you, indeed, know this name 'Jesus' and believe him? He is a great power for giving strength. For I too believe in the Father who sent him."

I replied,<sup>20</sup> asking him, "What is the name of the place to which you go, your city?" He said to me, "This is the name of my city, 'Nine Gates.' Let us praise God<sup>25</sup> as we are mindful that the tenth is the head." After this I went away from him in peace.

swered, “I want to ask you who gave the <sup>10</sup> name Peter to you?” He said to him, “It was Jesus Christ, the son of the living God. He gave this name to me.” He answered and said, “It is I! Recognize me, <sup>15</sup> Peter.” He loosened the garment, which clothed him – the one into which he had changed himself because of us – revealing to us in truth that it was he.

We prostrated ourselves <sup>20</sup> on the ground and worshipped him. We comprised eleven disciples. He stretched forth his hand and caused us to stand. We spoke with him humbly. Our heads were <sup>25</sup> bowed down in unworthiness as we said, “What you wish we will do. But give us power to do what you wish at all times.” <sup>20</sup>

He gave them the unguent box and the pouch that was in the hand of the young disciple. He commanded them like this, 10 saying, “Go into [the] city from which you came, which is called Habitation. Continue in endurance as you <sup>5</sup> teach all those who have believed in my name, because I have endured in hardships of the faith. I will give you your reward. To the poor of that city give <sup>10</sup> what they need in order to live until I give them what is better, which I told you that I will give you for nothing.”

Peter answered and said to him, <sup>15</sup> “Lord, you have taught us to forsake the world and everything in it. We have renounced them for your sake. What we are concerned about (now) is the food for a single day. <sup>20</sup> Where will we be able to find the needs that you ask us to provide for the poor?”

The Lord answered and said, “O Peter, it was necessary that you understand the parable <sup>25</sup> that I told you! Do you not understand that my name, which you teach, surpasses all riches, and the wisdom of God surpasses gold, and silver <sup>30</sup> and precious stone(s)?”

He gave them the pouch of medicine and said, “Heal all the sick of the city who believe 11 [in] my name.” Peter was afraid [to] reply to him for the second time. He signaled to the one who was beside him, who was John: “You <sup>5</sup> talk this time.” John answered and said, “Lord, before you we are afraid to say many words. But it is you who asks us <sup>10</sup> to practice this skill. We have not been taught to be physicians. How then will we know how to heal bodies as you have told us?”

He answered them, “Rightly have you <sup>15</sup> spoken, John, for I know that the physicians of this world heal what belongs to the world. The physicians of souls, however, heal the heart. Heal <sup>20</sup> the bodies first, therefore, so that through the real powers of healing for their

THE THUNDER: PERFECT MIND (VI,2)

Introduced and translated by

GEORGE W. MACRAE

Edited by

DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

The title appears to be double: "The Thunder" is not syntactically related to "Perfect Mind" but is separated by a mark of punctuation (:). It is nowhere referred to in the body of the work (unless one should reconstruct "[perfect] mind" at 18,9).

In content Thund. is virtually unique in the Nag Hammadi library and very unusual. It is a revelation discourse by a female figure who is, except possibly for the title, otherwise not specifically identified. The work has no apparent structural divisions but is written throughout in the first person, interweaving and combining three types of statement: self-proclamation in the "I am" style, exhortations to heed the speaker, and reproaches for failures to heed or love, etc. The most distinctive feature is that the self-proclamations are most often antithetical or even paradoxical. The parallelism of form suggests that originally these may have been part of a hymnic structure.

Parallels for this revelatory genre can be adduced from a variety of sources. In Orig. World (II,5) 114,7-15, the heavenly Eve utters a hymnic self-proclamation that is very similar to Thund. 13,19-14,9, and a trace of the same material, though not in the form of self-proclamation, occurs in a similar context in Hyp. Arch. (II,4) 89,14-17. It may be significant that the Thund. passage thus paralleled is not repeated in the work, whereas many of the other self-proclamations occur more than once in Thund., sometimes in varying forms. In such other Nag Hammadi works as Trim. Prot. (XIII,1) and the longer ending of Ap. John (II,1:30,11-31,25), there are examples of the "I style" of proclamation by a revealer figure, but without the antithetical context. There are three interesting parallels to Thund., in content or in style or in both, outside the Nag Hammadi corpus. One is the well-known "Hymn of Christ" in the Acts of John 94-96, in which Christ sings of himself in a succession of antitheses and contrasts, without, however, the use of "I am" formulas. The second example is a passage in the Mandaean Ginza R, Book VI, the so-called "Book of Dinanukht," which is generally thought to be one of the older sections of the Ginza. There the spirit Ewath recites a formula which contains antitheses similar to, but for the most part not identical with, those in Thund.: "I am death, I am life. I am darkness, I am light. I am error, I am truth, etc." The third example is a series of passages in ancient Indian literature in which contrasting or contradictory assertions are made of the Deity either in the "I am" form (Bhagavad-Gita IX,16-19) or in the second or third person (Atharva-Veda X, viii,27-28; Śvetāśvatara Upanishad IV,3). These examples include both personal categories (“Thou art woman, Thou art man”) and non-personal ones (“Death am I and deathlessness, What is not and that which is”).

In terms of the religious traditions represented in the Nag Hammadi collection, Thund. is difficult to classify. It contains no distinctively Christian, Jewish, or gnostic allusions and does not seem clearly to presuppose any particular gnostic myth. There are resemblances to the tone and style of the wisdom hymns in the Biblical and intertestamental wisdom literature, and the self-proclamations are similar to the Isis aretology inscriptions. But if the multiple assertions in these works are intended to assert the universality of Isis or of God’s wisdom, perhaps the antithetical assertions of Thund. are a way of asserting the totally other-worldly transcendence of the revealer.

(George W. MacRae †)

There has been a tendency among scholars to assume that Thund. is gnostic, in spite of George MacRae’s caution, expressed above. Accordingly it has been proposed that the female figure here is to be understood as a combination of the higher and lower Sophia figures found in gnostic literature. It has also been proposed that the figure is Eve, as she is understood in gnostic writings found in the Nag Hammadi collection (see references above) and mentioned elsewhere.

If one takes Thund. at face value and includes the title in consideration, the female figure who is the speaker throughout is named Thunder (feminine in Greek), a figure who must be understood in terms of the parallel phrase in the title: Perfect Mind. Thunder, in Greek myth, in the Hebrew Bible, and elsewhere, comes forth from the highest god (the Greeks sometimes called Zeus “The Thundering One”). It is the way in which the god makes his presence known on earth. In the tractate, Thunder is allegorized as Perfect Mind, meaning the extension of the divine into the world (1,1-2). The understanding of Perfect Mind appears to owe much to the Stoic notion of cosmic Pneuma, the active, intelligent element in all things, made up of air and fire. It was thought of as spanning all worldly divisions and dichotomies and at some level being responsible for everything that occurs. In its manifestation as reason, it was also able to instruct those who listen about the way to true life. (For Thunder’s similar role, see 20,26-27; 21,20-32). The tractate as it stands, is not Stoic, since it speaks of a power above Perfect Mind (1,1). But with its conception of the immanence of the divine in all aspects of the world, neither is it gnostic. It still remains “difficult to classify.”

THE THUNDER: PERFECT MIND

The Thunder: Perfect Mind <sup>1</sup>

I was sent forth from <sup>1</sup> [the] power, and I have come to those who <sup>1</sup> reflect upon me, and I have been found <sup>5</sup> among those who seek after me. <sup>1</sup> Look upon me, you (pl.) who reflect upon me, <sup>1</sup> and you hearers, hear me. <sup>1</sup>
 You who are waiting for me, take me <sup>1</sup> to yourselves.
 And do not banish me <sup>10</sup> from your sight. <sup>1</sup>
 And do not make your voice hate <sup>1</sup> me, nor your hearing. <sup>1</sup>
 Do not be ignorant of me anywhere <sup>1</sup> or any time. Be on your guard! <sup>15</sup>
 Do not be ignorant of me. <sup>1</sup>

For I am the first and the last.
 I <sup>1</sup> am the honored one and the scorned one. <sup>1</sup>
 I am the whore and the holy one. <sup>1</sup>
 I am the wife and the <sup>20</sup> virgin.
 I am <the mother> <sup>1</sup> and the daughter.
 I am the members <sup>1</sup> of my mother.
 I am the barren one <sup>1</sup> and many are her sons.
 I <sup>1</sup> am she whose wedding is great, and <sup>25</sup> I have not taken a husband.
 I am the midwife <sup>1</sup> and she who does not bear.
 I <sup>1</sup> am the solace of my labor pains.
 I <sup>1</sup> am the bride and the bridegroom, <sup>1</sup> and it is my husband who <sup>30</sup> begot me.
 I am the mother of <sup>1</sup> my father and the sister of my <sup>1</sup> husband, and he is my offspring. <sup>1</sup>
 I am the slave of him who <sup>1</sup> prepared me.
 I am the ruler 14 of my offspring.
 But he is the one who [begot me] <sup>1</sup> before the time on a birthday. <sup>1</sup>
 And he is my offspring [in] <sup>1</sup> (due) time, and my power <sup>5</sup> is from him.

 I am the staff <sup>1</sup> of his power in his youth,
 [and] <sup>1</sup> he is the rod of my <sup>1</sup> old age.
 And whatever he wills <sup>1</sup> happens to me.
 I am the silence <sup>10</sup> that is incomprehensible and the idea <sup>1</sup> whose remembrance is frequent. <sup>1</sup>
 I am the voice whose sound is <sup>1</sup> manifold and the word whose appearance <sup>1</sup> is multiple.
 I am the utterance of <sup>15</sup> my name.

 Why, you who hate me, <sup>1</sup> do you love me and <sup>1</sup> hate those who love me? <sup>1</sup>
 You who deny me, confess <sup>1</sup> me, and you who confess <sup>20</sup> me, deny me.
 You who tell <sup>1</sup> the truth about me, lie about me, and you <sup>1</sup> who have lied about me, tell the truth about me. <sup>1</sup>
 You who know me, be ignorant <sup>1</sup> of me, and those who have not <sup>25</sup> known me, let them know me. <sup>1</sup>

 For I am knowledge and <sup>1</sup> ignorance.
 I am <sup>1</sup> shame and boldness. <sup>1</sup>
 I am shameless; I am <sup>30</sup> ashamed.
 I am strength and <sup>1</sup> I am fear.
 I am <sup>1</sup> war and peace.
 Give heed <sup>1</sup> to me.
 I am the one who is disgraced <sup>1</sup> and the great one.

 Give heed to my 15 poverty and my wealth. <sup>1</sup>
 Do not be arrogant to me when I am <sup>1</sup> cast out upon the earth, [and] <sup>1</sup> you will find me in [those <sup>5</sup> that] are to come.
 And do not look <sup>1</sup> [upon] me on the dung-heap nor go <sup>1</sup> and leave me cast out, <sup>1</sup> and you will find me in <sup>1</sup> the kingdoms.
 And do not look <sup>10</sup> upon me when I am cast out among those who <sup>1</sup> are disgraced and in the least <sup>1</sup> places, nor laugh at me. <sup>1</sup>
 And do not cast me out among those who <sup>1</sup> are slain in violence. <sup>15</sup>
 But I, I am compassionate <sup>1</sup> and I am cruel.

 Be on your guard! <sup>1</sup>
 Do not hate my obedience <sup>1</sup> and do not love my self-control. <sup>1</sup>

In my weakness, do not <sup>20</sup> forsake me, and do <sup>1</sup> not be afraid of my power. <sup>1</sup>

For why do you despise <sup>1</sup> my fear

and strength <sup>1</sup> in trembling.

I am she who is <sup>1</sup> weak, and I am well in a <sup>1</sup> pleasant place.
I am <sup>30</sup> senseless and I am wise. <sup>1</sup>

Why have you hated me <sup>1</sup> in your counsels?
For I shall be <sup>1</sup> silent among those who are silent, <sup>1</sup>
and I shall appear and speak. 16

Why then have you hated me, you Greeks? <sup>1</sup>
Because I am a barbarian among [the] <sup>1</sup> barbarians?

For I am the wisdom <sup>1</sup> [of the] Greeks and the knowledge of [the] <sup>5</sup> barbarians.

I am the judgment of [the] <sup>1</sup> Greeks and of the barbarians.

and the one who has no image among the <sup>1</sup> barbarians.

I am the one who has been hated <sup>10</sup> everywhere and who has been loved <sup>1</sup> everywhere.

I am the one whom they call <sup>1</sup> Life, and you have <sup>1</sup> called Death.

I am the one whom <sup>1</sup> they call Law, <sup>15</sup> and you have called Lawlessness. <sup>1</sup>

I am the one whom you have pursued, <sup>1</sup> and I am the one whom you have seized. <sup>1</sup>

I am the one whom you have scattered, <sup>1</sup> and you have gathered me together. <sup>20</sup>

I am the one before whom you have <sup>1</sup> been ashamed, and you have been <sup>1</sup> shameless to me.

I am she who does not keep festival, <sup>1</sup> and I am she whose festivals are many. <sup>1</sup>

I, I am godless, and <sup>25</sup> I am the one whose God is great. <sup>1</sup>

I am the one whom you have reflected upon, <sup>1</sup> and you have scorned me.

I am <sup>1</sup> unlearned, and they learn from <sup>1</sup> me.

I am the one whom you have <sup>30</sup> despised, and you <sup>1</sup> reflect upon me.
 I am the one <sup>1</sup> whom you have hidden from,
 and you <sup>1</sup> appear to me.
 But whenever <sup>1</sup> you hide yourselves, <sup>35</sup>
 I myself will appear. 17
 For [whenever] you <sup>1</sup> [appear],
 I myself <sup>1</sup> [will hide] from you.
 Those who have [...] <sup>1</sup> to it [...] <sup>5</sup> senselessly [...]. <sup>1</sup>
 and take me <sup>1</sup> to yourselves from understanding <sup>10</sup> [and] grief.
 And take <sup>1</sup> me to yourselves from places <sup>1</sup> that are ugly and in ruin, <sup>1</sup> and rob from those <sup>1</sup> which are good even though in ugliness. <sup>15</sup>
 Out of shame, take me <sup>1</sup> to yourselves shamelessly; <sup>1</sup> and out of shamelessness <sup>1</sup> and shame, upbraid my members <sup>1</sup> in yourselves.
 And <sup>20</sup> come forward to me, <sup>1</sup> you who know me and you who <sup>1</sup> know my members, and <sup>1</sup> establish the great ones among the small <sup>1</sup> first creatures.
 Come <sup>25</sup> forward to childhood, <sup>1</sup> and do not despise it <sup>1</sup> because it is small and it is little. <sup>1</sup>
 And do not turn away <sup>1</sup> greatnesses in some parts from <sup>30</sup> the smallnesses,

 Why <sup>1</sup> do you curse me <sup>1</sup> and honor me? <sup>35</sup>
 You have wounded and you have <sup>1</sup> had mercy.
 Do not separate me from the first 18 ones whom you have [known].
 [And] <sup>1</sup> do not cast anyone [out nor] <sup>1</sup> turn anyone away
 What is mine [...]. <sup>1</sup>
 I know the [first ones] and <sup>1</sup> those after them [know] me. <sup>1</sup>
 But I am the mind of [...] <sup>10</sup> and the rest of [...]. <sup>1</sup>
 I am the knowledge of my inquiry, and <sup>1</sup> the finding of those who seek after me, and <sup>1</sup> the command of those who ask of me, <sup>1</sup> and the power of the powers in my knowledge <sup>15</sup> of the angels, who have been <sup>1</sup> sent at my word, and of gods <sup>1</sup> in their seasons by my counsel, <sup>1</sup> and of spirits of every man who <sup>1</sup> exists with me, and of women <sup>20</sup> who dwell within me.

 I am the one who <sup>1</sup> is honored, and who is praised, <sup>1</sup> and who is despised <sup>1</sup> scornfully.
 I <sup>1</sup> am peace, and war <sup>25</sup> has come because of me.
 And I <sup>1</sup> am an alien and a citizen. <sup>1</sup>
 I am the substance and the one who <sup>1</sup> has no substance.
 Those who are <sup>1</sup> without association with me are ignorant <sup>30</sup> of me, and those who are in my <sup>1</sup> substance are the ones who know me. <sup>1</sup>
 Those who are close to me have been ignorant <sup>1</sup> of me, and those who are far <sup>1</sup> away from me are the ones who have known <sup>35</sup> me.
 On the day when I am close to 19 [you],
 [you] are far away <sup>1</sup> [from me],
 [and] on the day when I <sup>1</sup> [am far away] from you,
 [I am <sup>1</sup> close] to you.
 [I am <sup>5</sup> . . . ] within.
 [ . . . ] request of the souls. <sup>1</sup>
 [I am] control and the uncontrollable. <sup>10</sup>
 I am the union and <sup>1</sup> the dissolution.
 I am the abiding <sup>1</sup> and I am the dissolution.
 I <sup>1</sup> am the one below, and they come <sup>1</sup> up to me.
 I am the judgment <sup>15</sup> and the acquittal.
 I, I <sup>1</sup> am sinless, and the root <sup>1</sup> of sin derives from me. <sup>1</sup>
 I am lust in (outward) appearance, <sup>1</sup> and interior self-control <sup>20</sup> exists within me.
 I <sup>1</sup> am the hearing which is attainable to <sup>1</sup> everyone and the speech which cannot be <sup>1</sup> grasped.
 I am a mute <sup>1</sup> who does not speak, and great <sup>25</sup> is my multitude of words.
 Hear <sup>1</sup> me in gentleness, and <sup>1</sup> learn of me in roughness. <sup>1</sup>
 I am she who cries out, <sup>1</sup> and I am cast <sup>30</sup> forth upon the face of the earth. <sup>1</sup>

 I prepare the bread and <sup>1</sup> my mind within.
 I am the <sup>1</sup> knowledge of my name.
 I am the one <sup>1</sup> who cries out, and I listen. 20
 I appear and [...] <sup>1</sup> walk in [...] <sup>1</sup> seal of my [...]. <sup>5</sup>
 I am [...] <sup>1</sup> the defense [...]. <sup>1</sup>
 I am the one who is called <sup>1</sup> Truth, and iniquity [...]. <sup>1</sup>

 You honor me [...] <sup>10</sup> and you whisper against [me].
 You [who] <sup>1</sup> are vanquished, judge them (who vanquish you) <sup>1</sup> before they give judgment against you, <sup>1</sup> because the judge and partiality <sup>1</sup> exist in you.
 If you are condemned <sup>15</sup> by this one, who will <sup>1</sup> acquit you?
     Or if you are acquitted <sup>1</sup> by him, who will be able to <sup>1</sup> detain you?
 For what is <sup>1</sup> inside of you is what is outside of you, <sup>20</sup> and the one who fashions you on the outside <sup>1</sup> is the one who shaped <sup>1</sup> the inside of you.
 And what <sup>1</sup> you see outside of you, <sup>1</sup> you see inside of you; <sup>25</sup>
     it is visible and it is your garment. <sup>1</sup>

 Hear me, you hearers, <sup>1</sup> and learn of my words, <sup>1</sup> you who know me.
 I am <sup>1</sup> the hearing that is attainable to everything; <sup>30</sup>
     I am the speech that cannot <sup>1</sup> be grasped.
 I am <sup>1</sup> the name of the sound and the sound <sup>1</sup> of the name.
 I am the sign <sup>1</sup> of the letter and the designation <sup>35</sup> of the division.
 And I [...].
 And [...] <sup>1</sup> will not move the name. <sup>10</sup>
 [...] to the one who created me. <sup>1</sup>
     And I will speak his name. <sup>1</sup>

Look then at his words and all <sup>1</sup> the writings which have been completed.
 Give <sup>1</sup> heed then, you hearers and <sup>15</sup> you also, the angels <sup>1</sup> and those who have been sent, <sup>1</sup> and you spirits who have arisen from <sup>1</sup> the dead.
 For I am the one who <sup>1</sup> alone exists, and I have no one <sup>20</sup> who will judge me.

For many <sup>1</sup> are the pleasant forms which <sup>1</sup> exist in numerous sins, <sup>1</sup> and incontinencies, <sup>1</sup> and disgraceful passions, <sup>25</sup> and fleeting pleasures, <sup>1</sup> which (men) embrace <sup>1</sup> until they become sober and <sup>1</sup> go up to their resting-place. <sup>1</sup>
 And they will find <sup>30</sup> me there, and they will <sup>1</sup> live, and they will not die <sup>1</sup> again.

The third tractate of Codex VI is not obviously related either to what precedes or to what follows. It is a heavily metaphorical exposition of the origin, condition, and ultimate destiny of the soul. With respect to its contents, there are some reasons for regarding Auth. Teach. as a composite or collection of several explanations of the soul's origin, fall, and victory over the material world. There is a major break at 25,26, where the narrative returns to the world of the Father where it has (presumably) begun, and from 26,20 onward there are several sections containing statements in the first person plural. Moreover, a number of different extended metaphors are introduced successively to explain the same phenomenon, the condition of the soul in the world, although some key metaphors such as those of the food, the medicine, the bridal relationship occur in several sections of the work. Some of these metaphors are extremely common in the literature of the Roman Hellenistic era, e.g., the bridegroom and life as an athletic contest, but others are highly distinctive and almost unparalleled in their elaborateness, e.g., the fisherman and the dealers in bodies.

Auth. Teach. contains no typical gnostic cosmogenic myth – unless it is alluded to in the passages now lost through some of the early lacunae – but it seems to presuppose a generally gnostic, i.e., anticosmic dualist, understanding of the fate of the soul in the material world. It has a number of parallels in the remainder of the Nag Hammadi library, notably with Gos. Phil. (II,3), Exeg. Soul (II,6), Teach. Silv. (VII,4), and the Hermetic tractates of Codex VI, as well as with the Corpus Hermeticum. There is nothing in Auth. Teach., however, to suggest that it is itself a Hermetic composition. It is also distinctively different from the De anima literature of the early Christian centuries, whether of Tertullian and his sources, or of Porphyry or Iamblichus, in that it is totally nonphilosophical in its forms of expression. Apart from a few expressions such as “evangelists,” “hearing the preaching,” and the like, there is nothing specifically Christian in the document, nor is there any trace of the heavy dependence on Jewish speculation which we find in so many other Nag Hammadi tractates.

Perhaps there is a clue, though a veiled one, to be sure, to its origin in the section 33,4-34,34, which contains a polemic against the senseless who are distinguished both from the “we” with whom the writer identifies and from the pagans, who are more or less excusable on grounds of ignorance. One is tempted to think of a Christian berating the Jews for their failure to heed the message which they have heard preached to them, but again there is no unambiguous allusion to either Christian or Jewish belief or practice. In its emphasis on the evil character of the material world, on the heavenly origin of the spiritual soul, on the role of revealed knowledge as salvific, Auth. Teach. appears to be a gnostic work. But it lacks the tone of self-assurance and confidence, almost arrogance, which characterizes many unquestionably gnostic treatises. The soul is in perpetual danger of succumbing to the “adversary,” or to the false attraction of the material, and consequently she must maintain a practised vigilance.

(George W. MacRae †)

Since George W. MacRae wrote, attempts have been made to be more precise about the group responsible for the tractate. Some have argued that they were in fact Gnostics, who only expressed as much of the gnostic myth in the tractate as was needed. A fundamental difference may be seen between Gnostics and traditional Christians, it is argued, in 33,4-34,34, where gnostic “seekers” contrast themselves with the “senseless” faith-oriented Christians, who have “found” the way, in sterile creedal religion. Others believe that second-century Christian Middle Platonists produced the tractate. They find numerous echoes to passages in the New Testament. They also find the distinctive Middle Platonic doctrine of two souls (spiritual and rational). Neither of these basically antithetical positions is well enough supported in the text to warrant abandoning the cautious assessment expressed by MacRae.

AUTHORITATIVE TEACHING

sweet passions<sup>1</sup> are transitory.<sup>1</sup> She had learned about evil:<sup>1</sup> she went away from them and she entered<sup>30</sup> into a new conduct.<sup>1</sup> Afterwards she<sup>1</sup> despises this life,<sup>1</sup> because it is transitory. And she<sup>1</sup> looks for those foods that will<sup>35</sup> take her into life, 32 and leaves behind her those deceitful foods.<sup>1</sup> And she learns about her light, as she<sup>1</sup> goes about stripping off this<sup>1</sup> world, while her true garment<sup>5</sup> clothes her within,<sup>1</sup> (and) her bridal clothing<sup>1</sup> is placed upon her in beauty of<sup>1</sup> mind, not in pride of flesh.<sup>1</sup> And she learns about her depth and<sup>10</sup> runs into her fold, while<sup>1</sup> her shepherd stands at the door.<sup>1</sup> In return for all the shame and scorn, then,<sup>1</sup> that she received in this<sup>1</sup> world, she receives<sup>15</sup> ten thousand times the grace and<sup>1</sup> glory.

for the pagans know <sup>1</sup> the way to go to their stone temple, <sup>15</sup> which will perish, and they worship <sup>1</sup> their idol, while their hearts <sup>1</sup> are set on it because it is their hope. <sup>1</sup> But to this senseless man <sup>1</sup> the word has been preached, <sup>20</sup> teaching him, “Seek and <sup>1</sup> inquire about the ways you should go, <sup>1</sup> since there is nothing else <sup>1</sup> that is as good as this thing.” <sup>1</sup> The result is that the substance of hardness <sup>25</sup> of heart strikes a blow upon <sup>1</sup> his mind, along with the force <sup>1</sup> of ignorance and <sup>1</sup> the demon of error. <sup>1</sup> They do not allow his mind <sup>30</sup> to rise up, because he was wearying <sup>1</sup> himself in seeking that he might learn about his <sup>1</sup> hope.

But the rational soul <sup>35</sup> who (also) wearied herself in seeking – <sup>1</sup> she learned about God. <sup>1</sup> She labored with inquiring, enduring <sup>1</sup> distress in the body, wearing out <sup>5</sup> her feet after <sup>1</sup> the evangelists, <sup>1</sup> learning about the Inscrutable One. <sup>1</sup> She found her rising. <sup>1</sup> She came to rest in him who <sup>10</sup> is at rest. She reclined <sup>1</sup> in the bride-chamber. She ate <sup>1</sup> of the banquet for which <sup>1</sup> she had hungered. She partook <sup>1</sup> of the immortal food. <sup>15</sup> She found what she had sought after. <sup>1</sup> She received rest from her labors, <sup>1</sup> while the light that shines forth <sup>1</sup> upon her does not sink. <sup>1</sup> To it belongs the glory <sup>20</sup> and the power and the <sup>1</sup> revelation for ever and <sup>1</sup> ever. Amen. <sup>1</sup>

THE CONCEPT OF OUR GREAT POWER (VI,4)

The Concept of Our Great Power is a Christian Gnostic “salvation history.” Beginning with creation, it recounts the workings of God’s justice and mercy in the conflict between good and evil, ending with the final beatitude. Unusually for a gnostic work the tractate is “apocalyptic,” that is, its climax is a dramatic description of the end of the world. Even here, however, it betrays its gnostic character; in gnostic fashion it expects no general resurrection, and contemplates the salvation of nothing material.

“Our great power” is the document’s supreme God. He is transcendent and “above all powers” – including the Old Testament God, the “Father of the flesh.” However, he intervenes in history; it is he who builds the ark and rescues Noah from the flood.

The very first lines of the tractate make it clear that human salvation depends upon knowing our great power. As the title has probably been taken from the first line, it might well be rendered “the perception of our great power,” or even “the knowledge of our great power.”

In the manner typical of apocalyptic, the tractate divides all history into three “aeons.” The first, the “aeon of the flesh,” ends with the flood. In the second, or “psychic” aeon, the revealer appears. He is clearly meant to be the New Testament Christ, though the author avoids that title and is careful not to say explicitly that the revealer is crucified.

The second aeon ends with a war among wicked angelic rulers – the “Archons” – the appearance of an antichristlike figure, and the destruction of the world by fire. Though the fire consumes matter, it purifies souls; together with “the saints,” the purified souls then live forever in the great power’s “indestructible aeon.”

While the tractate’s message is clear in broad outline, its details are often puzzling. Some figures well known from other gnostic theology – “the Mother,” for example – are mentioned but seem to play no part in the story. Incidents sometimes repeat themselves, or come at unexpected places in the narrative – thus the fire can be understood to destroy the universe twice. The transitions between episodes are often abrupt; so, likewise, are the changes in the person of pronouns and the person and tense of verbs. Of a few passages it is even difficult to make connected sense.

Some of the problems can be solved simply by an attentive reading of the tractate, and a recent interpretation has presented the work as a self-consistent whole. Other investigators, however, may still feel that the document has undergone more than one redaction, or at least been extensively glossed. In particular, the question whether an original Jewish apocalypse underlies certain portions of the work seems worthy of investigation.

Even the language of the tractate, a mixture of Sahidic and Subakhmimic dialects of Coptic, calls for explanation. It may simply be that a Sahidic-speaking scribe attempted to translate a Subakhmimic writing into his own dialect. Some, however, explain the language as "proto-Sahidic," a stage of Coptic earlier than that of the Sahidic New Testament.

Questions of the tractate's date and provenance are bound up with those of its language and presumed literary history. If the language is felt to be proto-Sahidic, the document will be dated rather early. There is, however, an apparent reference to the Anhomoean heresy; one who sees this as stemming from the original author, rather than a glossator, will wish to place the document in the fourth century C.E.

Similar uncertainties make it difficult to determine the document's provenance. If the statement that the Word "appeared in the east at the first" is the author's, the tractate might come from Asia Minor. If the words in question are a gloss, there is less reason to hold this view.

THE CONCEPT OF OUR GREAT POWER

The Perception of Understanding <sup>1</sup>

The Concept (or: Thought) of the Great Power <sup>1</sup>

He who will know our great <sup>1</sup> Power will become invisible, <sup>5</sup> and fire <sup>1</sup> will not be able to consume him. But it (i.e. the fire) will <sup>1</sup> purge and destroy <sup>1</sup> all your (pl.) possessions. For <sup>1</sup> everyone in whom my form <sup>10</sup> will appear will be <sup>1</sup> saved, from (the age of) seven days <sup>1</sup> up to one hundred and twenty years. <sup>1</sup> (Those) whom I constrained to <sup>1</sup> gather all that is fallen, — and <sup>15</sup> the writings of our great Power, in order that <sup>1</sup> he (i.e. the Power) may inscribe your (sg.) name <sup>1</sup> in our great light — and <sup>1</sup> their thoughts <sup>1</sup> and their works may be ended, <sup>20</sup> that they may be purged, <sup>1</sup> and be scattered, and be <sup>1</sup> destroyed, and be gathered in <sup>1</sup> the place which no one <sup>1</sup> in it sees. But <sup>25</sup> you (pl.) will see me and <sup>1</sup> you will prepare your dwelling places <sup>1</sup> in our great Power.

This is <sup>10</sup> the work that came into being. See <sup>1</sup> what it is like, that <sup>1</sup> before it comes into being it does not see, <sup>1</sup> because the aeon <sup>1</sup> of the flesh came to be in the great bodies. <sup>15</sup> And there were apportioned to them <sup>1</sup> long days in the creation. <sup>1</sup> For when they had polluted themselves <sup>1</sup> and had entered into the flesh, <sup>1</sup> the father of the flesh, <sup>20</sup> the water, avenged <sup>1</sup> himself. For when <sup>1</sup> he had found that Noah was pious <sup>1</sup> (and) worthy <sup>1</sup> — and it is the father of the flesh who holds <sup>25</sup> the angels in subjection. <sup>1</sup> And he (i.e. Noah) preached piety <sup>1</sup> for one hundred and twenty <sup>1</sup> years. And no one <sup>1</sup> listened to him. And he <sup>30</sup> made a wooden ark, <sup>1</sup> and whom he had found entered <sup>1</sup> it. And the flood <sup>1</sup> took place. 39 And thus Noah was saved <sup>1</sup> with his sons. For if [indeed] <sup>1</sup> <(the)> ark had not been meant for man <sup>1</sup> to enter, then the water <sup>5</sup> of the flood would <sup>1</sup> not have come. In this way he intended <sup>1</sup> (and) planned to save <(the)> gods <sup>1</sup> and the angels, and the powers, <sup>1</sup> the greatness of all of these, <sup>10</sup> and the <nourishment> and the way of life. <sup>1</sup> And he moves them from <sup>1</sup> the aeon (and) nourishes them <sup>1</sup> in the permanent places. And the judgment <sup>1</sup> of the flesh was unleashed. <sup>15</sup> Only the work of the Power stood up. <sup>1</sup>

Then a great disturbance <sup>1</sup> took place. <sup>15</sup> The archons raised up their wrath against him. <sup>1</sup> They wanted to hand him over <sup>1</sup> to the ruler of Hades. <sup>1</sup> Then they recognized one of <sup>1</sup> his followers. <sup>20</sup> A fire took hold of his (i.e. Judas') <sup>1</sup> soul. He handed <sup>1</sup> him over, since no one knew <sup>1</sup> him. They acted and seized <sup>1</sup> him. They brought <sup>25</sup> judgment upon themselves. <sup>1</sup> And they delivered him up <sup>1</sup> to the ruler <sup>1</sup> of Hades. And they handed <sup>1</sup> him over to Sasabek <sup>30</sup> for nine bronze coins. He prepared <sup>1</sup> himself to go down and <sup>1</sup> put them to shame. Then <sup>1</sup> the ruler of Hades took him. 42 And he found that the nature of his flesh <sup>1</sup> could not be seized, <sup>1</sup> in order to show it to the archons. <sup>1</sup> But he was saying: "Who is <sup>5</sup> this? What is it? His word has <sup>1</sup> abolished the law of the aeon. <sup>1</sup> He is from the Logos of the power <sup>1</sup> of life." And he was vic-

Then <sup>30</sup> the appointed time came and drew near. And <sup>1</sup> he changed the commands. Then <sup>1</sup> the time came until <sup>1</sup> the child had grown up. <sup>1</sup> When he had come to his maturity, 45 then the archons sent <sup>1</sup> the imitator to <sup>1</sup> that man in order that they might know <sup>1</sup> our great Power. And <sup>5</sup> they were expecting from <sup>1</sup> him that he would perform for them a <sup>1</sup> sign. And he bore <sup>1</sup> great signs. And he <sup>1</sup> reigned over the whole earth and <sup>10</sup> <over> all those who are under heaven. <sup>1</sup> He placed his throne upon the end <sup>1</sup> of the earth, for "I shall <sup>1</sup> <make> you (sg.) god of the world." <sup>1</sup> He will perform signs <sup>15</sup> and wonders. Then they <sup>1</sup> will turn from me, and they will go astray. <sup>1</sup>

Tractate VI,5 is a Coptic version of part (588A-589B, not, as formerly, 588B) of Socrates' parable in the ninth book of Plato's Republic, in which the human soul is likened to a trichotomous hybrid of different forces: a hybrid composed of a many-headed beast, representing the baser passions; a lion, representing the nobler passion courage; and man, representing the outermost element, reason. The fact of the excerption of the parable as an independent unit, perhaps originally in some philosophical anthology, is made understandable by its great popularity among late antique authors, especially Neoplatonists, who frequently cite or allude to it. What has proved more difficult to account for is the extent to which the Coptic version deviates from the Greek original. So much does it deviate from what Plato wrote that the tractate's first editors (1971) did not recognize it for what it is. The deviation has been accounted for in two ways. In the first, it is viewed as the product of inept translation (so Schenke, who first recognized the tractate's Platonic identity in 1974, and Brashler). In the second, it is viewed as the product of gnosticizing redaction of the Greek original, a redacted version which was then translated into Coptic (so Orlandi). These explanations are obviously not mutually exclusive, and the truth may therefore be a mixture of both (so Jackson and Painchaud). An additional element is doubtless also the incapability of the Coptic language to render the complexities and niceties of Plato's style. The question who the gnosticizing redactor may have been is not readily answerable, since many late antique groups with world-denying and ascetic inclinations revered Plato and shared technical terminology. It may have been Hermetists, especially as Hermetic tractates (VI,6,7,8) follow our tractate, in which case VI,5-8 would have come to the Coptic translator as a group. But gnostic tractates precede VI,5, and the repeated allusion, for example, to "images" and the references in 50,24-33 to the weakness of man (or the [primal] Man) with regard to the images of the evil beast and the lion and his initial fall into their clutches, together with the directive to him to cast down and trample the images, suggests a specifically gnostic setting, perhaps even more explicitly a Manichaean one.

“This is certainly the <sup>25</sup> fitting way!”

“How then?” <sup>1</sup>

Although its title is lost, this tractate has been identified as Hermetic from the use of the names Trismegistus and Hermes and close similarities with previously known Hermetic tractates. It has been named from its contents, using a phrase found in the tractate itself (53,24-26). It describes in dialogue form the process by which a spiritual guide (mystagogue) leads an initiate to a mystical experience.

The eighth and the ninth indicate the eighth and ninth spheres surrounding the earth. In ancient times it was thought that the first seven spheres were the realms of the sun, moon, and planets, the lower powers whose control over human life was not necessarily benevolent. The eighth and ninth spheres thus designate the beginning of the divine realm, the levels beyond the control of the lower powers. At death the soul would journey through the seven spheres, and after successful passage it would reach the eighth and the ninth, the levels at which the soul could experience true bliss. Furthermore, the eighth and the ninth spheres can also indicate advanced stages of spiritual development. The tractate possibly assumes yet another sphere, a higher, tenth sphere, where God himself dwells, though this is not entirely clear.

The tractate begins with an introductory discussion (52,2-53,21) in which the initiate secures the approval of the mystagogue to request the experience of the eighth and the ninth. He then makes the formal request (53,24-27). The process leading to the experience begins with a period of instruction, which culminates in a carefully constructed prayer, perhaps spoken by both participants (53,28-57,25). At the heart of the prayer is a request for the visionary experience (57,3-9). Following an embrace between initiate and mystagogue, the mystagogue has his vision (57,28-58,22). Then, directed by the mystagogue, the initiate enters first the eighth, and then the ninth (58,22-60,1).

Following that, the mystagogue exhorts the initiate to silence and gives instruction about continuing in the way of the mystical experience (60,1-10). The tractate concludes with a hymn of thanks by the initiate, and instructions for writing and preserving the account of the experience (60,10-63,32).

Assumed in the tractate are earlier levels of spiritual attainment. They are not described in Disc. 8-9 but it is clear that two things need to have occurred in order to be ready for the experience of the eighth and ninth: the attainment of purity of life according to the standard of divine law (56,27-57,1) and the banishing of ignorance by mastering the knowledge found in certain books (54,6-18).

The attainment of the final two stages for the initiate requires that the mystagogue have the experience first and thereby become the embodiment of universal mind, which is the ninth (58,1-22). The initiate then enters the eighth by recognizing the presence of universal mind, and responds to this recognition by joining the chorus of the eighth and singing a silent hymn to universal mind. He reaches the ninth when he experiences his own unity with universal mind and receives the confirmatory vision in which the chorus of the eighth sings to him (59,24-60,1).

This and other Hermetic tractates may well have been used in the context of small groups devoted to secret knowledge and mystical experience, in which those who were more advanced would teach and direct neophytes, and in which certain cultic acts were engaged in (prayers and hymns are found throughout the Hermetic corpus). The tractates would have served as the basis for discussion and as texts for individual meditation.

Evidence that Disc. 8-9 was composed in Egypt is found in references to the city of Diospolis, as well as to hieroglyphic characters and gods with animal faces – all found in the section beginning 61,18. The designation of the mystagogue as Hermes and Trismegistus also suggests Egypt. A second-century C.E. date for the composition is possible, because of affinities with the thought of the Middle Platonist Albinus.

THE DISCOURSE ON THE EIGHTH AND NINTH

He said, “I gave birth to it (the power), as<sup>1</sup> children are born.”

“But it is proper, <sup>1</sup> my father, that I praise because I <sup>1</sup> am filled in my heart?”

THE PRAYER OF THANKSGIVING (VI,7)

Introduced and translated by

JAMES BRASHLER, PETER A. DIRKSE, and DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

Edited by

DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

This short, almost perfectly preserved Hermetic prayer expresses in carefully constructed liturgical language the gratitude of one who has received deifying knowledge. Although set off with decorations like those regularly used with titles in the Nag Hammadi codices, the heading, "This is the prayer that they spoke," was originally only an introductory line. Together with the concluding statement, this heading forms a narrative framework for the prayer.

The scribal note, which immediately follows The Prayer of Thanksgiving, shows that the prayer was contributed by the copyist, who had a collection of Hermetic materials. Presumably he thought that the prayer was an appropriate way to conclude the account of the mystical experience described in VI,6. The note suggests that after he had copied the prayer, the copyist was uncertain whether he should have done it, and was seeking in an oblique way to justify his action (rather than being bold, he was in fact restrained!). His action may have been responsible for an unusual crowding of the Coptic text in the remaining pages of the codex. The theory that the scribal note refers to VI,8 was based on the mistaken supposition that the note was written over the erased title of VI,8 after VI,8 was copied (see introduction to VI,8).

Version VI,7 is one of three versions of the Hermetic Prayer of Thanksgiving. The context of the prayer is different in each case. In the Greek text called Papyrus Mimaut, it is part of a long prayer embedded in a magical composition. In the Latin Asclepius, it forms the conclusion of the tractate. And here it is appended to another Hermetic tractate. This suggests that it was originally an independent piece of tradition.

Pr. Thanks. is especially significant for the clear evidence it presents of the existence of Hermetic cultic practices. The prayer itself reflects liturgical usage, as its balanced language attests. Moreover, the concluding statement mentions a ritual embrace or kiss (also found in VI,6 at 57,26-27) after the prayer, and a cultic meal. These references to cultic practices suggest that the primary Sitz im Leben of Pr. Thanks. was a Hermetic community dedicated to the encouragement of the visionary experience alluded to in 64,16-17 and the preservation of the mystical knowledge communicated in that experience. While it is not possible to assign a date to such communities, it is reasonable to assume that they flourished in the second and third centuries C.E. and possibly even earlier.

THE PRAYER OF THANKSGIVING

This is the prayer that they spoke: <sup>1</sup> “We give thanks to You! Every soul <sup>35</sup> and heart is lifted up to You, <sup>1</sup> undisturbed name, 64 honored with the name <sup>1</sup> ‘God’ and praised <sup>1</sup> with the name ‘Father,’ <sup>1</sup> for to everyone and everything <sup>5</sup> (comes) the fatherly kindness and <sup>1</sup> affection and love, <sup>1</sup> and any teaching there may be that is sweet <sup>1</sup> and plain, giving <sup>1</sup> us mind, speech, <sup>10</sup> (and) knowledge: mind, <sup>1</sup> so that we may understand You, <sup>1</sup> speech, so that we may <sup>1</sup> expound You, knowledge, <sup>1</sup> so that we may know You. <sup>15</sup> We rejoice, having been illuminated <sup>1</sup> by Your knowledge. We rejoice <sup>1</sup> because You have shown us Yourself. We rejoice <sup>1</sup> because while we were in (the) body, You have made us <sup>1</sup> divine through Your knowledge. <sup>20</sup>

VI 65, 8-14

I have copied this one discourse of his. <sup>1</sup> Indeed, very many have come to me. I have not <sup>10</sup> copied them because I thought that they had come to you (pl.). <sup>1</sup> Also, I hesitate to copy these for <sup>1</sup> you because, perhaps they have (already) come to you, and <sup>1</sup> the matter may burden you. Since <sup>1</sup> the discourses of that one, which have come to me, are numerous . . .

ASCLEPIUS 21-29 (VI,8)

JAMES BRASHLER, PETER A. DIRKSE, and DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

The Hermetic tractate Asclepius was composed in Greek but exists in complete form only in a Latin translation. It was originally called The Perfect Teaching. VI,8 is a Coptic translation of a large selection from the middle portion of the tractate. It differs from the Latin at many points, but is still recognizably from the same source as the Latin because of the similarity of contents and the way they are ordered. Two Greek passages from the middle section of Asclepius have survived, and VI,8 is stylistically closer to them than to the rather expansive and rhetorical Latin.

VI,8 has no title, either at the beginning or the end, which makes it unique in the codex. It has been suggested that a title might have been erased at the beginning of the tractate and replaced by the scribal note, which is found there, but close examination of the manuscript shows that to be unlikely. Since the scribal note suggests that The Prayer of Thanksgiving (VI,7) is the copyist's insertion, it is possible that VI,8 may originally have been a continuation of VI,6 (Disc. 8-9). In that event, the now lost title of VI,6 could have served for it as well.

The tractate is in the form of a dialogue between an Hermetic initiate, Asclepius (two others, Tat and Amon, are mentioned in 72,30-31), and the mystagogue, Trismegistus (designated as Hermes in other Hermetic tractates). Asclepius as a whole was probably used in an instructional-cultic context (see introduction to VI,6). The contents are arranged in five general areas.

1) 65,15-37. The mystery experience (here undescribed) is likened to sexual intercourse, in that it requires an intimate interaction between two parties in which (according to Trismegistus' view) each receives something from the other.

2) 65,37-68,19. Discussion of the separation between the pious and the impious, with the former being distinguished by having learning and knowledge, and the latter, ignorance. Man needs learning and knowledge to restrain harmful passions and to become good and immortal. Indeed, with learning and knowledge man becomes better than the gods, since then he is both mortal and immortal.

3) 68,20-70,2. Trismegistus argues that men create gods according to human likenesses.

4) 70,3. This marks the beginning of the apocalyptic section. It seems to extend only to 74,6, in contrast to the Latin Asclepius, where it clearly continues through 331,11 (parallel to 74,11). Here are described the woes that will come upon Egypt and the final action of the creator god to end them and bring the universe to birth. This section was probably originally independent. There are a significant number of parallels to Egyptian conceptions, which can be traced back to the Ptolemaic period and before. But parallels are also found to Plato, Stoicism, the Sibylline Oracles, and the New Testament. Some have held that the apocalypse was originally a Jewish writing, while others suggest that it was originally Egyptian because of the greater number and antiquity of these parallels. The two concepts need not be mutually exclusive in view of the large, ancient, and literarily active Jewish community in Egypt.

5) 74,7-78,42. Discussion of the ultimate fate of the individual. The restoration of the nature of the pious ones is founded upon the eternal will of God, which expresses itself in the design of the good universe. The plan of the universe is then described. The "heights of heaven" are controlled by God. Other areas, including the earth, are controlled by other gods. Every person must go to the city in the west (place of the dead?). The soul separates from the body and goes to "the middle of the air" to be judged by the great daimon, who determines reward or punishment.

The Latin Asclepius is one of a group of Hermetic tractates that stands between those Hermetic tractates that are pantheistic, and hence distinctively Hellenistic, and those that are dualistic. The tractates in this group contain a mixture of both emphases. In addition to Asclepius they are Corp. Herm. IX, X, and XII. The excerpt from Asclepius that is VI,8 has both pantheism and dualism. The pantheism is explicitly expressed in 75,10-11 ("He [God] is in every place, and he looks out over every place."). It can also be seen in the conviction that the universe is good (74,33-36) and that the demiurge and the earth goddess are beneficent (75,13-24), as well as in the panegyric on Egypt (70,3-9). The dualism is found in the discussion of the two natures of man (66,9-67,34), but whether this should be attributed to Gnosticism, as some have thought, or is merely an expression of the dualism common in the Graeco-Roman world generally, is not clear.

The pantheism mentioned above, with its positive evaluation of the world, has presented a problem for those who assume that Codex VI, as a collection, had its origin among Gnostics. It has been suggested that perhaps the pantheistic parts were disregarded by the collector, who was interested in the dualism. The pantheistic elements, however, could have been deleted. It seems better to suppose that the codex may not have had its origin among Gnostics. Among its eight tractates, it contains two other Hermetic pieces (tractates 6 and 7), a garbled selection from Plato's Republic (tractate 5), a non-gnostic account of apostolic activity (tractate 1), and a tractate that has no clear indication of gnostic influence (tractate 2). Of the remaining two tractates (3 and 4), the first has been called questionably gnostic, and only the second seems to contain distinctively gnostic ideas. Thus, when the contents of the codex as a whole are considered, one has the impression of a miscellaneous collection of spiritual pieces without any clear ideological tendency running throughout. The one common theme may be the ultimate fate of the individual – the theme with which Asclepius 21-29, and therefore the codex as a whole, ends. There is probably no way to know how the codex found its way into a collection of predominantly gnostic works.

all Egyptians <sup>15</sup> will die. And Egypt will be <sup>1</sup> made a desert by the gods and the Egyptians. <sup>1</sup> And as for you, River, there <sup>1</sup> will be a day when you will flow <sup>1</sup> with blood more than water. And <sup>20</sup> dead bodies will be <sup>1</sup> (stacked) higher than the dams. <sup>1</sup> And he who is dead will not be mourned <sup>1</sup> as much as he who is alive. Indeed the latter will be <sup>1</sup> known as an Egyptian <sup>25</sup> on account of his language in <sup>1</sup> the second period (of time). Asclepius, <sup>1</sup> why are you weeping? He will seem <sup>1</sup> like (a) foreigner in regard to <sup>1</sup> his customs. Divine Egypt <sup>30</sup> will suffer evils greater <sup>1</sup> than these. Egypt, lover of God, <sup>1</sup> and the dwelling place of the gods, <sup>1</sup> school of religion, <sup>1</sup> will become an example of <sup>35</sup> impioussness.

which is good, <sup>1</sup> against the disorder. He took away <sup>30</sup> error, and cut off evil. <sup>1</sup> Sometimes <sup>1</sup> he submerged it in a great flood, <sup>1</sup> at other times he burned it in a <sup>1</sup> searing fire, and at still other times <sup>35</sup> he crushed it in wars <sup>1</sup> and plagues, until he brought 74 [. . .] <sup>5</sup> of the work. <sup>1</sup> And this is the birth of the world. <sup>1</sup>

THE PARAPHRASE OF SHEM (VII,1)

Introduced by

MICHEL ROBERGE

Translated by

FREDERIK WISSE

The first of the five tractates contained in Codex VII is entitled The Paraphrase of Shem. For its major part, this is an apocalypse, with the narrative frame describing the initial ascent of the seer, Shem (consistently spelled Sêem), to the top of the creation (1,5-16) and his final return to the earth (41,21-42,11). The actual revelation is provided by Derdekeas, the son of the infinite Light; it consists of a cosmogony and an anthropology (1,16-24,29), followed by a history of salvation which focuses on the account of the Flood (24,29-28,8), the destruction of Sodom (28,8-30,4), the baptism of the Savior and his ascent on the occasion of his crucifixion (30,4-40,31). The revelation concludes with an address to Shem concerning his mission on earth (40,31-41,21). To this apocalypse are added a first eschatological discourse pronounced by Derdekeas (42,11-45,31), a description of Shem's ascent to the planetary spheres at the end of his life (45,31-47,32), a second eschatological discourse of Derdekeas (47,32-48,30) and, to conclude the whole tractate, a final address to Shem (48,30-49,9).

The cosmogonic myth reported here is related to those systems which consider the universe as rooted in three principles. It opens with the description of the three great powers or roots: at the top reigns Light Infinite, called "Majesty," which is Thought filled with hearing and word; located at the bottom is Darkness, a male principle which is "wind in the waters" and possesses the Mind (nous) wrapped with the restless fire. Between these two powers is the Spirit, a quiet and humble light. The harmony which prevails at the beginning derives from the fact that each of those roots reigns in itself without mixing with the other two. It is important to note that the text makes no allusion to any previous action taken by Darkness to seize the Mind, nor does it mention a fall of the Mind. However, the events are essentially triggered by the will of the Majesty in an effort to save the Mind.

Suddenly Darkness stirs and the Spirit discovers the existence of the bad root. By the will of the Great Light the waters separate and Darkness comes up with his eye, the Mind. The Spirit reveals himself to Darkness and by doing so loses a part of his light to the benefit of the Mind.

The exalted Light then reveals himself through his son, Derdekeas. He appears in the likeness of the Spirit, thus initiating the salvation of the Mind and the ascent of the Spirit's light. In order to deceive Darkness, the Savior provokes the creation of the universe from water, part of which transforms into a giant Womb (also called "Nature"). The restless fire goes to the Womb. Fooled by the fire, Darkness, on seeing the Womb, becomes unchaste, has intercourse with the Womb and ejaculates the Mind. Nature is then divided into four "clouds" or spheres, which are called Hymen, Chorion, Power and Water. On entering the Womb, the Mind collides with the Unbegotten Spirit and the "burden of the Mind" causes "astonishment" in the Spirit. This power of Astonishment diverts the burden of Mind to the effect that, clothed with the light of the Spirit, he takes resort to the cloud of Power (also called "the Middle"). The Astonishment, however, sticks to the cloud of Hymen.

The Spirit beseeches the infinite Light to have mercy on his own light. The Savior appears this time as a whirlwind to blow up the clouds: they divide, and the Mind takes shape. Derdekeas puts on his universal garment of light and prompts the ascent of the light from the cloud of Water. When the Spirit gives thanks to the infinite Light, his Astonishment produces a great power, Thought, the principle of the race of Shem, the pneumatics.

Now the Savior deposits his universal garment and puts on his trimorphic garment in order to bring to perfection the light in the three clouds of Hymen, Silence (Chorion), and the Middle. The light retained in the Middle is the part of light which was detached from Astonishment and is united with Mind. After the Flood, it is called "Faith."

The Savior descends to the cloud of the Middle, puts on a garment of fire and prostitutes himself with Nature. In its orgasm, the Womb casts off Mind in the form of a fish and gives birth to all sorts of beasts. Derdekeas puts on the garment of the Beast and prompts the Womb to produce heaven and earth and all kinds of seed. He also makes her give birth to female entities, the winds, and to male entities, the demons. The latter mate with the winds and thereby cast off the power they have, which is Mind. By the will of the Savior, Mind rules over the winds and the demons. He receives a likeness of fire, a light, a listening and a share of Logos. At the end of time, Mind will take his repose with Faith in the cloud of Hymen. The winds and the demons have intercourse for a second time and give birth to all sorts of impurity, that is, the material souls. Through the masturbation of one of the winds, barren women and sterile men are begotten. These are the psychics, who possess only a material soul and are bound to dissolve in Darkness. Finally the pneumatics come to existence, namely those who possess a particle of Mind and a thought from the light of Astonishment.

In order to detain the light of Faith and to destroy the pneumatic race, Nature plans to cause a flood, to which the Savior reacts by proclaiming the erection of a tower. Shem is saved and remains in a body so that he may have patience with Faith and pass on his revelation to postdiluvian mankind. In other words, during the time appointed to Faith, Shem and his race will live among the people who carry out the will of Nature through the observance of the law. For Nature uses the light of Faith under the form of the Law to keep to itself the noetic seed. After the flood, mankind in fact includes two classes of redeemed: the noetics, who possess a body, a soul, and a particle of Mind, and whose root is Faith, and pneumatics, who possess not only a particle of Mind but also a "thought" issued from Astonishment, and whose root is the Unbegotten Spirit.

The destruction of Sodom is also presented as an attempt by Nature to destroy the pneumatic seed. But Shem is told not to worry about his race, since thanks to his teaching they will bear the universal testimony and will repose in the place of the Unbegotten Spirit.

The Savior reveals himself for the last time when the demon (that is, John the Baptist) appears on the river in order to baptize. The baptismal rite is essentially bad because of its use of water – a primordial impure power, which in the beginning tried to detain the light of the Spirit and now tries to keep men prisoner through baptism. But by descending on the water, the Savior rescues the light of Faith and reveals to the pneumatics and the noetics the passwords which will allow them to pass without hindrance through the planetary spheres as they return to their proper root. Thanks to the “memorial” (or “universal testimony”) the pneumatics ascend to the place of the Unbegotten Spirit; as for the noetics, they bear the “testimony of Faith” and ascend to Hymen, the place of Faith. This part of the tractate contains a harsh antibaptismal polemic, probably directed against the Great Church.

After his baptism, the Savior foretells his ascent at the end of his mission on earth. In its anger, Nature will try to seize him, but will only manage to crucify Soldas (that is, the terrestrial Jesus). The following allegory which narrates the beheading of Rebouel is intended to explain to the noetics the meaning of the crucifixion: it does not have the effect of purifying the water of baptism, but rather brings out the division between light and darkness. Just as Rebouel is declared blessed in her beheading, so the noetics should not hesitate to separate from the Great Church, which practises baptism, and enter the community of those who possess gnosis.

Former research has pointed out similarities between The Paraphrase of Shem and the tractate entitled The Paraphrase of Seth, which is referred to by the heresiologist Hippolytus in his report on the Sethians. But the differences between the two doctrines, especially with regard to anthropology, are too great to warrant the assumption of any direct or indirect link whatsoever between the two works. Likewise, more recent research tends not to regard The Paraphrase of Seth as a christianized version of The Paraphrase of Shem, which in that case could have been a witness of a pre-Christian Gnosticism.

THE PARAPHRASE OF SHEM

VII 1, 1-49, 9

The Paraphrase of Shem <sup>1</sup>

mixed power <sup>20</sup> and you are the first being upon <sup>1</sup> the earth, hear and understand <sup>1</sup> what I shall say to you first <sup>1</sup> concerning the great powers who <sup>1</sup> were in existence in the beginning, before <sup>25</sup> I appeared. There <sup>1</sup> was Light and Darkness <sup>1</sup> and there was Spirit between <sup>1</sup> them. Since your root <sup>1</sup> fell into forgetfulness – he who was <sup>30</sup> the unbegotten Spirit – I <sup>1</sup> reveal to you the truth about <sup>1</sup> the powers. The Light <sup>1</sup> was thought full of <sup>1</sup> hearing and word. They were <sup>35</sup> united into one form. <sup>1</sup> And the Darkness was 2 wind in waters. <sup>1</sup> He possessed the mind <sup>1</sup> wrapped in a chaotic fire. <sup>1</sup> And the Spirit between them <sup>5</sup> was a gentle, humble light. <sup>1</sup> These are the three <sup>1</sup> roots. They reigned each in <sup>1</sup> themselves, alone. And they covered <sup>1</sup> each other, each one with <sup>10</sup> its power.

But the Light, <sup>1</sup> since he possessed a great <sup>1</sup> power, knew the abasement <sup>1</sup> of the Darkness and his disorder, <sup>1</sup> namely that the root was not straight. <sup>15</sup> But the crookedness of the Darkness <sup>1</sup> was lack of perception, namely (the illusion that) there is no one <sup>1</sup> above him. And as long as he was able <sup>1</sup> to bear up under his evil, he was <sup>1</sup> covered with the water. And he <sup>20</sup> stirred. And the Spirit was frightened <sup>1</sup> by the sound. He lifted himself <sup>1</sup> up to his station. And <sup>1</sup> he saw a great, dark water. <sup>1</sup> And he was nauseated. And <sup>25</sup> the thought of the Spirit stared <sup>1</sup> down; he saw the infinite Light. <sup>1</sup> But he was overlooked <sup>1</sup> by the putrid root. <sup>1</sup> And by the will of the great Light <sup>30</sup> the dark water separated. <sup>1</sup> And the Darkness came up <sup>1</sup> wrapped in vile ignorance, <sup>1</sup> and (this was) in order that the mind <sup>1</sup> might separate from him because he prided <sup>35</sup> himself in it.

And when the Darkness <sup>1</sup> saw it (i.e. the womb) he became unchaste. <sup>1</sup> and when he had aroused <sup>30</sup> the water, he rubbed the womb. <sup>1</sup> His mind dissolved <sup>1</sup> down to the depths of Nature. <sup>1</sup> It mingled with the power of <sup>1</sup> the bitterness of Darkness. And <sup>35</sup> her (i.e. the womb's) eye ruptured at the wickedness <sup>1</sup> in order that she might not again bring forth <sup>1</sup> the mind. For it was 5 a seed of Nature <sup>1</sup> from the dark root. <sup>1</sup> And when Nature had taken to herself <sup>1</sup> the mind by means of the dark power, <sup>5</sup> every likeness took shape <sup>1</sup> in her. And when the Darkness <sup>1</sup> had acquired the likeness of the mind, <sup>1</sup> it resembled the Spirit. <sup>1</sup> For Nature rose up to expel it; <sup>10</sup> she was powerless against it, since <sup>1</sup> she did not have a form from the <sup>1</sup> Darkness. For she brought it forth in the cloud. <sup>1</sup> And the cloud shone. <sup>1</sup> A mind appeared in <sup>15</sup> it like a frightful, harmful fire. <sup>1</sup> It (i.e. the mind) collided <sup>1</sup> against the unbegotten Spirit <sup>1</sup> since it possessed <sup>1</sup> a likeness from him. In order that <sup>20</sup> Nature might become empty <sup>1</sup> of the chaotic fire, <sup>1</sup> then immediately Nature <sup>1</sup> was divided into four parts. <sup>1</sup> They became clouds which varied <sup>25</sup> in their appearance. They were called <sup>1</sup> Hymen, Afterbirth, <sup>1</sup> Power, (and) Water. <sup>1</sup> And the Hymen and the Afterbirth <sup>1</sup> and the Power were <sup>30</sup> chaotic fires. And <sup>1</sup> it (i.e. the mind) was drawn from the midst <sup>1</sup> of the Darkness and the water – since <sup>1</sup> the mind was in the midst of Nature <sup>1</sup> and the dark power – <sup>35</sup> in order that the harmful waters <sup>1</sup> might not cling to it. 6 Because of this Nature was divided, <sup>1</sup> according to my will, in order that <sup>1</sup> the mind may return <sup>1</sup> to its power which the <sup>5</sup> dark root, which was mixed <sup>1</sup> with it (i.e. the mind), had taken from it. And <sup>1</sup> he (i.e. the dark root) appeared in the womb. <sup>1</sup> And at the division of <sup>1</sup> Nature he separated from the dark power <sup>10</sup> which he possessed from <sup>1</sup>

And <sup>1</sup> when the Spirit had looked, I flowed 7 out – I, the son of the Majesty – <sup>1</sup> like a wave of bright light <sup>1</sup> and like a whirlwind of the <sup>1</sup> immortal Spirit. And I blew from <sup>5</sup> the cloud of the Hymen upon the Astonishment <sup>1</sup> of the unbegotten Spirit. It <sup>1</sup> (i.e. the cloud) separated and cast light upon the clouds. <sup>1</sup> These separated in order that <sup>1</sup> the Spirit might return. Because of this the mind <sup>10</sup> took shape. Its repose was shattered. <sup>1</sup> For the Hymen of Nature <sup>1</sup> was a cloud which cannot be <sup>1</sup> grasped; it is a great fire. <sup>1</sup> Similarly, the Afterbirth <sup>15</sup> of Nature is the cloud of silence; <sup>1</sup> it is an august fire. <sup>1</sup> And the Power which was mixed <sup>1</sup> with the mind, it, too, was <sup>1</sup> a cloud of Nature which <sup>20</sup> was joined with the Darkness that <sup>1</sup> had aroused Nature <sup>1</sup> to unchastity. And the dark water <sup>1</sup> was a frightful cloud. <sup>1</sup> And the root <sup>25</sup> of Nature, which was below, <sup>1</sup> was crooked, since it is burdensome and <sup>1</sup> harmful. The root was <sup>1</sup> blind with respect to the light-bondage <sup>1</sup> which was unfathomable since <sup>30</sup> it had many appearances. <sup>1</sup>

The light of <sup>1</sup> the infinite Spirit <sup>1</sup> came down to a feeble nature for <sup>1</sup> a short time until <sup>30</sup> all the impurity of nature <sup>1</sup> became void, and in order that <sup>1</sup> the darkness of Nature <sup>1</sup> might be blamed. I put on my <sup>1</sup> garment which is the garment of the light <sup>35</sup> of the Majesty — which I am. <sup>1</sup> I came in the appearance of the 9 Spirit to consider the whole light <sup>1</sup> which was in the depths <sup>1</sup> of the Darkness. According to the will <sup>1</sup> of the Majesty, in order that the Spirit <sup>5</sup> by means of the Word might be filled with his <sup>1</sup> light independently of the power of <sup>1</sup> the infinite Light, <sup>1</sup> and at my wish, the Spirit <sup>1</sup> arose by his (own) power. <sup>10</sup> His greatness was granted to him <sup>1</sup> that he might be filled with his whole light <sup>1</sup> and depart from the whole burden <sup>1</sup> of the Darkness. For what was behind <sup>1</sup> was a dark fire which blew <sup>15</sup> (and) pressed on the Spirit. And <sup>1</sup> the Spirit rejoiced because he was protected <sup>1</sup> from the frightful water. But <sup>1</sup> his light was not equal to <sup>1</sup> the Majesty. But (what) he was granted <sup>20</sup> by the infinite Light, (he was granted it) <sup>1</sup> in order that in all his members <sup>1</sup> he might appear as <sup>1</sup> a single image of light. <sup>1</sup> And when the Spirit arose above the water, <sup>25</sup> his black likeness became apparent. <sup>1</sup> And the Spirit honored <sup>1</sup> the exalted Light: “Surely thou <sup>1</sup> alone art the infinite one, <sup>1</sup> because thou art above <sup>30</sup> every unbegotten thing, for thou hast protected <sup>1</sup> me from the Darkness. And at thy <sup>1</sup> wish I arose above the power <sup>1</sup> of darkness.

For the image of the Light is inseparable from the unbegotten Spirit. And the lawgivers did not name him after all the clouds<sup>35</sup> of Nature, nor is it possible to name them. For every likeness 11 into which Nature had divided is a power of the chaotic fire which is the hylic seed. The one who took to himself<sup>5</sup> the power of the Darkness imprisoned it in the midst of its members.

And by the will of the Majesty, in order that the mind and the whole light of the Spirit might be protected<sup>10</sup> from every burden and (from) the toil of Nature, a voice came forth from the Spirit to the cloud of the Hymen. And the light of the astonishment began to rejoice with the voice<sup>15</sup> which was granted to him. And the great Spirit of light was in the cloud of the Hymen. He honored the infinite Light and the universal likeness<sup>20</sup> who I am, the son of the Majesty. It is said: "Anasses Duses, thou art the infinite Light who was given by the will<sup>25</sup> of the Majesty to establish every light of the Spirit upon the place, and to separate the mind from the Darkness. For it was not right<sup>30</sup> for the light of the Spirit to remain in Hades. For at thy wish the Spirit arose to behold thy greatness."

For I said these things to you,<sup>35</sup> Shem, that you might know 12 that my likeness, the son of the Majesty, is from my infinite Thought, since I am for him a universal likeness<sup>5</sup> which does not lie, (and) I am above every truth and origin of the word. His appearance is in my beautiful garment of light which is the voice of the immeasurable Thought.<sup>10</sup> We are that single, sole light which came into being. He appeared in another root in order that the power of the Spirit might be raised from the<sup>15</sup> feeble Nature. For by the will of the great Light I came forth from the exalted Spirit down to the cloud of the Hymen without my universal garment.

And the Word took<sup>20</sup> me to himself, from the Spirit, in the first cloud of the Hymen of Nature. And I put on this of which the Majesty and the unbegotten Spirit made me worthy.<sup>25</sup> And the threefold unity of my garment appeared in the cloud, by the will of the Majesty, in a single form. And my likeness was covered<sup>30</sup> with the light of my garment. And the cloud was disturbed, and it was not able to bear my likeness. It shed the first power, the one (which) it had taken from<sup>35</sup> the Spirit, that one which shone on him from the beginning, before (I) appeared in the word to the Spirit. The cloud 13 would not have been able to bear both of them. And the light which came forth from the cloud passed through the silence, until it came into the middle region. And,<sup>5</sup> by the will of the Majesty, the light

Therefore <sup>1</sup> I appeared that I might <sup>30</sup> get an opportunity to go <sup>1</sup> down to the nether world, to the light <sup>1</sup> of the Spirit which was burdened, <sup>1</sup> that I might protect him from the evil <sup>1</sup> of the burden. And through <sup>35</sup> his looking down at the dark region <sup>1</sup> the light once more 16 came up in order that the womb might again <sup>1</sup> come up from the water. <sup>1</sup> She (i.e. the womb) came up by my will. <sup>1</sup> Guilefully the eye opened. <sup>5</sup> And the light <sup>1</sup> which had appeared in the middle region <sup>1</sup> (and) which had separated from the Astonishment <sup>1</sup> rested and shone upon <sup>1</sup> her. And the womb saw <sup>10</sup> things she had not seen, <sup>1</sup> and she rejoiced joyfully in <sup>1</sup> the light, although this was not hers – the one which <sup>1</sup> appeared in the middle region, in her <sup>1</sup> wickedness, when he (i.e. the light) shone <sup>15</sup> upon her. And <sup>1</sup> the womb saw things she had not seen, <sup>1</sup> and she was brought down <sup>1</sup> to the water, she was thinking that <sup>1</sup> she had reached to the power of light. <sup>20</sup> And she did not know that <sup>1</sup> her root was made idle by <sup>1</sup> the likeness of the Light, and that it was to her (i.e. the root) <sup>1</sup> that he had run.

Then, <sup>1</sup> by the will of the Majesty, I <sup>1</sup> took off my garment of light. <sup>1</sup> I put on another garment <sup>5</sup> of fire which has no form, which <sup>1</sup> is from the mind of the power, <sup>1</sup> which was separated, and which was <sup>1</sup> prepared for me, according to my will, in <sup>1</sup> the middle region. For the middle region <sup>10</sup> covered it with a dark power <sup>1</sup> in order that I might come <sup>1</sup> and put it on. I went down <sup>1</sup> to chaos to save <sup>1</sup> the whole light from it. For without <sup>15</sup> the power of darkness I could not oppose <sup>1</sup> Nature. But I rested <sup>1</sup> myself upon her staring eye <sup>20</sup> which was a light <sup>1</sup> from the Spirit. For it had been prepared <sup>1</sup> for me as a garment and a rest <sup>1</sup> by the Spirit. Through me <sup>1</sup> he opened his eyes down to <sup>25</sup> Hades. He granted Nature <sup>1</sup> his voice for a time. <sup>1</sup>

And my garment of fire, according to the will <sup>1</sup> of the Majesty, went <sup>1</sup> down to what is strong, and to the <sup>30</sup> unclean part of Nature <sup>1</sup> which <the> power of darkness <sup>1</sup> was covering. And my garment <sup>1</sup> rubbed Nature in her <sup>1</sup> covering. And her unclean <sup>35</sup> femininity was strong. And <sup>1</sup> the wrathful womb came up 19 and made the mind dry, <sup>1</sup> resembling a fish which has <sup>1</sup> a drop of fire and <sup>1</sup> a power of fire. And when Nature <sup>5</sup> had cast off the mind, <sup>1</sup> she was troubled and she <sup>1</sup> wept. When she was hurt, and in <sup>1</sup> her tears, she cast off <sup>1</sup> the power of the Spirit <sup>10</sup> (and) remained as I. I put on <sup>1</sup> the light of the Spirit and I <sup>1</sup> rested with my garment on account of <sup>1</sup> the sight of the fish.

And in order that <sup>1</sup> the deeds of Nature might be condemned, <sup>15</sup> since she is blind, manifold <sup>1</sup> animals came out <sup>1</sup> of her, in accordance with the number of the <sup>1</sup> fleeting winds. All of them came into being in <sup>1</sup> Hades searching for the light <sup>20</sup> of the mind which took shape. They were not <sup>1</sup> able to stand up against it. <sup>1</sup> I rejoiced over their ignorance. <sup>1</sup> They found me, <sup>1</sup> the son of the Majesty, in <sup>25</sup> front of the womb which has <sup>1</sup> many forms. I put <sup>1</sup> on the beast, and laid <sup>1</sup> before her a great request <sup>1</sup> that heaven and earth <sup>30</sup> might come into being, in order that the whole <sup>1</sup> light might rise up. <sup>1</sup> For in no other way could the power <sup>1</sup> of the Spirit be saved from bondage <sup>1</sup> except that I appear <sup>35</sup> to her in animal form. <sup>1</sup> Therefore she was gracious to me 20 as if I were her son. <sup>1</sup>

And when <sup>1</sup> the heaven and the earth were created, <sup>1</sup> my garment of fire arose in the midst <sup>1</sup> of the cloud of Nature (and) <sup>1</sup> shone upon the whole world <sup>25</sup> until Nature became <sup>1</sup> dry. The Darkness which was <sup>1</sup> its (i.e. the earth's) garment was cast into the <sup>1</sup> harmful waters. <sup>1</sup> The middle region was cleansed from the Darkness. <sup>30</sup> But the womb grieved because of <sup>1</sup> what had happened. She perceived in <sup>1</sup> her parts what was <sup>1</sup> water like a mirror. When she <sup>1</sup> perceived (it), she wondered <sup>25</sup> how it had come into being. Therefore she <sup>1</sup> remained a widow. It also was 21 astonished (that) it was not in her. <sup>1</sup> For still the forms <sup>1</sup> possessed a power <sup>1</sup> of fire and light. It (i.e. the power) remained <sup>5</sup> in order that it might be in Nature <sup>1</sup> until all the powers are taken <sup>1</sup> away from her. For just as <sup>1</sup> the light of the Spirit was completed <sup>1</sup> in three clouds, it is necessary <sup>10</sup> that also the power <sup>1</sup> which is in Hades will be completed at the <sup>1</sup> appointed time. For, because of the grace <sup>1</sup> of the Majesty, I came forth to her <sup>1</sup> from the water for the second time. <sup>15</sup> For my face pleased <sup>1</sup> her. Her face also was glad. <sup>1</sup>

And when I had put them to shame, I arose <sup>1</sup> with my garment in the power and — <sup>1</sup> which is above the beast which is a light, <sup>20</sup> in order that I might make Nature <sup>1</sup> desolate. The mind which had appeared <sup>1</sup> in the Nature of Darkness, (and) which <sup>1</sup> was the eye of the heart of Darkness, <sup>1</sup> at my wish reigned over <sup>25</sup> the winds and the demons. And I <sup>1</sup> gave him a likeness of fire, light, <sup>1</sup> and attentiveness, and a share <sup>1</sup> of guileless word. Therefore <sup>1</sup> he was given of the greatness <sup>30</sup> in order to be strong in his <sup>1</sup> power, independent of the power, <sup>1</sup> independent of the light of the Spirit, and <sup>1</sup> intercourse of Darkness, in order that, at <sup>1</sup> the end of time, when 23 Nature will be destroyed, he may rest <sup>1</sup> in the honored place. <sup>1</sup> For he will be found <sup>1</sup> faithful, since he has loathed <sup>5</sup> the unchastity of Nature with <sup>1</sup> the Darkness. The strong power <sup>1</sup> of the mind came into being from <sup>1</sup> the mind and the unbegotten Spirit. <sup>1</sup>

But the winds, which are demons <sup>10</sup> from water and fire <sup>1</sup> and darkness and light, had <sup>1</sup> intercourse unto perdition. And through <sup>1</sup> this intercourse the winds received <sup>1</sup> in their womb <sup>15</sup> foam from the penis <sup>1</sup> of the demons. They conceived <sup>1</sup> a power in their womb. From <sup>1</sup> the breathing <sup>1</sup> the wombs of the winds girded each other <sup>20</sup> until the times of the birth came. <sup>1</sup> They went down to the water. <sup>1</sup> And the power was delivered, through <sup>1</sup> the breathing which moves the birth, <sup>1</sup> in the midst of the practice. And <sup>25</sup> every form of the birth received shape <sup>1</sup> in it. When <sup>1</sup> the times of the birth were near, <sup>1</sup> all the winds were gathered <sup>1</sup> from the water which is near the <sup>30</sup> earth. They gave birth to all kinds of unchastity. <sup>1</sup> And the place where <sup>1</sup> the wind alone went was permeated with <sup>1</sup> the unchastity. <sup>1</sup> Barren wives came from it <sup>35</sup> and sterile husbands. 24 For just as they are born, <sup>1</sup> so they bear.

And in order that the sin of Nature might be filled, I made the womb, which was disturbed, pleasant – the blind wisdom – that I might be able to bring (it) to naught. And at my 25 wish, he plotted with the water of Darkness and also the Darkness, that they might wound every form of your (pl.) heart. For by<sup>5</sup> the will of the light of the Spirit they surrounded you; they bound you in Faith. And in order that his plan might become idle, he sent a demon<sup>10</sup> that the plan of her wickedness might be proclaimed. And he caused a flood, and he destroyed your (pl.) race, in order to take the light and to take from<sup>15</sup> Faith. But I proclaimed quickly by the mouth of the demon that a tower come to be up to the particle of the light, which was left in the demons and<sup>20</sup> their race – which was water – that the demon might be protected from the turbulent chaos. And the womb planned these things according to my will in order that she might<sup>25</sup> pour forth completely. A tower came to be through the demons. The Darkness was disturbed by his loss. He loosened the muscles of the womb. And the demon<sup>30</sup> who was going to enter the tower was protected in order that the races might continue and might acquire coherence through him. For he possesses power from every form.<sup>35</sup>

Return henceforth, 26 O Shem, and rejoice [greatly] over your race and Faith, for without body and necessity it is protected from every body of Darkness, bearing witness to the holy things of the greatness which was revealed to them in their thought by my will. And they shall rest in the unbegotten Spirit<sup>10</sup> without grief. But you, Shem, because of this, you remained in (the) body outside the cloud of light that you might remain with Faith. And Faith<sup>15</sup> will come to you. Her thought will be taken and given to you with a consciousness of light. And I told you these things for the benefit of your race from the cloud of light.<sup>20</sup> And likewise what I shall say to you concerning everything, I shall reveal to you completely that you may reveal them to those who will be upon the earth the<sup>25</sup> second time.

O Shem, the disturbance which occurred at my wish happened in order that Nature might become empty. For the wrath of the Darkness subsided.<sup>30</sup> O Shem, the Darkness' mouth was shut. No longer does the light which shone for the world appear in it, according to my will. And when Nature had said that<sup>35</sup> its wish was fulfilled, then every form was engulfed by the waters 27 in prideful ignorance. She (i.e. Nature) turned her dark vagina and cast from her the power of fire<sup>5</sup> which was in her from the beginning through the practice of the

And in her ignorance,<sup>1</sup> as if she were doing a great<sup>1</sup> thing, she granted the demons<sup>25</sup> and the winds a star each.<sup>1</sup> For without wind and star<sup>1</sup> nothing happens upon the earth.<sup>1</sup> For every power is filled<sup>1</sup> by them after they were<sup>30</sup> released from the Darkness and the fire<sup>1</sup> and the power and the light.<sup>1</sup> For in the place where their darkness and<sup>1</sup> their fire were mixed with each other<sup>1</sup> beasts were brought forth. And it was in the place<sup>35</sup> of the Darkness, and the fire, and the power<sup>28</sup> of the mind, and the light,<sup>1</sup> that human beings came into existence.<sup>1</sup> Being from the Spirit, the thought of the Light, my eye,<sup>1</sup> exists not in every man.<sup>5</sup> For before the flood<sup>1</sup> came from the winds and the<sup>1</sup> demons, rain came to<sup>1</sup> men. But then, in order that the power<sup>1</sup> which is in the tower might be brought forth,<sup>10</sup> and might rest upon the earth<sup>1</sup> Nature, which had been disturbed,<sup>1</sup> wanted to harm the seed<sup>1</sup> which will be upon the earth after<sup>1</sup> the flood.<sup>15</sup> Demons were sent to them, and<sup>1</sup> a deviation of the winds, and<sup>1</sup> a burden of the angels, and<sup>1</sup> a fear of the prophet, a<sup>1</sup> condemnation of speech, that I may<sup>20</sup> teach you, O Shem, from<sup>1</sup> what blindness your<sup>1</sup> race is protected. When I have<sup>1</sup> revealed to you all that has been spoken,<sup>1</sup> then the righteous one will<sup>25</sup> shine upon the world with my garment.<sup>1</sup> And the night and the day will<sup>1</sup> be separated. For I shall hasten down to the<sup>1</sup> world to take the light<sup>1</sup> of that place, the one which<sup>30</sup> Faith possesses. And<sup>1</sup> I shall appear to those who will<sup>1</sup> acquire the thought of the light<sup>1</sup> of the Spirit. For because of them my<sup>1</sup> majesty appeared.

It is I who opened the eternal gates <sup>1</sup> which were shut from the beginning. <sup>1</sup> To those who long for the best of <sup>5</sup> life, and those who are worthy of the <sup>1</sup> repose, he revealed <sup>1</sup> them. I granted <sup>1</sup> perception to those who perceive. <sup>1</sup> I disclose to them <sup>10</sup> all the thoughts and the teaching <sup>1</sup> of the righteous ones. And I did not become <sup>1</sup> their enemy at all. But <sup>1</sup> when I had endured the wrath <sup>1</sup> of the world, I was victorious. There was not <sup>15</sup> one of them who knew me. <sup>1</sup> The gates of fire <sup>1</sup> and endless smoke opened against me. <sup>1</sup> All the winds rose <sup>1</sup> up against me. The thunderings and the <sup>20</sup> lightning-flashes for a time will rise <sup>1</sup> up against me. And they will bring <sup>1</sup> their wrath upon me. <sup>1</sup> And on account of me according to the flesh, they <sup>1</sup> will rule over them according to kind. <sup>25</sup>

O Shem, they are deceived <sup>20</sup> by manifold <sup>1</sup> demons, thinking that through <sup>1</sup> baptism with the uncleanness <sup>1</sup> of water, that which is dark, <sup>1</sup> feeble, idle, <sup>25</sup> (and) disturbing, he will take away the sins. <sup>1</sup> And they do not know <sup>1</sup> that from the water to <sup>1</sup> the water there is bondage, <sup>1</sup> and error and unchastity, <sup>30</sup> envy, murder, adultery, <sup>1</sup> false witness, <sup>1</sup> heresies, robberies, <sup>1</sup> lusts, babblings, <sup>1</sup> wrath, bitterness, <sup>35</sup> great [...]. 38 Therefore there are many deaths <sup>1</sup> which burden their thoughts. <sup>1</sup> For I foretell <sup>1</sup> it to those who have a heart. <sup>5</sup> They will refrain from the impure <sup>1</sup> baptism. And those who <sup>1</sup> take heart from the light <sup>1</sup> of the Spirit will not have dealings <sup>1</sup> with the impure practice. <sup>10</sup> And their heart will not expire, <sup>1</sup> nor will they curse. <sup>1</sup> And the water — <nor> will they be given <sup>1</sup> honor. Where <sup>1</sup> the curse is, there is the deficiency. <sup>15</sup> And the blindness is <sup>1</sup> where the honor is. <sup>1</sup> For if they mix with the evil ones, <sup>1</sup> they become empty in the dark water. <sup>1</sup> For where the water has been <sup>20</sup> mentioned, there is <sup>1</sup> Nature, and the oath, and <sup>1</sup> the lie, and the loss. For only <sup>1</sup> in the unbegotten Spirit, <sup>1</sup> where the exalted Light rested, <sup>25</sup> has the water not <sup>1</sup> been mentioned, <sup>1</sup> nor can it be mentioned. <sup>1</sup>

And at that time <sup>5</sup> the light was about to separate <sup>1</sup> from the Darkness, and a voice <sup>1</sup> was heard in the world, saying, <sup>1</sup> "Blessed is the eye which has <sup>1</sup> seen thee, and the mind which has <sup>10</sup> supported thy majesty at <sup>1</sup> my desire." It will be said by <sup>1</sup> the exalted one, "Blessed is <sup>1</sup> Rebouel among every race <sup>1</sup> of men, for it is you (fem.) alone <sup>15</sup> who have seen." And she will listen. And <sup>1</sup> they will behead the woman <sup>1</sup> who has the perception, <sup>1</sup> whom you will reveal <sup>1</sup> upon the earth. And according to <sup>20</sup> my will she will bear witness, and she will <sup>1</sup> cease from every <sup>1</sup> vain effort of Nature <sup>1</sup> and chaos. For the woman <sup>1</sup> whom they will behead at that <sup>25</sup> time is the coherence <sup>1</sup> of the power of the demon <sup>1</sup> who will baptize the seed <sup>1</sup> of darkness in severity, <sup>1</sup> that it (i.e. the seed) may mix with unchastity. <sup>30</sup> He begot a woman. She was <sup>1</sup> called Rebouel.

But they who have <sup>25</sup> a free conscience <sup>1</sup> remove themselves from <sup>1</sup> the babbling of Nature. <sup>1</sup> For they will bear witness <sup>1</sup> to the universal testimony; <sup>30</sup> they will strip off the burden <sup>1</sup> of Darkness; they will put on <sup>1</sup> the Word of the Light; and <sup>1</sup> they will not be kept back 43 in the insignificant place. <sup>1</sup> And what they possess from <sup>1</sup> the power of the mind they <sup>1</sup> will give to Faith. They will <sup>5</sup> be accepted without <sup>1</sup> grief. And the chaotic <sup>1</sup> fire which they possess they <sup>1</sup> will place in the middle region of <sup>1</sup> Nature. And they will be received <sup>10</sup> by my garments, those which are <sup>1</sup> in the clouds. It is they <sup>1</sup> who guide their members. They <sup>1</sup> will rest in the Spirit <sup>1</sup> without suffering. And because of this the <sup>15</sup> appointed term of Faith appeared <sup>1</sup> upon the earth for a <sup>1</sup> short time, until <sup>1</sup> the Darkness is taken away from her, and <sup>1</sup> her testimony is revealed <sup>20</sup> which was revealed <sup>1</sup> by me. They who will prove <sup>1</sup> to be from her root <sup>1</sup> will strip off the <sup>1</sup> Darkness and the chaotic fire. <sup>25</sup> They will put on the light <sup>1</sup> of the mind and they will bear witness. <sup>1</sup> For all that I have said <sup>1</sup> must happen.

After <sup>1</sup> I cease to be upon the earth and <sup>30</sup> withdraw up to my rest, <sup>1</sup> a great, evil error <sup>1</sup> will come upon <sup>1</sup> the world, and many evils <sup>1</sup> in accordance with the number of the forms of 44 Nature. Evil times <sup>1</sup> will come. And when <sup>1</sup> the era of Nature is approaching <sup>1</sup> destruction, darkness will <sup>5</sup> come upon the earth. The number will <sup>1</sup> be small. And a demon <sup>1</sup> will come up from the power who <sup>1</sup> has a likeness of fire. <sup>1</sup> He will divide the heaven, (and) he will rest <sup>10</sup> in the depth of the east. <sup>1</sup> For the whole world will quake. <sup>1</sup> And the deceived world <sup>1</sup> will be thrown into confusion. Many <sup>1</sup> places will be flooded because of <sup>15</sup> envy of the winds and the demons <sup>1</sup> who have a name <sup>1</sup> which is senseless: Phorbea, Chloerga. <sup>1</sup> They are the ones who govern the world <sup>1</sup> with their teaching. And they lead astray <sup>20</sup> many hearts because of their <sup>1</sup> disorder and their unchastity. <sup>1</sup> Many places will be sprinkled <sup>1</sup> with blood. And five <sup>1</sup> races by themselves <sup>25</sup> will eat their <sup>1</sup> sons. But the regions of the south <sup>1</sup> will receive the Word of the Light. <sup>1</sup> But they who are from <sup>1</sup> the error of the world <sup>30</sup> and from the east — <sup>1</sup> A demon will come forth <sup>1</sup> from (the) belly of the serpent. He was 45 in hiding in a desolate place. <sup>1</sup> He will perform many wonders. Many <sup>1</sup> will loathe him. A <sup>1</sup> wind will come forth from his mouth with <sup>1</sup> a female likeness. Her name will <sup>1</sup> be called

I, <sup>1</sup> Shem, have completed these things. And <sup>1</sup> my mind began to separate <sup>1</sup> from the body of darkness. My 46 time was completed. And <sup>1</sup> my mind put on the immortal <sup>1</sup> memorial. And <sup>1</sup> I said, "I agree with thy <sup>5</sup> memorial which thou hast revealed <sup>1</sup> to me: Elorchaois, and <sup>1</sup> thou, Amoiaiai, and thou, <sup>1</sup> Sederkeas, and they guilelessness, <sup>1</sup> Strophaias, and thou, Chelkeak, <sup>10</sup> and thou, Chelkea, and <sup>1</sup> Chelke and Elaie, you (pl.) are <sup>1</sup> the immortal memorial. <sup>1</sup> I testify to thee, Spark, <sup>1</sup> the unquenchable one, who is an eye <sup>15</sup> of heaven and a voice of light, <sup>1</sup> and Saphaia, and Saphaia, <sup>1</sup> and Saphaina, and the righteous <sup>1</sup> Spark, and Faith, the first <sup>1</sup> and the last, and the upper air and lower <sup>20</sup> air, {and thou, Chelkeak, and <sup>1</sup> Chelke and Elaie, you (pl.) <sup>1</sup> are the immortal memorial. <sup>1</sup> I testify to thee, Spark, the <sup>1</sup> unquenchable one, who is an eye of heaven <sup>25</sup> and a voice of light, and <sup>1</sup> Saphaia, and Saphaia, and Saphaina, <sup>1</sup> and the righteous Spark, <sup>1</sup> and Faith, the First and the Last, <sup>1</sup> and the upper air and the lower air, } and <sup>30</sup> all the powers and the authorities <sup>1</sup> that are in the world. <sup>1</sup> And you, impure light, <sup>1</sup> and you (sg.) also, east, <sup>1</sup> and west, and south, and <sup>35</sup> north, you (pl.) are the zones 47 of the inhabited world. And <sup>1</sup> you (fem. sg.) also Moluchtha and Essoch, <sup>1</sup> you (pl.) are the root <sup>1</sup> of evil and every work and <sup>5</sup> impure effort of Nature." <sup>1</sup>

Blessed are <sup>1</sup> they who guard themselves against the <sup>10</sup> heritage of death, which is <sup>1</sup> the burdensome water of darkness. <sup>1</sup> For it will not be possible to conquer them in a <sup>1</sup> few moments, since they hasten <sup>1</sup> to come forth from the error of the <sup>15</sup> world. And if they are conquered, <sup>1</sup> they will be kept back from them <sup>1</sup> and be tormented in the darkness <sup>1</sup> until the time of the consummation. <sup>1</sup> When the consummation <sup>20</sup> has come and Nature has been <sup>1</sup> destroyed, then their thoughts will <sup>1</sup> separate from the Darkness. Nature <sup>1</sup> has burdened them for a <sup>1</sup> short time. And they <sup>25</sup> will be in the ineffable <sup>1</sup> light of the unbegotten <sup>1</sup> Spirit without a form. <sup>1</sup> And thus is <sup>1</sup> the mind as I have said from <sup>30</sup> the first.

THE SECOND TREATISE OF THE GREAT SETH (VII,2)

JOSEPH A. GIBBONS

Translated by

ROGER A. BULLARD and JOSEPH A. GIBBONS

The Second Treatise of the Great Seth is a revelation dialogue allegedly delivered by Jesus Christ to an audience of “perfect and incorruptible ones,” that is, gnostic believers. Apart from the title, the name Seth never occurs in the text, though perhaps Jesus Christ is meant to be identified with Seth. The treatise presents, in a brief and simple way, the true story of the Savior’s commission by the heavenly Assembly, his descent to earth, his encounter with the worldly powers and apparent crucifixion, and his return to the Pleroma. To this story of the Savior are added an exhortation to the Savior’s followers and a promise of future blessedness. As the Savior says to the gnostic believers at the close of his discourse, “Rest then with me, my fellow spirits and my brothers, for ever.”

There is no doubt that The Second Treatise of the Great Seth is a work that is both Christian and gnostic. On the one hand, Christian elements are tightly woven into the fabric of the treatise. The tractate accepts the New Testament or parts of it, and claims to be the revelation of Jesus Christ. Furthermore, the crucifixion figures prominently in the tractate; in fact, it is described in three separate scenes within the tractate. On the other hand, The Second Treatise of the Great Seth is also clearly gnostic: knowledge is the means of salvation. The God of this world is evil and ignorant, and can be identified with the God of the Old Testament; in addition, all his minions are mere counterfeits and laughingstocks. The interpretation of the crucifixion is that of the Gnostic Basilides as presented by the heresiologist Irenaeus: Simon of Cyrene is crucified in the place of the laughing Jesus.

The purpose for which The Second Treatise of the Great Seth was written is plainly polemical. The entire first part (49,10-59,18) describes the true history of Jesus Christ and emphasizes, over against orthodox Christianity, his docetic passion. The second part of the tractate (59,19-70,10) is a refutation of orthodoxy’s claim to be the true church. Despite the trials and persecutions apparently instigated by the orthodox church, by those ignorant and imitative persons “who think that they are advancing the name of Christ,” the gnostic believers will enjoy true brotherhood on earth, and bliss in the joy and union of eternal life.

THE SECOND TREATISE OF THE GREAT SETH

Let us <sup>1</sup> gather an assembly together. <sup>1</sup> Let us visit that creation <sup>1</sup> of his. Let us send someone <sup>5</sup> forth in it, just as he visited <sup>1</sup> <the>Ennoias, the regions <sup>1</sup> below. And I said these things <sup>1</sup> to the whole multitude of the <sup>1</sup> multitudinous assembly of the <sup>10</sup> rejoicing Majesty. <sup>1</sup> The whole house of the Father of Truth rejoiced <sup>1</sup> that I am the one who is <sup>1</sup> from them. I produced thought <sup>1</sup> about the Ennoias which came <sup>15</sup> out of the undefiled Spirit, <sup>1</sup> about the descent upon the water, <sup>1</sup> that is, the regions below. <sup>1</sup> And they all had <sup>1</sup> a single mind, since it <sup>20</sup> is out of one. They charged <sup>1</sup> me since I was willing. <sup>1</sup> I came forth to reveal <sup>1</sup> the glory to my kindred <sup>1</sup> and my fellow spirits. <sup>25</sup>

The whole greatness<sup>15</sup> of the Fatherhood of the Spirit was at rest in his places. And I am he who was with him, since I have an Ennoia of a single emanation<sup>20</sup> from the eternal ones and the undefiled and immeasurable incomprehensibilities. I placed the small Ennoia in the world,<sup>25</sup> having disturbed them and frightened the whole multitude of the angels and their ruler. And I was visiting them all with fire and<sup>30</sup> flame because of my Ennoia. And everything pertaining to them was brought about because of me. And there came about a disturbance and a fight around the Seraphim and Cherubim,<sup>35</sup> since their glory will fade, 55 and the confusion around Adonaios on both sides and their dwelling – to the Cosmocrator and him who said,<sup>5</sup> “Let us seize him”; others again, “The plan will certainly not materialize.” For Adonaios knows me because of hope. And I was<sup>10</sup> in the mouths of lions. And the plan which they devised about me to release their Error and their senselessness – I did not succumb to them as<sup>15</sup> they had planned. But I was not afflicted at all. Those who were there punished me. And I did not die in reality but in appearance, lest<sup>20</sup> I be put to shame by them because these are my kinsfolk. I removed the shame from me and I did not become fainthearted in the face of what happened to me at their hands.<sup>25</sup> I was about to succumb to fear, and I <suffered> according to their sight and thought, in order that they may never find any word to speak<sup>30</sup> about them. For my death which they think happened, (happened) to them in their error and blindness,<sup>35</sup> since they nailed their man unto their death. For their Ennoias did not see 56 me, for they were deaf and blind. But in doing these things, they condemn themselves. Yes, they saw<sup>5</sup> me; they punished me. It was another, their father, who drank the gall and the vinegar; it was not I. They struck me with the reed; it was another, Simon,<sup>10</sup> who bore the cross on his shoulder. I was another upon whom they placed the crown of thorns. But I was rejoicing in the height<sup>15</sup> over all the wealth of the archons and the offspring of their error, of their empty glory. And I was laughing at their ignorance.<sup>20</sup>

And I subjected all their powers. For as I came downward no one saw me. For I was altering my shapes, changing from<sup>25</sup> form to form. And therefore, when I was at their gates I assumed their likeness. For I passed them by quietly, and I was viewing the<sup>30</sup> places, and I was not afraid nor ashamed, for I was undefiled. And I was speaking with them, mingling with them through those who are<sup>35</sup> mine, and trampling on those who 57 are harsh to them with zeal, and quenching the flame. And I was doing all these things because of my

It was <sup>1</sup> my going to <sup>15</sup> the revealed height which the world did not accept, <sup>1</sup> my third baptism in a revealed image. <sup>1</sup> When they had fled from <sup>1</sup> the fire of the <sup>1</sup> seven Authorities, and <sup>20</sup> the sun of the powers of <sup>1</sup> the archons set, darkness took them. <sup>1</sup> And the world became poor <sup>1</sup> when he was restrained with a multitude <sup>1</sup> of fetters. They nailed him <sup>25</sup> to the tree, and they fixed him with <sup>1</sup> four nails of brass. The <sup>1</sup> veil of his temple <sup>1</sup> he tore with his hands. It was a <sup>1</sup> trembling which seized <sup>30</sup> the chaos of the earth, <sup>1</sup> for the souls which were <sup>1</sup> in the sleep below were released. <sup>1</sup> And they arose. They went about <sup>1</sup> boldly, having shed 59 zealous service of ignorance <sup>1</sup> and unlearnedness <sup>1</sup> beside the dead tombs, <sup>1</sup> having put on the new man, <sup>5</sup> since they have come to know <sup>1</sup> that perfect Blessed One of <sup>1</sup> the eternal and incomprehensible Father <sup>1</sup> and the infinite light, <sup>1</sup> which is I, since I came to <sup>10</sup> my own and united <sup>1</sup> them with myself. There is no need <sup>1</sup> for many words, <sup>1</sup> for our Ennoia was with their Ennoia. <sup>1</sup> Therefore they knew what <sup>15</sup> I speak of, for we took counsel <sup>1</sup> about the destruction of the <sup>1</sup> archons. And therefore I did <sup>1</sup> the will of the Father, who is I. <sup>1</sup>

were unknowingly empty, <sup>1</sup> not knowing <sup>1</sup> who they are, like dumb animals. <sup>30</sup> They <sup>1</sup> persecuted those who have been liberated <sup>1</sup> by me, since they hate them – <sup>1</sup> those who, should they shut <sup>1</sup> their mouth, would weep with a <sup>35</sup> profitless groaning because 60 they did not fully know me. <sup>1</sup> Instead, they served two masters, <sup>1</sup> even a multitude. But you will become <sup>1</sup> victorious in everything, in <sup>5</sup> war and battles, <sup>1</sup> jealous division <sup>1</sup> and wrath. But in the <sup>1</sup> uprightness of our love we are <sup>1</sup> innocent, pure, <sup>10</sup> (and) good, since we have a mind <sup>1</sup> of the Father in an <sup>1</sup> ineffable mystery. <sup>1</sup>

But those who have not are poor, <sup>1</sup> that is, those who do not possess him. <sup>1</sup> And they desire him and <sup>1</sup> lead astray those, who through <sup>1</sup> them have become like those who possess <sup>20</sup> the truth of their freedom, <sup>1</sup> just as they bought us for <sup>1</sup> servitude and constraint of <sup>1</sup> care and fear. This person is <sup>1</sup> in slavery. <sup>25</sup> And he who is brought by <sup>1</sup> constraint of force and threat <sup>1</sup> has been guarded by <sup>1</sup> God. But the entire nobility <sup>1</sup> of the Fatherhood <sup>30</sup> is not guarded, since he guards only him <sup>1</sup> who is from him, without <sup>1</sup> word and constraint, since he is united <sup>1</sup> with his will, he who belongs only to the <sup>1</sup> Ennoia of the Fatherhood, <sup>35</sup> to make it perfect <sup>1</sup> and ineffable through 62 the living water, to be <sup>1</sup> with you mutually in wisdom, <sup>1</sup> not only in word <sup>1</sup> of hearing but in deed <sup>5</sup> and fulfilled word. <sup>1</sup> For the perfect ones are worthy to be established <sup>1</sup> in this way and to be <sup>1</sup> united with me, in order that they may not share <sup>1</sup> in any enmity, in <sup>10</sup> a good friendship. I <sup>1</sup> accomplish everything through the Good One, <sup>1</sup> for this is the union of the truth, <sup>1</sup> that they should have no adversary. <sup>1</sup> But everyone <sup>15</sup> who brings division – and he will learn no wisdom at all because he brings division and is not a friend — is hostile to them all. But he who lives <sup>20</sup> in harmony and friendship of brotherly love, naturally and not artificially, completely and not partially, this person is truly the desire <sup>25</sup> of the Father. He is the universal one and perfect love.

For Adam was a laughingstock, since he was made a counterfeit type of man <sup>30</sup> by the Hebdomad, as if he had become stronger than I and my brothers. We are innocent with respect to him, since we have not sinned. <sup>35</sup> And Abraham and Isaac and Jacob were a laughingstock, since they, the counterfeit fathers, were given a name by the Hebdomad, as if 63 he had become stronger than I and my brothers. We are innocent with respect to him, since we have not sinned. David was a laughingstock <sup>5</sup> in that his son was named the Son of Man, having been influenced by the Hebdomad, as if he had become stronger than I and the follow members of my race. <sup>10</sup> But we are innocent with respect to him; we have not sinned. Solomon was a laughingstock, since he thought that he was Christ, having become vain through the Hebdomad, as if he had become <sup>15</sup> stronger than I and my brothers. But we are innocent with respect to him. I have not sinned. The 12 prophets were laughingstocks, since they have come forth as imitations of <sup>20</sup> the true prophets. They came into being as counterfeits through the Hebdomad, as if he had become stronger than I and my brothers. But we are <sup>25</sup> innocent with respect to him, since we have not sinned. Moses, a faithful servant, was a laughingstock, having been named “the Friend,” since they perversely bore witness concerning him <sup>30</sup> who never knew me. Neither he nor those before him, from Adam to Moses and John the Baptist, <sup>35</sup> none of them knew me nor 64 my brothers.

For they had a doctrine of angels to observe dietary laws and bitter slavery, since they never <sup>5</sup> knew truth, nor will they know it. For there is a great deception upon their soul making it impossible for them ever to find a Nous of <sup>10</sup> freedom in order to know him, until they come to know the Son of Man. Now concerning my Father, I am he whom the world did not know, and because of this, <sup>15</sup> it (the world) rose up against me and my brothers. But we are innocent with respect to him; we have not sinned.

For the Archon was a laughingstock because he said, “I am God, and <sup>20</sup> there is none greater than I. I alone am the Father, the Lord, and there is no other beside me. I am a jealous God, who brings the sins of the fathers <sup>25</sup> upon the children for three and four generations." As if he had <sup>1</sup> become stronger than I and my brothers! <sup>1</sup> But we are innocent <sup>1</sup> with respect to him, in that we have not sinned, <sup>30</sup> since we mastered his teaching. Thus <sup>1</sup> he was in an empty glory. <sup>1</sup> And he does not agree <sup>1</sup> with our Father. And thus <sup>1</sup> through our fellowship <sup>35</sup> we grasped his teaching, since he <sup>1</sup> was vain in an empty glory. And he does <sup>1</sup> not agree with our Father, <sup>1</sup> for he was a laughingstock and 65 judgment and false prophecy. <sup>1</sup>

It (fem.) also happened in the places <sup>20</sup> under heaven for their reconciliation. <sup>1</sup> Those who knew me <sup>1</sup> in salvation and undividedness, <sup>1</sup> and those who existed <sup>1</sup> for the glory of the father <sup>25</sup> and the truth, having been separated, <sup>1</sup> blended into the one <sup>1</sup> through the living word. <sup>1</sup> And I am in the spirit <sup>1</sup> and the truth of the <sup>30</sup> motherhood, just as he has been there; <sup>1</sup> I was among those <sup>1</sup> who are united in the friendship <sup>1</sup> of friends forever, <sup>1</sup> who neither know <sup>35</sup> hostility at all, <sup>1</sup> nor evil, but who are united 68 by my Knowledge <sup>1</sup> in word and peace <sup>1</sup> which exists in perfection <sup>1</sup> with everyone and in <sup>5</sup> them all. And those who <sup>1</sup> assumed the form of my type will <sup>1</sup> assume the form of my word. Indeed, these <sup>1</sup> will come forth in light forever, <sup>1</sup> and (in) friendship with each other <sup>10</sup> in the spirit, since they have known <sup>1</sup> in every respect (and) indivisibly <sup>1</sup> that what is is One. And <sup>1</sup> all of these are one. And thus <sup>1</sup> they will learn about the One, as (did) <sup>15</sup> the Assembly and those dwelling <sup>1</sup> in it. For the father <sup>1</sup> of all these exists, being immeasurable <sup>1</sup> (and) immutable: Nous <sup>1</sup> and Word and Division <sup>20</sup> and Envy and Fire. <sup>1</sup> And he is entirely one, being <sup>1</sup> the All with them all in a <sup>1</sup> single doctrine because all these <sup>1</sup> are from a single spirit. <sup>25</sup> O unseeing ones, why <sup>1</sup> did you not know the mystery <sup>1</sup> rightly? <sup>1</sup>

APOCALYPSE OF PETER (VII,3)

Introduced by

JAMES BRASHLER

Translated by

JAMES BRASHLER and ROGER A. BULLARD

The Apocalypse of Peter is a pseudonymous Christian Gnostic writing that contains an account of a revelation seen by the apostle Peter and interpreted by Jesus the Savior. The persecution of Jesus is used as a model for understanding early Christian history in which a faithful gnostic remnant is oppressed by those "who name themselves bishop and also deacons."

This document belongs to the literary genre of the apocalypse. It is organized around three vision reports attributed to Peter. The visions are explained by the Savior, who functions as the interpreting angel commonly found in apocalyptic literature. In a series of prophecies that actually reflect past events, the early Christian church is portrayed as divided into various factions which oppose the gnostic community. The world is a hostile environment for the immortal souls (the Gnostics), who outwardly resemble the mortal souls (non-Gnostics) but inwardly differ from them by virtue of their immortal essence. Having been given knowledge of their heavenly origin, the Gnostics long for the return of the heavenly Son of Man, who will come as the eschatological judge to condemn the oppressors and vindicate the Gnostics.

The apocalyptic form of this tractate has been employed to present a gnostic understanding of Christian tradition about Jesus. The traditional material is skillfully interpreted in accordance with gnostic theology. The first visionary scene, depicting the hostile priests and people about to kill Jesus (72,4-9) is interpreted in terms of at least six groups characterized as "blind ones who have no guide." Many of these groups appear to be from the orthodox church, but some of them may be better understood as rival gnostic sects. The second scene (81,3-14) describes Peter's vision of the crucifixion of Jesus. The accompanying interpretation by Jesus makes a distinction between the external physical form and the living Jesus; the latter stands nearby laughing at his ignorant persecutors. The third visionary scene (82,4-16) corresponds to the resurrection of Jesus in orthodox tradition, but it is interpreted in gnostic terms as a reunification of the spiritual body of Jesus with the intellectual light of the heavenly pleroma.

The Apocalypse of Peter is significant in several respects. It contains important source material for a gnostic Christology that understands Jesus as a docetic redeemer. The view of the Gnostic community, including its relationship to Peter as its originator, is another key theme of this document. Of considerable interest are the identity of the gnostic group to which the writing is addressed, and the stage of the controversy, between emerging orthodoxy and heresy, presupposed by the tractate. It would appear that the Apocalypse of Peter was written in the third century, when this distinction between orthodoxy and heresy was rather clearly drawn.

APOCALYPSE OF PETER

Apocalypse of Peter <sup>1</sup>

As the Savior was sitting in <sup>15</sup> the temple in the three hundredth (year) of <sup>1</sup> the covenant and the agreement of <sup>1</sup> the tenth pillar, and <sup>1</sup> being satisfied with the number <sup>1</sup> of the living, incorruptible Majesty, <sup>20</sup> he said to me, "Peter, <sup>1</sup> blessed are those <sup>1</sup> above belonging to the Father <sup>1</sup> who revealed life <sup>1</sup> to those who are from the life, through <sup>25</sup> me, since I reminded (them), <sup>1</sup> they who are built <sup>1</sup> on what is strong, <sup>1</sup> that they may hear my word <sup>1</sup> and distinguish words <sup>30</sup> of unrighteousness and <sup>1</sup> transgression of law <sup>1</sup> from righteousness, as 71 being from the height of <sup>1</sup> every word of this pleroma <sup>1</sup> of truth, having <sup>1</sup> been enlightened in good pleasure by <sup>5</sup> him whom the principalities sought. <sup>1</sup> But they did not find <sup>1</sup> him, nor was he mentioned <sup>1</sup> among any generation of <sup>1</sup> the prophets. He has <sup>10</sup> now appeared among these, <sup>1</sup> in him who appeared, <sup>1</sup> who is the Son of Man <sup>1</sup> who is exalted above the heavens in <sup>1</sup> a fear of men of like essence. <sup>15</sup> But you yourself, Peter, <sup>1</sup> become perfect <sup>1</sup> in accordance with your name with myself, <sup>1</sup> the one who chose you, because <sup>1</sup> from you I have established a base <sup>20</sup> for the remnant whom I have <sup>1</sup> summoned to knowledge. <sup>1</sup> Therefore be strong until the <sup>1</sup> imitation of righteousness — <sup>1</sup> of him who had summoned you, <sup>25</sup> having summoned you <sup>1</sup> to know him in a way which is <sup>1</sup> worth doing because of the rejection <sup>1</sup> which happened to him, and the sinews <sup>1</sup> of his hands and his feet, <sup>30</sup> and the crowning <sup>1</sup> by those of the middle region, <sup>1</sup> and the body of <sup>1</sup> his radiance which they bring <sup>1</sup> in hope of 72 service because of a reward <sup>1</sup> of honor — as he was about to reprove <sup>1</sup> you three times <sup>1</sup> in this night."

But when I had done it, I did not see <sup>1</sup> anything. I said, “No one sees (this way).” <sup>20</sup>

And there came <sup>1</sup> in me fear with <sup>1</sup> joy, for I saw a <sup>1</sup> new light greater than the <sup>25</sup> light of day. Then <sup>1</sup> it came down upon the Savior. <sup>1</sup> And I told him about those things <sup>1</sup> which I saw.

And <sup>1</sup> I listened to the priests as they sat <sup>1</sup> with the scribes. The multitudes were <sup>1</sup> shouting with their voice.

When he <sup>5</sup> heard these things from me <sup>1</sup> he said to me, “Prick up your ears <sup>1</sup> and listen <sup>1</sup> to the things they are saying.” <sup>1</sup>

And I saw someone about to approach <sup>5</sup> us resembling him, even him <sup>1</sup> who was laughing on the tree. <sup>1</sup> And he was <filled> with a <sup>1</sup> Holy Spirit, and he is the <sup>1</sup> Savior. And there was a great, <sup>10</sup> ineffable light around them, <sup>1</sup> and the multitude <sup>1</sup> of ineffable and <sup>1</sup> invisible angels <sup>1</sup> blessing them. <sup>15</sup> And when I looked at him, <sup>1</sup> the one who gives praise was revealed. <sup>1</sup>

who has, it will be given to him, and <sup>1</sup> he will have plenty' (Mt 25:29).
 completely dead, who <sup>1</sup> is removed from the planting <sup>1</sup> of the creation of what is begotten, 84 whom, if one <sup>1</sup> of the immortal essence appears, <sup>1</sup> they think that <sup>1</sup> they possess him – <sup>5</sup> it will be taken from him and <sup>1</sup> be added to the one who is. You, <sup>1</sup> therefore, be courageous and do not
 enemies may prevail over you. <sup>1</sup> Peace be to you. Be strong!" <sup>1</sup>

When he (Jesus) had said these things, he (Peter) came <sup>1</sup> to himself. <sup>1</sup>

Apocalypse of Peter

THE TEACHINGS OF SILVANUS (VII,4)

Introduced and translated by

MALCOLM L. PEEL and JAN ZANDEE

The eclectic spirit of the second and early third centuries is clearly reflected in the fourth tractate of Codex VII, The Teachings of Silvanus. Its author, like other educated Christians, found it necessary both to reject erroneous pagan thought and yet, simultaneously, to appropriate the best of such thought to clarify and make cogent the Faith. The resultant text, a rare specimen of Hellenistic Christian wisdom literature, displays a remarkable synthesis of biblical and late Jewish ideas with Middle Platonic and late Stoic anthropological, ethical, and theological concepts. The synthesis has a didactic purpose: to impart the wisdom of Christ which confers the self-controlled and "quiet" life, enables one to be "pleasing to" the Divine, and, ultimately, helps one "become like God."

Unlike the other four tractates in Codex VII, Teach. Silv. is not gnostic and may even contain some anti-gnostic polemic. It is explicitly affirmed, for example, that all creation has been brought into being by God through his "hand," the Christ. Thus, unlike the gnostic dualists, one should never describe the Creator (demiurge!) as "ignorant," in spite of the author's pessimism regarding interpersonal relations (97,30-98,10). Moreover, instead of a docetic view of Christ, the author states that the Savior "bore affliction" for our sins, "died" as a "ransom" and gave his life for others, and put on "humanity." With respect to anthropology, while the author does espouse a tripartite view of man ("mind," "soul," and "body") similar to the gnostic, he departs sharply from their views that one is "saved by nature." Every human being, the text maintains, possesses both divine "reason" and "mind" and thus has the capacity for salvation; God wishes for all to be saved.

Perhaps what helped attract the Teach. Silv. to the predominantly gnostic collection of writings that constitute the Nag Hammadi library, however, was its rather austere and somewhat ascetic ethic. The text counsels keeping under control base passions, passions and unclean thoughts which are induced by the adversary, Satan. One is to have God alone as a friend, for all the world is deceitful and full of pain. Moreover, "austerity" is a type of life to be preferred, and "fornication" is to be avoided rigorously, as is "lust." Especially must one struggle with Satan, the adversary, who offers temptations in subtle disguises, and whose evil powers seek to infest one's life. Such an ascetic and almost "anchoritic" ethic could have appealed to Gnostics, as could also other concepts in the text, such as the "bridal chamber" in 94,27-29.

The literary genre of Teach. Silv. is clearly indebted to Jewish and Hellenistic Jewish wisdom literature; though the author is also influenced by the Cynic-Stoic diatribe and the Hellenistic hymn styles. Influence from the Jewish side, though, is exhibited in the direct quotes in Teach. Silv. of canonical and apocryphal (e.g., 112,37-113,7 = Wis 7:25-26) wisdom writings.

With respect to content, the first part of Teach. Silv. is more Hellenistic and philosophical in character. The latter part is more specifically Christian and biblical in imagery.

In the initial part (84,15-99,4) the writer's main concern is with the state of the soul. To prevent its being inhabited and overcome by base passions and irrational impulses (symbolically described as "robbers" and "wild, savage beasts," the reader is admonished to let the "mind" (nous) become his "guiding principle" and "reason" (logos) become his "teacher." The terminology and emphases clearly echo the anthropology and ethics of the late Stoa and of Middle Platonism.

In the second part of the tractate (99,6-118,7), on the other hand, emphasis is placed on the salvation of the soul made possible by the Redeemer-Revealer Christ, Son of Almighty God. At the outset, the author echoes the Platonic discussion of the "One and the many," utilizing this concept to discuss how Christ and God, like the "mind" in man's body, is present all places without being confined to a single place. Such "topological theology" both presupposes a non-dualistic cosmology in rather anti-gnostic fashion and offers an implicit refutation of the pantheistic theology of Stoicism. In conclusion, the reader is exhorted to seek Christ's inward help in illuminating "reason," in escaping the control of evil powers, in purifying one's life, and in seeking the lasting rewards of his wisdom and God's way (117,5-118,7).

As to the authorship of Teach. Silv., we know of several early prominent Christians who bore the name "Silvanus." The late dates of their activity, however, and the differences of their teaching from that of our tractate seem to rule out consideration of any of them as its author. Rather, we are probably to recognize in the name "Silvanus" that common device used in Christian apocryphal literature of attributing a later, anonymous writing to a figure known by name in the New Testament canon. Such a "Silas" or "Silvanus" was a prominent member of the Jerusalem Church, cotraveller with Paul (Ac 15:22-40; 16:19-29; etc.), and possibly the amanuensis of "Peter's" named in 1 Peter 5:12. So, here is yet another Nag Hammadi tractate identified with the circle of influence emanating from Paul and Peter (cf. Pr. Paul, Apoc. Paul, Acts Pet. 12 Apost., Apoc. Pet. and Ep. Pet. Phil.). As to who the author of Teach. Silv. actually was, however, we must state (as did Origen of the author of Hebrews) "in truth (only) God knows!"

In dating the text, we are mainly dependent on internal evidence, though dates have been found in the cartonnage used to strengthen the leather envelope that contained Codex VII. These dates point toward the third quarter of the fourth century as the probable time of the manuscript's burial near ancient Chenoboskia. Internal evidence includes the author's apparent knowledge of all major divisions of Old and New Testament canons; the stage of development of the Church's doctrine of Christ's "Descent into Hell" that was familiar to the author; the affinities of the text's "Logos" and "Wisdom" Christology to that of the Alexandrine Fathers, Clement of Alexandria and Origen; and the close parallels of the thought of the later Stoa (notably, Marcus Aurelius) and Middle Platonists (especially Albinus) with that of the author of Teach. Silv. Cumulatively, such evidence points toward the late second to early third century.

Many striking parallels that can be adduced to our text from Philo, Sent. Sex-

tus, Clement of Alexandria, Origen, and even Athanasius underscore its affinities with what has become known as Alexandrian theology. Its theology, Christology, cosmology, anthropology, and ethics all point, in their similarity, toward Alexandrian Egypt as the probable provenance.

The concluding note (118,8-9) is secondary, probably added by the copyist. It is surrounded by magical signs related to Christ's designation as "ichthys" ("fish"), an acrostic signifying "Jesus Christ, Son of God, Savior." It may well have been added by the copyist in response to the impressive Christology he has just copied in the text. For him Christ is truly the "extraordinary wonder"!

THE TEACHINGS OF SILVANUS

My <sup>1</sup> son, throw every robber <sup>1</sup> out of your gates. Guard <sup>1</sup> all your gates with torches <sup>5</sup> which are the words, and <sup>1</sup> you will acquire through all these things a <sup>1</sup> quiet life. But he who will not guard <sup>1</sup> these things will become like a <sup>1</sup> city which is desolate since it has been <sup>10</sup> captured. All kinds of wild beasts have <sup>1</sup> trampled upon it, for thoughts which <sup>1</sup> are not good are evil wild beasts. <sup>1</sup> And your city <sup>1</sup> will be filled with robbers, and you <sup>15</sup> will not be able to acquire peace, <sup>1</sup> but only all kinds of savage wild beasts. <sup>1</sup> The Wicked One, who is <sup>1</sup> a tyrant, is lord over these. While <sup>1</sup> directing this, he (the Wicked One) is beneath the great <sup>20</sup> mire. The whole city <sup>1</sup> which is your soul will perish. <sup>1</sup>

O wretched <sup>1</sup> man, what will you <sup>10</sup> do if you fall into their <sup>1</sup> hands? Protect yourself <sup>1</sup> lest you be delivered into the hands of your <sup>1</sup> enemies. Entrust yourself to this <sup>1</sup> pair of friends, reason <sup>15</sup> and mind, and no one <sup>1</sup> will be victorious over you. May God <sup>1</sup> dwell in your camp, <sup>1</sup> may his Spirit protect your <sup>1</sup> gates, and may the mind of divinity <sup>20</sup> protect the walls. Let holy reason <sup>1</sup> become a <sup>1</sup> torch in your mind, burning <sup>1</sup> the wood which is the whole of sin. <sup>1</sup>

My son, <sup>5</sup> accept the education and the teaching. <sup>1</sup> Do not flee from the education and <sup>1</sup> the teaching, but when you are taught, <sup>1</sup> accept (it) with joy. And if <sup>1</sup> you are educated in <sup>10</sup> any matter, do what is good. <sup>1</sup> You will plait a crown of <sup>1</sup> education by your guiding principle. <sup>1</sup> Put on the holy teaching <sup>1</sup> like a robe. Make yourself noble-minded <sup>15</sup> through good conduct. <sup>1</sup> Obtain the austerity of <sup>1</sup> good discipline. Judge <sup>1</sup> yourself like a wise judge. <sup>1</sup> Do not go astray from my teaching, <sup>20</sup> and do not acquire ignorance, <sup>1</sup> lest you lead your people astray. <sup>1</sup> Do not flee from the divine <sup>1</sup> and the teaching which are within <sup>1</sup> you, for he who is teaching <sup>25</sup> you loves you very much. <sup>1</sup> For he shall bequeath to you a worthy austerity. <sup>1</sup> Cast out the animal nature <sup>1</sup> which is within you, <sup>1</sup> and <sup>30</sup> do not allow base thought to enter you. For . . . you <sup>1</sup> know the way which I teach.

your eyes, and cast <sup>15</sup> the darkness from you. Live <sup>1</sup> in Christ, and you will acquire <sup>1</sup> a treasure in heaven. Do not become <sup>1</sup> a sausage (made) of many things <sup>1</sup> which are useless, and do not <sup>20</sup> become a guide <sup>1</sup> in your blind ignorance. <sup>1</sup>

Wisdom summons you <sup>1</sup> in her goodness, saying, <sup>1</sup> "Come to me, all of you, <sup>1</sup> O foolish ones, that you may receive a <sup>1</sup> gift, the understanding which is <sup>10</sup> good and excellent. I am giving to you <sup>1</sup> a high-priestly garment <sup>1</sup> which is woven from every (kind of) wisdom." What else <sup>1</sup> is evil death except <sup>1</sup> ignorance? What else is <sup>15</sup> evil darkness except familiarity <sup>1</sup> with forgetfulness! Cast your anxiety <sup>1</sup> upon God alone. Do not become <sup>1</sup> desirous of gold and silver <sup>1</sup> which are profitless, but <sup>20</sup> clothe yourself with wisdom like <sup>1</sup> a robe, put knowledge <sup>1</sup> on yourself like <sup>1</sup> a crown, and be seated upon a throne <sup>1</sup> of perception. For these are yours, <sup>25</sup> and you will receive them again on high <sup>1</sup> another time.

But <sup>1</sup> since you cast from yourself <sup>1</sup> God, the holy Father, <sup>1</sup> the true Life, the Spring <sup>1</sup> of Life, therefore you have <sup>10</sup> obtained death as a father <sup>1</sup> and have acquired ignorance <sup>1</sup> as a mother. They have robbed <sup>1</sup> you of the true knowledge. <sup>1</sup>

But before everything (else), <sup>1</sup> know your birth. Know <sup>1</sup> yourself, that is, from what substance you are, <sup>1</sup> or from what <sup>1</sup> race, or from what species. <sup>15</sup> Understand that you have come into being <sup>1</sup> from three races: <sup>1</sup> from the earth, from the <sup>1</sup> formed, and from the created. <sup>1</sup> The body has come into being from <sup>20</sup> the earth with an earthly substance, <sup>1</sup> but the formed, for the sake of <sup>1</sup> the soul, has come into being from the thought <sup>1</sup> of the Divine. The created, however, is the mind, <sup>1</sup> which has come into being in conformity with the image <sup>25</sup> of God. The divine mind <sup>1</sup> has substance <sup>1</sup> from the Divine, but the soul <sup>1</sup> is that which he (God) has formed for their <sup>1</sup> own hearts. For I think <sup>30</sup> that it (the soul) exists as wife of that which <sup>1</sup> has come into being in conformity with the image, <sup>1</sup> but matter is the substance <sup>1</sup> of the body which has come into being from the earth. <sup>1</sup>

My son, do not <sup>30</sup> swim in any water, <sup>1</sup> and do not allow yourself to be defiled <sup>1</sup> by strange kinds of knowledge. <sup>1</sup> Certainly you know [that] 95 the schemes of the Adversary <sup>1</sup> are not few and (that) <sup>1</sup> the tricks which he has <sup>1</sup> are varied? Especially has the noetic <sup>5</sup> man been robbed <sup>1</sup> of the intelligence <sup>1</sup> of the snake. For it is fitting for you <sup>1</sup> to be in agreement with the <sup>1</sup> intelligence of (these) two: with the <sup>10</sup> intelligence of the snake and with <sup>1</sup> the innocence of the dove – <sup>1</sup> lest he (the Adversary) come into you <sup>1</sup> in the guise of a flatterer, <sup>1</sup> as a true friend, saying, <sup>15</sup> “I advise <sup>1</sup> good things for you.” <sup>1</sup>

But we are able <sup>30</sup> to mention what is more exalted than this: <sup>1</sup> for do not think in your heart <sup>1</sup> that God exists <sup>1</sup> [in a] place. If <sup>1</sup> you localize the [Lord of] all 100 in a place, then it is fitting for you to <sup>1</sup> say that the place is more exalted than he who <sup>1</sup> dwells in it. For that which contains <sup>1</sup> is more exalted than that which is contained. <sup>5</sup> For there is no place which is called <sup>1</sup> incorporeal. <sup>1</sup> For it is not right for us to say that <sup>1</sup> God is corporeal. <sup>1</sup> For the consequence (would be) that we (must) attribute both <sup>10</sup> increase and decrease to the corporeal, <sup>1</sup> but also that he (God) who is subject to these <sup>1</sup> will not remain imperishable. <sup>1</sup>

My son, <sup>1</sup> do not dare to say a word about <sup>1</sup> this One, and do not confine the God of all <sup>10</sup> to mental images. <sup>1</sup> For he (God) who condemns <sup>1</sup> may not be condemned by the one who <sup>1</sup> condemns. Indeed, it is good <sup>1</sup> to ask and to know who <sup>15</sup> God is. Reason and mind <sup>1</sup> are male names. Indeed, let him who wishes <sup>1</sup> to know about this One <sup>1</sup> quietly and <sup>1</sup> reverently ask. For there is no small danger <sup>20</sup> in speaking about these things, since you <sup>1</sup> know that you will be judged <sup>1</sup> on the basis of everything that you say. <sup>1</sup>

O soul, persistent one, <sup>1</sup> in what ignorance you exist! <sup>30</sup> For who <sup>1</sup> is your guide <sup>1</sup> into the darkness? How many likenesses <sup>1</sup> did Christ take on because of you? <sup>1</sup> Although he was God, he [was found] 104 among men as a man. <sup>1</sup> He descended to the Underworld. He released <sup>1</sup> the children of death. They were <sup>1</sup> in travail, as <sup>5</sup> the scripture of God has said. And <sup>1</sup> he sealed up the (very) heart <sup>1</sup> of it (the Underworld). And he broke its (the Underworld's) strong bows <sup>1</sup> completely. And <sup>1</sup> when all the powers had seen <sup>10</sup> him, they fled so that he might <sup>1</sup> bring you, wretched one, <sup>1</sup> up from the Abyss, and might die for you <sup>1</sup> as a ransom for your sin. He saved <sup>1</sup> you from the strong hand of the Underworld. <sup>15</sup>

O my son, I have given <sup>35</sup> you orders concerning these things many times 110 so that you would always guard your <sup>1</sup> soul. It is not you who <sup>1</sup> will cast him (Christ) out, but <sup>1</sup> he will cast you out. For <sup>5</sup> if you flee from him, you will <sup>1</sup> fall into great sin. <sup>1</sup> Again, if you flee from him, you will <sup>1</sup> become food for your enemies. <sup>1</sup> For all base persons flee from <sup>10</sup> their lord, and the (man) base in virtue <sup>1</sup> and wisdom flees from <sup>1</sup> Christ. For every man who is <sup>1</sup> separated (from him) falls into the claws <sup>1</sup> of the wild beasts.

Where is a man (who is) wise <sup>1</sup> or powerful in intelligence, <sup>1</sup> or a man whose devices are many <sup>25</sup> because he knows wisdom? <sup>1</sup> Let him speak wisdom; let him utter <sup>1</sup> great boasting! <sup>1</sup> For every man has become a fool and has spoken out of <sup>1</sup> his (own) knowledge. For he (Christ) confounded the <sup>30</sup> counsels of guileful people, and <sup>1</sup> he prevailed over those wise in their own <sup>1</sup> understanding.

But no one prevents <sup>1</sup> him (God) from doing what he wants. <sup>1</sup> For who is stronger than him that <sup>1</sup> he may prevent him? To be sure, <sup>1</sup> it is he who touches the earth, <sup>35</sup> causing it to tremble and also causing <sup>1</sup> the mountains to smoke. (It is) he who has <sup>1</sup> gathered together such a great sea 115 as in a leather bag and <sup>1</sup> has weighed all the water on his scales. <sup>1</sup> Only the hand of the Lord <sup>1</sup> has created all these things. <sup>5</sup> For this hand of the Father is Christ, <sup>1</sup> and it forms all. <sup>1</sup> Through it, all has come into being <sup>1</sup> since it became the mother of all. <sup>1</sup> For he is always <sup>10</sup> Son of the Father. <sup>1</sup>

Help yourself, my son, <sup>1</sup> (by) not proceeding with things in which <sup>25</sup> there is no profit.

My son, <sup>1</sup> first purify yourself toward the outward life <sup>1</sup> in order that you may be able <sup>1</sup> to purify the inward.

And <sup>1</sup> be not as the merchants <sup>30</sup> of the Word of God.

Do not wish to acquire honors which <sup>1</sup> are insecure, nor 118 the boastfulness which brings <sup>1</sup> you to ruin.

Accept <sup>1</sup> the wisdom of Christ (who is) patient <sup>1</sup> and mild, and guard <sup>5</sup> this, O my son, knowing <sup>1</sup> that God's way is always <sup>1</sup> profitable. <sup>1</sup>

THE THREE STELES OF SETH (VII,5)

Introduced by

JAMES E. GOEHRING

Translated by

JAMES M. ROBINSON

The Three Steles of Seth offers a rare view into the worship practice of a Gnostic Sethian community. These Gnostics identified their teachings with the primal revelation of God to Adam, which had passed through Seth to his descendants (The Apocalypse of Adam, V,5). Lost and forgotten for ages, this Sethian gnosis had been revealed anew in the latter days. The recipients of this renewed revelation understood themselves as “the living and unshakable race” (118,12-13), the true latter-day descendants of Seth (hence the modern label of Sethian Gnosticism). The Three Steles of Seth is presented as part of this latter-day revelation, in this case to Dositheos, the supposed Samaritan founder of Gnosticism.

The text, which shows no Christian influence, is indebted to Jewish and Neoplatonic traditions. In Genesis, Seth marks a new beginning after the tragic conflict between Cain and Abel (Gn 3:25-5:8). Appointed by God to replace Abel, he is a son in the likeness of his father Adam, as Adam is in the likeness of God. It is in his time that “men began to call upon the name of the Lord.” According to the first-century Jewish historian Josephus (Ant. I,67-71), Seth’s descendants continued to follow his godfearing ways for seven generations, after which they too fell into a life of depravity. During this time, they preserved and added to the knowledge transmitted by Adam to Seth. Forwarned of impending divine judgements by water and fire, they preserved this knowledge for future generations on two steles, one of stone to survive the flood and one of brick to survive the fire.

This legend accounts for the presentation of the present text as the content of steles attributed to Seth (cf. Zost. 130,1-4 and Gos. Eg. 68,10-23). The expansion from the original two steles in the Jewish legend to three represents the influence of Neoplatonic conceptions of the divine triad. The three steles or hymnic prayers of the present text are addressed in ascending order to the threefold nature of god: the Selfbegotten Son, the male virgin Barbelo (mother), and the Unbegotten Father.

Ecstatic trips through the heavens are well attested in Sethian Gnosticism. The Sethian tractates Zostrianos and Allogenes record such journeys by the seers for which the texts were named. These accounts, however, record what was revealed to the seer in his ascent. The invocations of the seer to the divine triad are only noted in passing, as when Zostrianos affirms, “I joined with them all and blessed the Kalyptos aeon and the virgin Barbelo and the Invisible Spirit. I became all-perfect.” In The Three Steles of Seth these blessings or hymnic prayers are recorded in full.

Since Allogenes may be interpreted as another name for Seth, both tractates may commemorate the ascent of the community's primal ancestor to the divine triad. However, while Allogenes records for edification what was revealed to the seer, The Three Steles of Seth preserves the invocations of the seer as a prototype to serve the latter-day Sethian community in its liturgical reenactment of his ascent. While the hymnic prayers are set forth in the tractate as prayers of Seth, first person plural references in the text (e.g. 124,17-18) betray the use of the prayers in the worship practice of the community. The text has led Hans Martin Schenke to posit the existence of a Sethian mystery of ascension. The three subdivisions of the text thus correspond to the three stages or levels in the worshippers' ascent to the threefold nature of god, since at the conclusion of the tractate one must return from the third back down to the second and first.

Neoplatonic philosophical terminology abounds in the text, especially the Existence-Life-Mind triad in the deity. The terminology is also found in the related tractates of Zostrianos, Allogenes, and Marsanes, which together form a cluster of Sethian Gnostic texts with close ties to Neoplatonism. Zostrianos and Allogenes are both mentioned by Porphyry in his Life of Plotinus as texts refuted by Plotinus, who taught a course "Against the Gnostics" in 265-266 C.E. Thus a dating for this stage of Sethian Gnosticism and therefore for The Three Steles of Seth is suggested. Provenience is uncertain, though the philosophical nature of the text would be much at home in Alexandria, Egypt.

The scribal note at the end of the text (127,28-32) has been variously interpreted as applying to The Three Steles of Seth alone or to the codex as a whole.

THE THREE STELES OF SETH

127, 28-32

The revelation of Dositheos<sup>1</sup> about the three steles<sup>1</sup> of Seth, the Father of the living<sup>1</sup> and unshakable race, which<sup>1</sup> he (Dositheos) saw and understood.<sup>15</sup> And after he had read them, he<sup>1</sup> remembered them. And he gave them<sup>1</sup> to the elect, just<sup>1</sup> as they were<sup>1</sup> inscribed there.<sup>20</sup>

Many times I joined in<sup>1</sup> giving glory with the powers, and I became worthy of the<sup>1</sup> immeasurable majesties.<sup>1</sup>

Now they (the steles) are as follows:

The First<sup>25</sup>

Father. And <sup>1</sup> I, I sowed and begot; <sup>1</sup> [but] thou hast [seen] the majesties. <sup>1</sup> Thou hast stood imperishable. I <sup>5</sup> bless thee, Father. Bless me, <sup>1</sup> Father. It is because of thee that I exist; <sup>1</sup> it is because of God that thou dost exist. Because <sup>1</sup> of thee I am with <sup>1</sup> that very one. Thou art light, <sup>10</sup> since thou beholdest light. Thou hast <sup>1</sup> revealed light. Thou art <sup>1</sup> Mirotheas; thou art my Mirotheos. <sup>1</sup> I bless thee as <sup>1</sup> God; I bless thy <sup>15</sup> divinity. Great is the <sup>1</sup> good Self-begotten who <sup>1</sup> stood, the God who had already <sup>1</sup> stood. Thou didst come in goodness; <sup>1</sup> thou hast appeared, and thou hast <sup>20</sup> revealed goodness. I shall utter <sup>1</sup> thy name, for thou art a first <sup>1</sup> name. Thou art unbegotten. Thou <sup>1</sup> hast appeared in order that thou <sup>1</sup> mightest reveal the eternal ones. <sup>25</sup> Thou art he who is. Therefore <sup>1</sup> thou hast revealed those who really <sup>1</sup> are. Thou art he who is uttered <sup>1</sup> by a voice, <sup>1</sup> but by mind art thou <sup>30</sup> glorified, thou who hast <sup>1</sup> dominion everywhere. Therefore <sup>1</sup> [the] perceptible world too <sup>1</sup> knows thee because of <sup>1</sup> thee and they seed. Thou art merciful. 120

 Stele of Seth <sup>1</sup>

The Second Stele <sup>1</sup> of Seth <sup>20</sup>

Great is the first aeon, <sup>1</sup> male virginal Barbelo, <sup>1</sup> the first glory <sup>1</sup> of the invisible Father, she <sup>1</sup> who is called <sup>25</sup> "perfect."

 is a non-being. And <sup>1</sup> from him and through <sup>1</sup> him thou hast pre-existed
 an elect monad, the <sup>1</sup> first [shadow] of the holy <sup>1</sup> Father, light from <sup>1</sup>

 Thou hast [seen] the eternal <sup>1</sup> ones because they are from a shadow. <sup>1</sup>
 And thou hast become numerable. And <sup>1</sup> thou didst find, thou didst continue being <sup>10</sup> one (fem.); yet becoming numerable in division, thou
 thou a world of understanding, <sup>1</sup> knowing those of the one, that they <sup>1</sup> are from a shadow. And these <sup>1</sup> are thine in the heart.

 thou hast empowered <sup>1</sup> divinity in living; <sup>1</sup> thou hast empowered knowl-
 which pour from the one. <sup>1</sup> Thou hast empowered this (one) in knowledge; <sup>1</sup> thou hast empowered another one in creation. <sup>1</sup> Thou hast empowered him who is equal <sup>1</sup> and him who is not equal, him <sup>30</sup> who is similar and him who is not similar. <sup>1</sup> Thou hast empowered in begetting, and <sup>1</sup> (provided) forms in [that which] exists <sup>1</sup> to others. [. . .
 heart. — And [thou hast] come forth to <sup>1</sup> these and [from] these. Thou art divided <sup>1</sup> [among them]. And thou dost <sup>5</sup> become a great male

- Fatherly God, <sup>1</sup> divine child, <sup>1</sup> begetter of multiplicity according to a division <sup>1</sup> of all who really are, <sup>10</sup> thou (masc.) hast appeared to them all

 thou knowledge; thou <sup>1</sup> art truthfulness. On account of thee is <sup>1</sup> life; from thee is life. <sup>20</sup> On account of thee is mind; from <sup>1</sup> thee is mind.
 thou <sup>1</sup> threefold. Truly thou art <sup>25</sup> thrice, the aeon of <sup>1</sup> aeons. It is thou only <sup>1</sup> who sees purely the first <sup>1</sup> eternal ones and the unbegotten ones. <sup>1</sup>

But the first divisions are as <sup>30</sup> thou wast divided. Unite us <sup>1</sup> as thou hast been united. <sup>1</sup> Teach us [those] things which thou dost see. <sup>1</sup> Empower [us] that we may 124 be saved to eternal life. <sup>1</sup> For [we] are [each] a shadow <sup>1</sup> of thee as thou art <sup>1</sup> a shadow [of that] <sup>5</sup> first pre-existent
 one. Hear <sup>1</sup> us first. We are eternal ones. <sup>1</sup> Hear us as the <sup>1</sup> perfect individuals. Thou art the aeon <sup>1</sup> of aeons, the all-perfect one <sup>10</sup> who is es-

Thou hast heard! <sup>1</sup> Thou hast heard!

Thou hast saved! Thou hast saved! <sup>1</sup>

We give thanks! We bless thee always! <sup>1</sup> We shall glorify thee! <sup>1</sup>

The Third Stele <sup>1</sup>

We rejoice! We rejoice! We rejoice! <sup>1</sup>

We have seen! We have seen! We have seen the <sup>1</sup> really pre-existent one (masc.), <sup>20</sup> that he really exists, that he is the <sup>1</sup> first eternal one.

We bless <sup>1</sup> thee, non-being, existence <sup>1</sup> which is before existences, <sup>1</sup> first being which is before <sup>1</sup> beings, Father of <sup>30</sup> divinity and life, <sup>1</sup>

 because of whom [all these are. <sup>1</sup> . . . really, <sup>1</sup> . . .], who knows thee <sup>1</sup> [through] thee alone. For there is no one <sup>5</sup> [who is] active before <sup>1</sup> thee.
 Thou art an only and living [spirit]. <sup>1</sup> And [thou] knowest one, <sup>1</sup> for this one who belongs to thee is on every side. <sup>1</sup> We are not able to express him. For <sup>10</sup> thy light shines upon us. <sup>1</sup>

Present a command to us <sup>1</sup> to see thee, so that <sup>1</sup> we may be saved.

This book belongs to the fatherhood. <sup>1</sup>

It is the son who wrote it. <sup>30</sup>

Bless me, O father. I bless <sup>1</sup> you, O father, in peace. <sup>1</sup>

Amen.

ZOSTRIANOS (VIII,1)

Introduced and translated by

JOHN N. SIEBER

The tractate Zostrianos, a heavenly journey apocalypse, is the major work in Codex VIII and one of the longest works in the Nag Hammadi library. Unfortunately Codex VIII suffered extensive damage prior to its discovery and conservation in modern times so that almost every page of Zostrianos is incomplete and some pages now exist only as fragments. Consequently, much of the text of the tractate is now lost. In spite of these problems Zostrianos offers an interesting example of how some Gnostics combined a mythological world view and a philosophical interpretation of it, based on Platonic thought.

The book opens with an account of the call of its central character, Zostrianos, to leave this world and to journey through the heavens in pursuit of saving gnosis. In antiquity this Zostrianos was linked to the lineage of the famous Persian magus Zoroaster. His call is recounted in autobiographical fashion. He was deeply depressed, ready to commit suicide in the desert, when suddenly an angel appeared to him and called him to gnosis. Leaving his physical body behind on earth, he ascended with the angel through the lower reaches of the heavenly realms. At each level he was initiated through a baptism into the gnosis revealed there.

As Zostrianos' journey continued he met a succession of angelic guides, questioned them and learned from each of them the gnosis of the various heavenly aeons through which he passed. The knowledge consisted largely in learning the names of the inhabitants of the heavenly world and sorting out the relationships between them. When his tour of the heavens was complete, Zostrianos descended once again to the physical world, where he wrote down the gnosis for the benefit of the elect, the holy seed of Seth. The tractate concludes with a brief but compelling homily in which Zostrianos exhorts his readers to abandon this oppressive world and to seek salvation through gnosis.

Zostrianos' mythological gnosis posits a high god named the thrice powerful Invisible Spirit from whom everything else has emanated. The physical earth and its inhabitants represent the lowest and most ignorant level. Between it and the Spirit lies a vast aeon system called Barbelo and understood as the "thought" of the Spirit. Barbelo herself is divided into three constituent aeons: the uppermost aeon is named Kalyptos (the hidden or veiled aeon), in the middle is located the Protophanes (the first-visible or first-appearing aeon), and at the bottom is the Autogenes (the self-generated or self-begotten aeon). Each of these aeons has its own system of constituent beings called lights, glories, angels, waters, etc.

The philosophical interests of the tractate are clear from its use of questions, categories, and terms best known to us from the Neoplatonic school of Plotinus. Zostrianos never tires of asking his angelic revealers about how this changeable world came into existence from an unchanging source, or about why there are different kinds of souls or animals or human beings. Their answers assert that each successive layer of the universe is formed on the basis of the models in the layer above and that each layer is less perfect than its model. Of special interest is the identification of the three Barbelo aeons with the philosophical triad of existence, mind, and life. These and other references make it almost certain that this tractate is the one mentioned by Porphyry (Vit. Plot., 16) as one of the spurious apocalypses in circulation in Plotinus' day and assigned by him to his pupil Amelius for refutation.

Zostrianos shares both its philosophical concern and some of its mythological world with three other tractates from the Nag Hammadi library: The Three Steles of Seth (VII,5), Marsenes (X,1) and Allogenes (XI,3). There are also some mythological ties, especially with regard to the names of the Autogenes system, with some of the more Christian works such as The Gospel of the Egyptians (III,2 and IV,2) and The Apocryphon of John (II,1 et al.), and with The Untitled Text of the Bruce Codex.

Except for a few allusions to the New Testament and Christianity in the extant text, the author of Zostrianos seems to have no specific interest in things Christian. He rejects the ways of the others, his opponents, but it is not clear if they are Christians or Platonists or some other group. His use of liturgical formulas, baptisms, and magical vowel strings indicates the book may have been used by a group of Gnostics in worship or contemplative exercises, but we are unable to identify this group on the basis of the reports of Christian heresiologists.

ZOSTRIANOS

There are those <sup>1</sup> who are as begotten, and <sup>1</sup> those who are in an unborn <sup>1</sup> begetting, and there are those <sup>5</sup> who are holy and eternal, <sup>1</sup> and the immutable ones <sup>1</sup> in death and <sup>1</sup> destruction in indestructibility; <sup>1</sup> and there are those who are as <sup>10</sup> All; there are those [who are] <sup>1</sup> races and those who are [in] <sup>1</sup> a world and order; there are <sup>1</sup> those in [indestructibility], <sup>1</sup> and there are the first [who stand] <sup>15</sup> and the second [in] <sup>1</sup> all of them. [All] those [who] <sup>1</sup> are from them and [those who] <sup>1</sup> are [in] them, and [from] <sup>1</sup> these who [follow] them [...] <sup>20</sup> [...] these [...] <sup>1</sup> and [the] fourth aeons <sup>1</sup> stood [...] <sup>1</sup> [...] they existing [...] <sup>25</sup> [...] <sup>1</sup> [...] 115 in them, he being scattered abroad. <sup>1</sup> They are not crowded against one another, <sup>1</sup> but to the contrary they are alive, <sup>1</sup> existing in themselves and <sup>5</sup> agreeing with one another, as <sup>1</sup> they are from a single <sup>1</sup> origin. They are reconciled <sup>1</sup> because they are all <sup>1</sup> in a single aeon of Kalyptos, <sup>10</sup> [...] being divided in power, <sup>1</sup> for they exist in accord with each <sup>1</sup> of the aeons, standing in <sup>1</sup> relationship to the one which has reached them. <sup>1</sup>

He <sup>1</sup> stands within an <sup>1</sup> aeon because there are within him <sup>1</sup> four different <sup>1</sup> self-begotten aeons. The <sup>20</sup> first aeon in him <sup>1</sup> as the first Light <sup>1</sup> (is) [Harmoze]l-Orneos-Euthrou- <sup>1</sup> nios. [He] was called <sup>1</sup> [...] <sup>25</sup> [...] The] second [aeon as] <sup>1</sup> [the second Light is] <sup>1</sup> [Oraiael ...]-udas[...]os, Ap[...] 128 Arros[...]. The third (aeon) <sup>1</sup> of the third Light (is) <sup>1</sup> Daveithe-Laraneus- <sup>1</sup> Epiphanios-Eideos. The fourth <sup>5</sup> (aeon) as the fourth Light <sup>1</sup> (is) Eleleth-Kodere- <sup>1</sup> Epiphanios-Allogenis. But as <sup>1</sup> for all the rest who are in <sup>1</sup> matter, they were all left (there). <sup>10</sup> It was because of knowledge of <sup>1</sup> greatness, audacity and power that <sup>1</sup> they came into existence and <sup>1</sup> comforted themselves. Because they did not <sup>1</sup> know God, they shall pass away. <sup>15</sup> Behold, Zostrianos, you have heard <sup>1</sup> all these things of the gods <sup>1</sup> are ignorant and (which) seem <sup>1</sup> infinite to angels.” <sup>1</sup>

THE LETTER OF PETER TO PHILIP (VIII,2)

MARVIN W. MEYER

Translated by

FREDERIK WISSE

The Letter of Peter to Philip fills most of the concluding nine pages of Codex VIII. Situated immediately after the tractate Zostrianos, The Letter of Peter to Philip opens with a superscribed title (132,10-11) derived from the letter which forms the first part of the tractate. Like several other tractates in the Nag Hammadi library (Ap. Jas., Treat. Res., Eugnostos), The Letter of Peter to Philip is presented, in part, as a letter. Besides these letters in the Nag Hammadi library, other letters were also in use among the Gnostics (for example, Ptolemy's Letter to Flora, and letters of Valentinus, Monoimus the Arabian, and perhaps Marcion). Furthermore, just as a magnificent epistolary tradition developed around Paul and the Pauline school, so also a more modest collection of letters came to be ascribed to Peter. These Petrine or pseudo-Petrine letters include, in addition to The Letter of Peter to Philip, the catholic letters of Peter in the New Testament, the Epistula Petri ("Epistle of Peter") at the opening of the Pseudo-Clementines, and perhaps another letter of Peter known only from a brief quotation in Optatus of Milevis. Of these letters the pseudo-Clementine Epistula Petri is of special interest, since it shares a number of features with The Letter of Peter to Philip. Not only is it prefixed to a collection of materials relating to Peter; it also seeks to attest the authority of Peter, and as it concludes, the Contestatio begins by referring to the recipient – James the Just – reading and responding to the letter in a manner like that of Philip in the Letter of Peter to Philip 133,8-11. The Letter of Peter to Philip, however, is not to be identified with any of these letters attributed to Peter and must represent a newly discovered work in the Petrine corpus.

In its present form The Letter of Peter to Philip is clearly a Christian Gnostic tractate. Taken as a whole, the tractate is to be seen as a part of the Petrine tradition: Peter is the leader, the spokesman, the preacher among the apostles, and he may very well be described as having his own disciples (139,10). The only other apostle mentioned by name is Philip, who is submissive to the authority of Peter and whose place in the tractate seems intended to highlight the pre-eminent authority of Peter. With their leader, Peter, the apostles gather at Olivet and are taught by the risen Savior; upon returning to Jerusalem, they teach in the temple and perform healings; and eventually they go forth to preach, filled with holy spirit. In other words, not only the place of Peter but also the scenario of the narrative would suggest that The Letter of Peter to Philip shares important features with part of the first (Petrine) section of the Acts of the Apostles (chapters 1-12).

That the author of The Letter of Peter to Philip makes use of Christian traditions cannot be doubted. In particular, numerous parallels between this tractate and the first half of the Acts may be noted, including scenes, themes, and terms which are similar to these two documents. Even the genre of literature they represent – a narrative on Peter and the apostles within which are included revelatory, liturgical, and edificatory materials – is similar, although in the case of The Letter of Peter to Philip the narrative has been prefixed with a letter of Peter. Furthermore, the author of The Letter of Peter to Philip is familiar with other Christian traditions besides Lukan materials. The Savior's second revelatory answer (136,16-137,4) resembles the Johannine Logos hymn (Jn 1:1-18), but the similarities must not be overdrawn. Again, the traditional kerygmatic formulae in the credo of the sermon (139,15-21) show affinities with similar formulae to be found throughout early Christian literature (the parallels in John 19 are particularly close to the credo in The Letter of Peter to Philip), and the little "Pentecost" of The Letter of Peter to Philip (140,1[?]-13) shares features with the Johannine "Pentecost" account (20:19-23). Moreover, the author of this tractate also mentions previous revelatory utterances of the Savior (135,5-6; 138,2-3, 22-24; 139,11-12), utterances frequently said to have been given while Jesus was embodied. Presumably these revelations of the embodied Savior could refer to such teachings as are presented in the canonical gospels, and the "four words" of 140,25 could have been understood as the four gospels to be sent to the four directions. (Hans-Gebhard Bethge suggests that originally the text of 140,25 may have read "the four directions," which eventually could have been modified to read "four words.") Hence, it is clear that the author of The Letter of Peter to Philip is conversant with early Christian materials and desires to establish continuity with these earlier traditions.

Gnostic emphases are clearly visible in the narrative framework of The Letter of Peter to Philip. In particular this observation applies to the gnostic "dialogue," the revelatory discourse of the Savior uttered in answer to the questions of the apostles. The first four revelatory answers (135,8-137,13) are at most marginally Christian, though they have been taken over and legitimated as revelations of the risen Lord. The first answer (135,8-136,15), which provides an abbreviated version of the myth of the mother, illustrates no overtly Christian features at all. It reflects a rather simple version of the myth, and is similar to the Sophia myth of The Apocryphon of John and the Barbelognostics of Irenaeus (Haer. 1.29.1-4) in terminology and general presentation. This set of four revelatory answers furnishes a gnostic perspective on the fall into deficiency and the attainment of fullness, and the imprisonment and the struggle of Gnostics in the world. To this set of answers has been appended an additional question and answer (137,13-138,3) which utilizes different terms and focuses upon the life and mission of the apostles. Gnostic in perspective like the other answers, this additional answer does show Christian concerns, and illustrates a dominant interest of The Letter of Peter to Philip, the suffering of the believer.

In addition to the questions and answers in the gnostic dialogue, other materials similarly used in the tractate may also show gnostic proclivities. The two prayers of the gathered apostles (133,17-134,9) contain traditional terms and themes commonly found in early Christian prayers, but also proclaim a luminosity and glory which make them especially appropriate as the prayers of Gnostic

Christians. Likewise, the description of the resurrected Christ as a light and a voice (134,9-14; 135,3-4; 137,17-19; 138,11-13,21-22) represents a primitive way of depicting the appearances of the risen Lord (Mk 9:2-8 par.; 2 P 1:16-19; Ac 9:1-9; 22:4-11; 26:9-18; 1 Co 15; Rv 1:12-16), but among Gnostic Christians such theophanic descriptions were particularly appreciated.

In the brief sermon of Peter (139,9-140,1[?]) gnōstic tendencies are even more clearly seen. To be sure, a traditional Christian credo constitutes the first part of the sermon (139,15-21), and traditional terms are applied to Jesus ("the Lord Jesus," "the Son," "the author of our life"), but the credo is interpreted according to the Gnostic Christian theology of the author of The Letter of Peter to Philip. From the time of his incarnation Jesus suffered, but he suffered as one who is "a stranger to this suffering" (139,21-22). A Christological tension remains as the sermon stresses both the reality of Jesus' sufferings and the glory of his divinity. In contrast to the suffering illuminator Jesus, the sermon continues, the followers of Jesus suffer because of "the transgression of the mother" (139,23). This phrase is reminiscent of references to the fall of mother Eve, and refers, for the Gnostic Christian author, to the mother often named Sophia in other versions of the myth. She is also called "the mother" at 135,12, and her tragic fall is seen as the source of human sufferings. Hence, this reference to "the transgression of the mother" may provide another point of contact between the figures of Eve and Sophia in gnostic literature.

It is possible, then, to suggest a general outline for the literary history of The Letter of Peter to Philip. On the basis of the parallels with The Apocryphon of John and Irenaeus, we suggest that The Letter of Peter to Philip was written around the end of the second century C.E. or into the third. The author of the text presumably wrote in Greek: such may be intimated by the presence of Greek loan words and Greek idioms. The author apparently was a Christian Gnostic who was well versed in the Christian tradition, and who used and interpreted that tradition in a Christian Gnostic fashion. A gnostic dialogue has been constructed, though it is less a true dialogue than a revelatory discourse of Christ in answer to questions raised by the apostles. Within this dialogue are included gnostic materials which are non-Christian or only marginally Christian; these materials have been adopted as revelatory disclosures of the risen Christ. On the basis of the Christian and gnostic traditions with which the author was familiar, the author compiled a narrative document with a revelatory focus. The letter itself was added at the beginning of this narrative in order to stress the authoritative place of Peter, and The Letter of Peter to Philip subsequently received its present title. Finally, the Greek tractate was translated into Coptic, and found its way into Codex VIII of the Nag Hammadi library.

According to the reports of James M. Robinson and Stephen Emmel, another Coptic text of The Letter of Peter to Philip is to be found in a papyrus codex which, at the present time, is neither published nor available for study.

THE LETTER OF PETER TO PHILIP

VIII 132, 10 – 140, 27

The letter of Peter Which He<sup>1</sup>
Sent to Philip<sup>1</sup>

Then a voice came to them out <sup>1</sup> of the light saying, <sup>5</sup> “It is you yourselves who are witnesses <sup>1</sup> that I spoke all these things to you. <sup>1</sup> But because of your unbelief <sup>1</sup> I shall speak again. First <sup>1</sup> of all concerning [the deficiency] of the aeons, this <sup>10</sup> [is] the deficiency, when the disobedience <sup>1</sup> and the foolishness <sup>1</sup> of the mother appeared <sup>1</sup> without the commandment of the majesty <sup>1</sup> of the Father. She wanted <sup>15</sup> to raise up aeons. And when she <sup>1</sup> spoke, the Arrogant One followed. <sup>1</sup> And when she left behind a <sup>1</sup> part, the Arrogant One <sup>1</sup> laid hold of it, and it became a <sup>20</sup> deficiency. This is the deficiency <sup>1</sup> of the aeons. Now when the Arrogant One <sup>1</sup> had taken a part, he sowed it. <sup>1</sup> And he placed powers over <sup>1</sup> it and authorities. <sup>25</sup> And [he] enclosed it in the aeons <sup>1</sup> which are dead. And all the <sup>1</sup> powers of the world rejoiced <sup>1</sup> that they had been begotten. 136 But they do not know the <sup>1</sup> pre-existent [Father], since they are <sup>1</sup> strangers to him. But this is the one to whom <sup>1</sup> they gave power and whom they served <sup>5</sup> by praising him. But he, the Arrogant One, <sup>1</sup> became proud on account of <sup>1</sup> the praise of the powers. He became <sup>1</sup> an envier and he wanted to <sup>1</sup> make an image in the place [of an image] <sup>10</sup> and a form in the place of a form. <sup>1</sup> And he commissioned the powers within <sup>1</sup> his authority to mold <sup>1</sup> mortal bodies. And they came <sup>1</sup> to be from a misrepresentation, from <sup>15</sup> the semblance which had emerged. <sup>1</sup>

It is because of this <sup>5</sup> that you are being detained, because you <sup>1</sup> belong to me. When you strip off <sup>1</sup> from yourselves what is corrupted, then <sup>1</sup> you will become illuminators <sup>1</sup> in the midst of mortal men. <sup>10</sup>

And Peter opened his mouth, <sup>10</sup> he said to his (fellow) disciples, <sup>1</sup> “[Did] our Lord Jesus, when he was in the body, <sup>1</sup> show us everything? For he <sup>1</sup> came down. My brothers, listen to my voice.” <sup>1</sup> And he was filled with a holy spirit. <sup>15</sup> He spoke thus: “Our illuminator, Jesus, <sup>1</sup> [came] down and was crucified. And he bore <sup>1</sup> a crown of thorns. And he put on <sup>1</sup> a purple garment. And he was <sup>1</sup> [crucified] on a tree and he was buried in <sup>20</sup> a tomb. And he rose from the <sup>1</sup> dead. My brothers, Jesus is a stranger <sup>1</sup> to this suffering. But we are <sup>1</sup> the ones who have suffered through the transgression of the mother. <sup>1</sup> And because of this, he did everything <sup>25</sup> like us. <sup>1</sup> For the Lord Jesus, the Son of the immeasurable glory of the <sup>1</sup> Father, he is the author <sup>1</sup> of our life. My brothers, let <sup>1</sup> us therefore not obey these lawless ones <sup>30</sup> and walk in 140 [...] Then] <sup>1</sup> Peter [gathered together the others also] <sup>1</sup> saying, [“O, Lord Jesus] <sup>1</sup> Christ, author [of our] rest, <sup>5</sup> give us a spirit of understanding <sup>1</sup> in order that we also may <sup>1</sup> perform wonders.”

Then <sup>1</sup> Jesus appeared saying <sup>1</sup> to them, “Peace to you [all] and <sup>1</sup> everyone who believes in <sup>1</sup> my name. And when you depart, <sup>20</sup> joy be to you and <sup>1</sup> grace and power. And be not <sup>1</sup> afraid; behold, I am with you <sup>1</sup> forever.”

MELCHIZEDEK (IX,1)

Introduced by

BIRGER A. PEARSON

Translated by

SØREN GIVERSEN and BIRGER A. PEARSON

This tractate is the only writing of the Nag Hammadi corpus that features, or even names, the mysterious “priest of God Most High” encountered by the patriarch Abraham, according to Genesis 14:18 (cf. Ps 110:4). Its title is partially preserved on one of the fragments making up page 1 of Codex IX. Unfortunately, this codex is in a rather bad state of preservation. Only 19 lines of text (out of approximately 745) from the tractate Melchizedek are completely preserved, and less than 50 percent of the total text is recoverable even by means of conjectural restoration. Thus, since there is no other extant copy of this tractate, only a very imperfect picture of its content is possible to attain, and what has been preserved is susceptible to more than one interpretation. The following account must be read with these caveats in mind.

In terms of literary genre, this tractate is an apocalypse, specifically an “apocalypse of Melchizedek.” It contains revelations putatively given by heavenly intermediaries to Melchizedek, who communicates the revelations to a privileged few. Readers are implicitly invited to see themselves as sharing in these special revelations, as members of these privileged few.

The tractate consists of three main parts:

I. 1,1(?)–14,5: The tractate apparently opens with a brief vocative address by Melchizedek to Jesus Christ, but there quickly follows a third revelation addressed to Melchizedek by a heavenly informant whose name has been restored as “Gamaliel” (5,18). An important feature of this revelation, addressed to the “priest of God Most High” (12,10–11; cf. Gn 14:18), is a prophecy of the ministry, death, and resurrection of the Savior, Jesus Christ. It also contains a remarkable passage which predicts the coming of (docetic) heretics who will deny the physical reality of Jesus’ incarnation, death, and resurrection (5,1–11). Melchizedek himself plays a role in this revelation, for a future high-priestly office is prophesied for him (esp. 5,11–17). A prophecy of the final triumph over death concludes this first revelation (14,8–9).

II. 14,15–18,11 (?): Melchizedek then arises with joy, and undertakes several ritual actions which may also provide for us some insights into the cultic life of the community for which the writing as a whole is intended: prayers of thanksgiving, baptism, reception of the priestly name, and a presentation of spiritual offerings. This liturgical section also includes a lengthy set of invocations, each beginning “Holy are you,” addressed to members of the heavenly world (16,16–18,7; cf. 5,27–6,10). What is of special interest here is that most of the names of these divine beings are names that appear in such gnostic texts as The Apocryphon of John and other tractates associated with Sethian Gnosticism. These names include Barbelo, Harmozel, Oroiael, Daveithe, Eleleth, and others.

III. 18,11(?)–27,10: A second set of revelations transports Melchizedek into the future, again centering on the crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus Christ. But this time – if our reconstruction of the fragmentary text is correct – Melchizedek is given to understand that the spiritual triumph of Christ over his enemies will be that of Melchizedek himself!

Our tractate thus presents a number of challenging features of special interest to the historian of religions; it is indeed a mélange of traditions of Jewish, Christian, and Gnostic stamp. Its presentation of the figure of Melchizedek is a case in point: he is not only the ancient “priest of God Most High” known to us from the Bible, but he also returns as an eschatological “high-priest” and “holy warrior.” Such Jewish apocalyptic material as the Melchizedek fragments from Qumran (11QMelch) and 2 (Slavonic) Enoch shed considerable light on these features.

In this tractate, Melchizedek’s appearance in the endtime is tied to the career of Jesus Christ: his incarnation, death, and resurrection. In other words, Jesus Christ is Melchizedek! Such an idea can be understood as rooted in an interpretation of Hebrews 7:3. Moreover, the idea that Melchizedek is the “Son of God” (i.e., identical to Jesus Christ) gained currency in some early Christian circles, particularly in Egypt.

Can anything be determined about the religious community for which our tractate was composed? The fourth-century bishop of Salamis in Cyprus, St. Epiphanius, gives us an account of a Christian sect whose members referred to themselves as “Melchizedekians” (Haer. 55). A comparison of Epiphanius’ account with Melchizedek reveals enough features in common to suggest that the latter may have originated in a group of “Melchizedekians,” features such as the glorification of the priesthood of Melchizedek and a Christology that insisted on the true humanity of Christ. (The Melchizedekians were not Gnostics.)

But what of the gnostic features clearly discernible in the text? These include the divine names from gnostic mythology already mentioned, a fragment of a theogonic myth (9,1–10), a gnostic interpretation of the paradise story (9,28–10,11), and a reference to the “children of Seth” (5,20). One possible explanation of these features is that an earlier form of the text has undergone a process of gnostic editing: the latest redactor was a Gnostic who identified Melchizedek-Christ with the gnostic savior Seth and who interpolated into the text the various gnostic features that are now found in it. The final form of Melchizedek is thus a product of Sethian Gnosticism. Other explanations are, of course, possible.

The tractate Melchizedek was written originally in Greek, probably in Egypt. A third-century date is likely, though it could be earlier (or later).

Jesus Christ, the Son [of God <sup>1</sup> . . .] from [ . . . ] <sup>5</sup> the aeons that. I [might tell] <sup>1</sup> all of the aeons, and in (the case of) <sup>1</sup> each one of the aeons [that I might tell <sup>1</sup> the] nature of the aeon, what <sup>1</sup> it is, and that I might put on <sup>1</sup> friendship and goodness <sup>1</sup> as a garment, O brother [ . . . ] and [ . . . ] <sup>19</sup> their end [ . . . ]. <sup>1</sup> And he will [reveal <sup>1</sup> to them] the truth [ . . . ] in [ . . . ] <sup>25</sup> proverb(s) [ . . . 2 at first] in parables <sup>1</sup> [and riddles . . . ] proclaim <sup>5</sup> them. Death will [tremble] <sup>1</sup> and be angry, not only <sup>1</sup> he himself, but also his [fellow] <sup>1</sup> world-ruling archons [and] <sup>1</sup> the principalities and the authorities, the <sup>10</sup> female gods and the male gods <sup>1</sup> together with the archangels. And [ . . . ] <sup>16</sup> all of them [ . . . <sup>1</sup> the] world-rulers [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> all of them, and all the <sup>1</sup> [ . . . ], and all the [ . . . ]. <sup>20</sup>

They will say [ . . . concerning] <sup>1</sup> him, and concerning [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> and [ . . . ] <sup>25</sup> they will [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> hidden [mysteries . . . ] <sup>3<sup>3</sup></sup> out of <sup>1</sup> [ . . . ] the All. They will <sup>5</sup> [ . . . ] this the [lawyers] <sup>1</sup> will [bury] him quickly. <sup>1</sup> [They will] call him, <sup>1</sup> “impious man, lawless <sup>1</sup> [(and) impure].” And [on] the <sup>10</sup> [third] day he [will rise <sup>1</sup> from the] dead [ . . . 4<sup>4</sup> holy disciples. And] <sup>1</sup> the Savior [will reveal] to them [the world] <sup>1</sup> that gives life to the [All.] <sup>1</sup>

THE THOUGHT OF NOREA (IX,2)

Comprising only 52 lines of text, this tractate is one of the shortest of the Nag Hammadi corpus. The pages of the manuscript on which it is found are damaged, but they preserve enough text to allow for the restoration of almost the entire tractate. The Coptic text, however, is manifestly corrupt at points, and textual emendation has been deemed necessary here and there (indicated in the translation with pointed brackets).

The tractate bears no title in the manuscript. The one used in this edition is a phrase found in the text itself, at the end of the tractate (29,3). Another title is in use in German scholarship: "Ode on Norea," a designation that also defines the literary genre of this writing: an ode or hymn.

The hymnic features evident in the text include parallelismus membrorum, repetition, and a balanced structure, characteristics of Semitic poetry. Norea does not, however, satisfy the requirements of Greek poetry, for no traditional Greek meter can be ascribed to the original Greek text of which this Coptic version is a translation.

The tractate has a clear fourfold structure:

I. 27,11-20: The tractate begins with an invocation addressed to a divine triad consisting of Father, Mother, and Son, the basic primal triad found in Sethian Gnosticism. The incomprehensible Father is a primal Mind, here also called Adamas (28,30; 27,26), whose Thought (ennoia) is a primal spiritual Mother. Their son is Mind (nous), also called Logos (27,18) and Autogenes (28,6).

II. 27,21-28,12: The invocation is expressly attributed to Norea: "It is Norea who [cries out] to them" (27,21-22). Her cry for deliverance results in her restoration to the divine world, her proper place (= the Pleroma), 27,23; 28,22).

III. 28,12-23: While remaining in the pleroma, Norea also has a saving role to play in propagating "words of Life" (28,13-14).

IV. 28,24-29,5: Norea's own salvation is aided by the intercession of the "four holy helpers" (28,27-28), figures who are easily identifiable as the four "luminaries" of Sethian Gnosticism: Harmozel, Oroiael, Daveithe, and Eleleth (cf., e.g., Melch. IX 6,3-5). Her "thought" (29,3) is the gnosis that brings about for all of her spiritual progeny ultimate reintegration into the godhead. Thus, in saving others, Norea saves herself.

From what has already been said, there can be no doubt that Norea is a gnostic text in the full technical sense of that term. It has justifiably been included among those gnostic texts which are classified as Sethian, in the sense that they share essential features of a discrete gnostic system conveniently labeled as Sethian. (Hans-Martin Schenke is the foremost proponent of this classification, which applies to the following texts of the Nag Hammadi corpus: Ap. John, Hyp. Arch., Gos. Eg., Apoc. Adam, Steles Seth, Zost., Norea, Marsanes, Allogenes, and Trim. Prot.) The Sethian system includes the following essential elements: 1) the gnostic triad of Father, Mother, and Son; 2) the four "luminaries" subordinate to the Son; and 3) the figure of Seth and/or his feminine counterpart, Norea. All of these elements are found in our tractate.

There are no clear indications of Christian influence in this tractate, and such Jewish influence as can be found in it belongs to its prehistory, i.e., the earlier formulations of the Sethian system which is reflected in it.

The most interesting feature of Norea is the savior figure depicted in it, Norea. This figure occurs in a wide range of gnostic literature, Sethian and non-Sethian, with considerable variation in the spelling of her name: Norea, Orea, Noraia, Oraia, Horaia, Nora, Noria, Nuraita, and Nhuraita. She is represented in the literature as the daughter of Adam and Eve, sister-wife of Seth, or as the wife of Noah or Shem. She is sometimes portrayed as the intended victim of rape by the wicked archons, as in The Hypostasis of the Archons (II,4), a text which stands in close relationship with Norea. Comparative analysis of the gnostic texts, together with certain traditions from Jewish aggadah featuring a Cainite woman called Naamah (cf. Gn 4:22), shows that Norea is a gnostic derivative of the figure of Naamah. The original spelling of her name in Greek is Horaia, the semantic equivalent of Hebrew Na'amah ("pleasing, lovely").

Norea thus has a previous career in Jewish legend as a naughty girl, Naamah, cavorting with the fallen "sons of God" (Gn 6:2). A completely opposite picture of Norea is presented in Hyp. Arch., according to which she is an undefiled virgin and a spiritual helper to (gnostic) humankind (II 91,34-92,2; cf. Gn 2:18). It is this picture of Norea that is reflected in our tractate as well. Indeed, in Norea, the saving role of Seth has disappeared completely; it is Norea who is the gnostic "saved savior." As such she can be regarded as a symbolic equivalent of Sophia ("wisdom") as well as a symbol of the gnostic soul in need of redemption and reintegration into the godhead.

It is not possible to come to any definite conclusion as to the tractate's provenance, but Syria or Egypt are the most likely possibilities. A date in the late second, or early third, century is plausible. We have no information on the question of its authorship, but Norea is one of the Nag Hammadi tractates that could easily have been written by a gnostic woman.

THE THOUGHT OF NOREA

And <sup>1</sup> [she began] to speak with words of <sup>1</sup> [Life], and <she> remained in the <sup>15</sup> [presence] of the Exalted One, [possessing <sup>1</sup> that] which she had received before <sup>1</sup> the world came into being. <sup>1</sup> [She has] the [great <sup>1</sup> mind] of the Invisible One, [and <sup>20</sup> she gives] glory to <her> Father, [and <sup>1</sup> she] dwells within those who [...] <sup>1</sup> within the Pleroma, <sup>1</sup> [and] she beholds the Pleroma. <sup>1</sup>

THE TESTIMONY OF TRUTH (IX,3)

Introduced by

BIRGER A. PEARSON

Translated by

SØREN GIVERSEN and BIRGER A. PEARSON

This tractate is unfortunately poorly preserved, owing to the fragmentary condition of the manuscript. Almost half of the text is lost. Even so, enough material is extant or recoverable to enable us to gain a rather good picture of the tractate's content.

It is possible that a title was originally appended to the tractate at the end (as is the case with 21 of the other tractates in the Nag Hammadi corpus); if so, it would have been part of the last inscribed folio of the codex, which is now lost (pp. 75-76). The title now in universal use has been editorially assigned on the basis of content ("word of truth," 31,8; "true testimony," 45,1), and underscores the author's concern to establish "true" faith and praxis while also exposing the false claims of "heretical" opponents.

Indeed, one of the most interesting features of this tractate is that we see in it the other side of the theological arguments we know so well from the ecclesiastical heresiologists. The author is a Christian Gnostic polemicist, with a strict encratic world view and lifestyle. His chief opponents are catholic Christians of the ecclesiastical establishment. Surprisingly, our gnostic author does not spare fellow Gnostics similar polemical treatment, i.e., Gnostics whose lifestyle and ritual practice differ from his own.

The tractate consists of two main parts. The first is a well-constructed homily on truth versus falsehood, addressed to fellow members of a Christian Gnostic community (29,6-45,6). Its purpose is to bolster the convictions of the author's fellow Gnostics and to warn them against the errors of (catholic) Christian opponents. The second part (45,6-end) consists of miscellaneous additions, including elaborations of themes already sounded in the homily itself. It is in this section that the polemics against other Gnostics occur.

I. The homily opens with an exordium in which the author appeals to those endowed with spiritual hearing. An attack is then launched against the Law, which for the author is summed up in the command to procreate. The polemics continue with attacks on those who espouse martyrdom in the belief that there will be a "carnal resurrection" (31,22-38,27). Sexual "defilement" (39,5), i.e., marriage and procreation, is vigorously criticized (38,27-41,4), with Jesus' virgin birth used as a sign that Christians should lead a virginal life (40,5-7). The capstone of the homily is a description of the career of the archetypical Gnostic: his renunciation of the world and his reintegration into the realm of imperishability (41,4-44,30). A peroration sums up the "true testimony": self-knowledge is knowledge of God and leads to the "crown unfading" (44,30-45,6).

II. The appended miscellanea occur in a portion of Codex IX which has sustained considerable damage and loss. It is nevertheless clear that the polemical tone sounded in the homily consists of a gnostic midrash on the serpent of Genesis 3 (45,23-49,10). It retells the paradise story in such a way as to portray the serpent as the revealer of life and knowledge, and God (the Creator) as a malevolent and ignorant demon. This material is probably based on a previously existing source, to which the author of Testim. Truth has added some editorial touches, including an allegorical interpretation of the serpent as a symbol of Christ (49,7).

Another interesting section, unfortunately very fragmentary, consists of polemics against the tenets of such other Gnostics as Valentinus (56,2-5), Basilides and his son Isidore (57,6-8), and the Simonians (58,2-3). It is presumably on the basis of their ethical and ritual practices that those teachers and groups are regarded by the author of Testim. Truth as heretics. For example, the Valentinians are criticized for their use of the sacrament of baptism (55,7-9); water baptism is consistently condemned in Testim. Truth (69,7-24; cf. 30,18-30). The Simonians are criticized for marrying and begetting children (58,2-4), a criticism that would extend to the Valentinians and Basilidians as well.

In short, from beginning to end, our tractate is filled with the polemics of a teacher who earnestly believed that his version of Christian faith and praxis was the only true one, a pamphleteer whose hatred of "heresy" was the match of that of an Irenaeus, a Hippolytus, or a Tertullian. Indeed, our author can be regarded as a mirror-image of the great heresiologists of the Church, representing the other side of the argument.

Who was this man? From what can be gathered from the tractate itself, he was probably an Alexandrian whose Gnostic Christianity was heavily influenced by other Alexandrian gnostic traditions, especially Valentinianism. Yet he rejected certain features of Valentinian doctrine and practice. As it happens, Clement of Alexandria has provided us with information about a gnostic teacher who fits the situation of our author very well: Julius Cassianus. This man had "departed from the school of Valentinus" (Strom. III.93) and espoused a strict encratism, condemning marriage and sexual intercourse. Julius Cassianus, of all the heretics known to us by name from ancient sources, is the most likely candidate for the authorship of Testim. Truth.

Even if Julius Cassianus is not its author, Testim. Truth is most plausibly to be situated in Alexandria and dated to the end of the second century or the beginning of the third.

THE TESTIMONY OF TRUTH

IX 29, 6-74, 30

I will speak to those who know <sup>1</sup> to hear not with the ears <sup>1</sup> of the body but with the ears <sup>1</sup> of the mind. For many have sought <sup>10</sup> after the truth and have not <sup>1</sup> been able to find it; because there has taken hold of them [the] <sup>1</sup> old leaven of the Pharisees <sup>1</sup> and the scribes [of] <sup>15</sup> the Law. And the leaven is [the] <sup>1</sup> errant desire of <sup>1</sup> the angels and the demons <sup>1</sup> and the stars. As for the Pharisees <sup>1</sup> and the scribes, it is they <sup>20</sup> who belong to the archons who <sup>1</sup> have authority [over them]. <sup>1</sup>

For no one who is under <sup>1</sup> the Law will be able to look <sup>1</sup> up to the truth for they will not be <sup>25</sup> able to serve two masters. <sup>1</sup> For the defilement of the Law <sup>1</sup> is manifest; 30 but undefilement belongs to the <sup>1</sup> light. The Law commands <sup>1</sup> (one) to take a husband (or) to take a wife, and <sup>1</sup> to beget, to multiply like the sand <sup>5</sup> of the sea. But passion which <sup>1</sup> is a delight to them constrains <sup>1</sup> the souls of those who are begotten <sup>1</sup> in this place, those who defile <sup>1</sup> and those who are defiled, <sup>10</sup> in order that the Law might <sup>1</sup> be fulfilled through them. And <sup>1</sup> they show that they are assisting <sup>1</sup> the world; and they <sup>1</sup> [turn] away from the light, <sup>15</sup> who are unable <sup>1</sup> [to pass by] the archon of [darkness] <sup>1</sup> until they pay the last [penny]. <sup>1</sup>

For the Son of <sup>1</sup> [Man] clothed himself with their <sup>1</sup> first-fruits; he went down to <sup>25</sup> Hades and performed many mighty works. <sup>1</sup> He raised the dead <sup>1</sup> therein; and the <sup>1</sup> world-rulers of darkness became envious 33 of him, for they did not find <sup>1</sup> sin in him. But <sup>1</sup> he also destroyed their works <sup>1</sup> from among men, so that <sup>5</sup> the lame, the blind, <sup>1</sup> the paralytic, the dumb, (and) the <sup>1</sup> demon-possessed were granted <sup>1</sup> healing. And he walked <sup>1</sup> upon the waters of the sea. <sup>10</sup> For this reason he [destroyed] <sup>1</sup> his flesh from [...] <sup>1</sup> which he [...]. And he [became <sup>1</sup> ...] salvation [...] <sup>1</sup> his death ... <sup>19</sup> everyone ...] <sup>20</sup> how many [they are! They are] <sup>1</sup> blind [guides, like the disciples]. <sup>1</sup> They boarded [the ship, (and) at about thirty] <sup>1</sup> stades, they [saw Jesus <sup>1</sup> walking] on the [sea. These] <sup>25</sup> are [empty] martyrs, <sup>1</sup> since they bear witness only [to] <sup>1</sup> themselves. And yet they are <sup>1</sup> sick, and they are not able to raise 34 themselves.

destruction, [and they are not <sup>1</sup> stripped] of [it (the flesh) who] <sup>1</sup> err in [expecting] <sup>1</sup> a [resurrection] <sup>5</sup> that is empty. [They do] not [know] <sup>1</sup> the power [of God], <sup>1</sup> nor do they [understand the interpretation] <sup>1</sup> of the scriptures [on account of their] <sup>1</sup> double-mindedness. [The <sup>10</sup> mystery] which [the Son of Man <sup>1</sup> spoke about . . .] <sup>1</sup> in order that [. . .] <sup>1</sup> destroy [. . .] <sup>16</sup> man who [. . . book] <sup>1</sup> which is written [. . .] <sup>1</sup> for [they] have [. . . <sup>20</sup> blessed . . .] <sup>1</sup> within [them, and they] <sup>1</sup> dwell before [God under the <sup>1</sup> light yoke. Those who do not] <sup>1</sup> have [the life-giving word] <sup>25</sup> in their [heart will die]; <sup>1</sup> and in [their] thought <sup>1</sup> they have become manifest to [the Son] <sup>1</sup> of Man, according to [the manner of their] <sup>1</sup> activity and their [error . . .] 38 of this sort. They <sup>1</sup> [. . .] as he divides the <sup>1</sup> [. . .] and they [do not] understand <sup>1</sup> [that the Son] of Man <sup>5</sup> is coming from him. <sup>1</sup>

They are <sup>1</sup> wicked in their behavior! Some <sup>1</sup> of them fall away 70 [to the worship of] idols. [Others] <sup>1</sup> have <sup>1</sup> [demons] dwelling with them [as did] <sup>1</sup> David the king. He is the one who <sup>5</sup> laid the foundation of Jerusalem; and his son <sup>1</sup> Solomon, whom he begat <sup>1</sup> in [adultery], is the one who <sup>1</sup> built Jerusalem by means of the demons, <sup>1</sup> because he received [power]. When he <sup>10</sup> [had finished building, he imprisoned] the demons <sup>1</sup> [in the temple]. He [placed them] into seven <sup>1</sup> [waterpots. They remained] a long [time <sup>1</sup> in] the [waterpots], abandoned <sup>1</sup> [there]. When the Romans [went] <sup>15</sup> up to [Jerusalem] they discovered <sup>1</sup> [the] waterpots, [and immediately] <sup>1</sup> the [demons] ran <sup>1</sup> out of the waterpots as those who <sup>1</sup> escape from prison. And <sup>20</sup> the waterpots [remained] pure (thereafter). <sup>1</sup> [And] since those days, [they dwell] with men who are <sup>1</sup> [in] ignorance, and <sup>1</sup> [they have remained upon] the earth.

Who, then, is <sup>25</sup> [David]? And who is Solomon? <sup>1</sup> [And] what is the foundation? And what is the <sup>1</sup> wall which surrounds Jerusalem? And who <sup>1</sup> are the demons? And what are the <sup>1</sup> waterpots? And who are <sup>30</sup> the Romans? But these [are mysteries . . .] 71 <sup>12</sup> victorious over [. . . the Son] <sup>1</sup> of Man [. . . <sup>14</sup> undefiled . . .] <sup>18</sup> and he [. . .] <sup>1</sup> when he [. . .]. <sup>20</sup> For [. . .] is a great [. . .] <sup>22</sup> to this nature [. . .] <sup>24</sup> those that [. . .] <sup>1</sup> all in [a . . .] blessed <sup>1</sup> and they [. . . like a] <sup>1</sup> salamander. And <sup>25</sup> [the Son] of Man [. . .] <sup>1</sup> and [he has become] manifest through <sup>1</sup> the bubbling fountain of [immortality. 73 . . .] <sup>1</sup> he is pure, <sup>1</sup> [and he] is [. . .]. A free man <sup>1</sup> [is not] envious. He is set apart from <sup>5</sup> everyone, from [every audacity and] envy <sup>1</sup> the [power of] which is great [. . .] is (a) <sup>1</sup> disciple [. . .] <sup>1</sup> pattern of law [. . .] <sup>1</sup> these [. . .] <sup>10</sup> only [. . .] <sup>13</sup> they placed <sup>1</sup> him under a[. . .] <sup>15</sup> a teaching [. . .] <sup>17</sup> his teaching, saying, “[Even if] an [angel] <sup>1</sup> comes from heaven, and preaches <sup>20</sup> to you beyond that which we preached <sup>1</sup> to you, may he be <sup>1</sup> anathema,” (cf. Ga 1:8) not letting the [. . .] <sup>1</sup> of the soul which [. . .] <sup>1</sup> freedom [. . .]. <sup>25</sup> For they are still immature [. . .] <sup>1</sup> they are not able to [keep] <sup>1</sup> this law which works <sup>1</sup> by means of these heresies — <sup>1</sup> though it is not they, but the powers <sup>30</sup> of Sabaoth — by means 74 of the [. . .] <sup>1</sup> the doctrines [. . .] <sup>1</sup> as they have been jealous of some [. . .] <sup>1</sup> law(s) in Christ. ## MARSANES (X,1)

BIRGER A. PEARSON

Codex X is extant only in fragments representing considerably less than half of its original content. Codices X and XII are the two Nag Hammadi manuscripts which have suffered the most loss. But, unlike Codex XII, the fragments of Codex X represent literature that is previously unknown; that is to say, there does not exist any other extant copy of the tractate(s) contained in it. We do not even know how large Codex X originally was, for the 68 inscribed pages to which the extant fragments are assigned represent an absolute minimum; the original codex could very easily have consisted of over 90 inscribed pages.

We do not know for sure that Codex X contained only one tractate, though what can be determined of the content of the extant fragments suggests that this is the case. Letter-traces of a tractate title, with decorations, occur on a small fragment of the last inscribed page (68). The proper name "Marsanes" has been restored from these letter-traces; hence the title Marsanes.

Marsanes is the name of a gnostic prophet known from two other sources: the untitled tractate found in the Bruce Codex names Marsanes and Nikotheos as "perfect men" who had seen visions of a divine being called "the triple-powered one," an emanation of the supreme Father (Cod. Bruc. Untitled, ch. 7). Epiphanius of Salamis mentions among the prophets honored by the "Archontic" Gnostics "a certain Martiades and Marsianos, who had been snatched up into the heavens and had come down after three days" (Haer. 40.7.6). ("Marsianos" is simply a Greek variant of "Marsanes.") It is quite possible that the author of the Bruce Codex tractate had access to Marsanes, and our tractate may also have circulated among the "Archontics" discussed by Epiphanius.

In terms of genre, our tractate is an apocalypse, specifically an "apocalypse of Marsanes." "Marsanes" may be a name adopted by the gnostic author (mar means "master" in Syriac). Alternatively, an anonymous author is attributing his writing to a well-known gnostic prophet. In either case, the text contains purported revelations and reports of visionary experiences. There are also passages of a paraenetic character with which the author exhorts and encourages his readers. The text is addressed to members of a gnostic community who have already been initiated (see e.g., 2,19-21; 3,4-9).

The third-century Neoplatonist philosopher, Porphyry, in a biography of his great teacher, Plotinus, refers to certain "sectarians who had abandoned the ancient philosophy" (i.e. Platonism). These sectarians were Gnostics, with whom members of Plotinus' school had come in contact. Porphyry reports that these people "produced apocalypses of Zoroaster and Zostrianos and Nikotheos and Allogenes and Messos and others of this sort" (Vit. Plot. 16). Two of the apocalypses referred to by Porphyry are now available to us in Coptic versions in the Nag Hammadi corpus: Zostrianos (VIII,1) and Allogenes (XI,3). Marsanes, in terms of its content, is very closely related to these two tractates.

Too much of our tractate is now lost to allow us to give a full account of its content, or even to outline its structure. The first ten pages are relatively intact, however. This part of the tractate contains material relating to a gnostic ascent experience, and includes a discussion of the various levels of reality, symbolically referred to as "seals." These levels range from the "worldly" and "material," characterized by corporeal existence (2,16-21), to the realms of the invisible Three-Powered One, the Non-being Spirit, and the unknown Silent One (4,12-23).

The next-best preserved section is from the middle of the codex (pp. 24-42), and contains material on the mystical meaning of the letters of the alphabet and their relation both to the human soul and to the names of the gods and angels of the zodiacal realm and the other spheres of the heavens.

The material at the end of the codex is extremely fragmentary, but there are indications of visionary experiences and a reference to heavenly intermediaries who "spoke like the angels" (63,4). One of these is mentioned by name: Gamaliel (64,19), an angel who appears in a number of Sethian Gnostic sources, including Melchizedek (IX,1:5,18). This part of the tractate also includes references to a kind of baptismal ceremony (55,20; 66,1-5). The tractate ends with a word of encouragement to "those who will know [him]" (68,17, probably referring to the supreme Father; cf. 1,11-25).

Marsanes has been classified as a Sethian writing, on the basis of features in it which relate to the Sethian Gnostic system (as delineated especially by Hans-Martin Schenke). Seth is nowhere mentioned in the extant fragments, but the revelatory role assigned to Marsanes in this tractate makes it possible for us to see in him an avatar of Seth the savior.

There are no hints in our tractate of any Christian elements or influences, and such items of Jewish origin as are reflected must be assigned to its prehistory, i.e., to the Sethian Gnostic system lying behind the text.

Marsanes is one of the Sethian Gnostic tractates in the Nag Hammadi corpus that have been profoundly influenced by Platonist philosophy. The others are The Three Steles of Seth (VII,5), Zostrianos (VIII,1), and Allogenes (XI,3). In fact, both in terms of its metaphysics and its ritual references, Marsanes represents a kind of Platonism which coheres well with that of the Syrian Neoplatonist philosopher, Iamblichus of Chalcis (ca. 250-325 C.E.). For Marsanes, as for Iamblichus, matter is not evil; indeed, it is capable of salvation (see esp. 5,14-26). Here we see a definite attenuation of the radical dualism characteristic of earlier gnostic texts. For Marsanes, as for Iamblichus, the descent of the soul into matter is not regarded as a fall but as a demiurgic function, a doctrine based on Plato's discussion of the soul and its descent in the Timaeus (41a-42b). In Marsanes, the descent of a figure called "the Self-begotten One" (Autogenes) represents symbolically the descending soul in its demiurgic function (5,27-6,16). Similar ideas are expressed in Iamblichus' famous treatise, On the Mysteries of Egypt (De mysteriis VIII.3).

In terms of its ritual allusions, Marsanes is comparable to that variety of late Platonism in which theurgy was cultivated. Theurgy (theourgia: "the works [erga] of the gods [theoi]") is religious ritual whose chief aim is to assist the human soul in its reascent. The Chaldaean Oracles, a second-century collection of revelatory poetry, is the classic authority for theurgy, but Iamblichus is probably the greatest exponent and theorist of theurgy among the philosophers. Study of his great work on religious ritual (De mysteriis, referred to above) opens up some interesting possibilities for understanding the enigmatic ritual allusions in Marsanes. One can thus view Marsanes as a text in which gnostic theurgy plays a crucial role.

Examples of Marsanes' preoccupation with ritual include the material on the "thirteen seals" (2,12-4,23), which is probably related to a gnostic ritual of ascent. (Cf. Steles Seth, which contains prayers and invocations used in such a ritual.) The material on the letters of the alphabet and the nomenclature of the gods and the angels (pp. 19-40) also is related to the ascent ritual, and probably involves ritual chant and special instructions expected to assist the soul in its ascent. An enigmatic reference to "wax images" and "emerald likenesses" (35,1-3) reminds us of Iamblichus' discussion of the use of stones, plants, etc., in theurgic ritual (De mysteriis V.23). Even the baptismal references already mentioned (55,20; 66,1-5) could be understood in association with an ascent ritual. (This is probably the case with the references to baptism in Zostrianos; see e.g., VIII 5,14-7,22.)

The tractate Marsanes was probably written sometime in the third century. There are strong indications of a Syrian background for its gnostic author, but this person could have been active in any number of places in the Mediterranean world, such as Rome or Egypt, though Syria is probably the best guess. From there the original Greek version would have been brought to Egypt and translated into Coptic.

But the sixth, <sup>1</sup> concerning the self-begotten ones, <sup>20</sup> concerning the incorporeal being <sup>1</sup> which exists partially, <sup>1</sup> together with those who exist in <sup>1</sup> the truth of the All [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> for understanding and <sup>25</sup> assurance. And the [seventh], <sup>1</sup> concerning the self-begotten power, <sup>1</sup> which [is the] <sup>1</sup> third [perfect . . . ] 4 fourth, concerning salvation <sup>1</sup> [and] wisdom. And the eighth, <sup>1</sup> concerning the mind which is <sup>1</sup> [male, which] appeared <sup>5</sup> [in the beginning], and (concerning) the being <sup>1</sup> [which is incorporeal] and the <sup>1</sup> [intelligible] world. The ninth, <sup>1</sup> [ . . . ] of the power <sup>1</sup> [which] appeared [in the <sup>10</sup> beginning. The] tenth, [concerning <sup>1</sup> Barbelo, the] virgin [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> of the Aeon. <sup>1</sup> [The eleventh] and [the <sup>1</sup> twelfth] speak of the <sup>15</sup> Invisible One who possesses <sup>1</sup> three powers <sup>1</sup> and the Spirit which does not <sup>1</sup> have being, belonging to <sup>1</sup> the first Unbegotten (fem.). The <sup>20</sup> thirteenth speaks concerning <sup>1</sup> [the] Silent One who was not <sup>1</sup> [known], and the primacy of <sup>1</sup> [the one who] was not distinguished. <sup>1</sup>

The sounds of <sup>1</sup> [the semivowels] are 27 superior to the voiceless (consonants). <sup>1</sup> And those that are double are superior <sup>1</sup> to the semivowels which <sup>1</sup> do not change. But the aspirates <sup>5</sup> are better than the inaspirates (of) <sup>1</sup> the voiceless (consonants). <sup>1</sup> And those that are intermediate will [accept] <sup>1</sup> their combination in which they are; <sup>1</sup> they are ignorant [of] <sup>10</sup> the things that are good. They (the vowels) <sup>1</sup> are combined with the [intermediates] <sup>1</sup> which are less. [Form] by [form], <sup>1</sup> <they constitute> the nomenclature of the [gods] <sup>1</sup> and the angels, [not] because <sup>15</sup> they are mixed with each other <sup>1</sup> according to every form, but <sup>1</sup> only (because) they have <sup>1</sup> a good function. <sup>1</sup> It did not happen <sup>20</sup> that <their> will was revealed. <sup>1</sup>

But [I] <sup>1</sup> am speaking to you (sg.) [concerning the <sup>1</sup> three . . . shapes] <sup>1</sup> of the soul. [The] <sup>1</sup> third [shape of the soul] <sup>1</sup> is [ . . . ] 28 is a spherical one, put <sup>1</sup> after it, from the <sup>1</sup> simple vowels: <sup>1</sup> eee, iii, ooo, uuu, oōō. <sup>5</sup> The diphthongs were <sup>1</sup> as follows: ai, au, <sup>1</sup> ei, eu, ēu, ou, ōu, oi, ēi, <sup>1</sup> ui, ōi, auei, euēu, oiou, <sup>1</sup> ggg, ggg, ggg, aiau, <sup>10</sup> [eieu], ēu, oiou, ōu, ggg, <sup>1</sup> [ggg], aueieu, oiou, ēu, <sup>1</sup> three times for a male soul. <sup>1</sup> The third <sup>1</sup> shape is spherical. <sup>15</sup> The second shape, being <sup>1</sup> put after it, has <sup>1</sup> two sounds. The male soul's <sup>1</sup> third shape <sup>1</sup> (consists) of the <sup>20</sup> simple vowels: <sup>1</sup> aaa, eee, ēēē, iii, ooo, <sup>1</sup> uuu, oōō, ōōō, oōō. <sup>1</sup> [And] this shape is different <sup>1</sup> [from] the first, but <sup>25</sup> [they resemble] each other <sup>1</sup> [and they] make some <sup>1</sup> [ordinary sounds] of <sup>1</sup> [this sort: aeē]oō. And 29 from these (are made) the diphthongs. <sup>1</sup>

But the aspirates <sup>1</sup> [and the inaspirates] and the <sup>1</sup> [intermediates] constitute <sup>1</sup> [the voiceless (consonants). Again <sup>1</sup> . . . they] are combined <sup>1</sup> [with each other, and] they are separate 31 from one another. They are <sup>1</sup> commanded, and they submit, <sup>1</sup> and they constitute an <sup>1</sup> ignorant nomenclature. <sup>5</sup> And they become one or <sup>1</sup> two or three or [four] <sup>1</sup> or five or six up to <sup>1</sup> seven having a <sup>1</sup> [simple] sound, <together with> these which [have] <sup>1</sup> two [sounds], . . . the place [of the <sup>1</sup> seventeen consonants. Among] <sup>1</sup> the first names [some] are <sup>1</sup> less. And <sup>1</sup> since [these] do not have being, <sup>15</sup> either [they] are an aspect [of] <sup>1</sup> being [or] they divide <sup>1</sup> the nature [of] the mind <sup>1</sup> which [is masculine] (and) which is [intermediate]. <sup>1</sup>

And there <sup>1</sup> will be some effects. <sup>1</sup> The first (fem.), <sup>1</sup> which is good, is from <sup>1</sup> [the] triad. It [. . .] <sup>10</sup> has need of [. . .] <sup>12</sup> their shapes. <The> dyad <sup>1</sup> and the monad <sup>1</sup> do not resemble anything, but <sup>15</sup> they are first to exist. <sup>1</sup> The dyad, being divided, <sup>1</sup> is divided [from the] monad, [and <sup>1</sup> it] belongs to the hypostasis. <sup>1</sup> But the tetrad received (the) [elements], <sup>20</sup> and the pentad <sup>1</sup> received concord, and the <sup>1</sup> [hexad] was perfected by <sup>1</sup> itself. The <sup>1</sup> [hebdomad] received beauty, <sup>25</sup> [and the] ogdoad <sup>1</sup> [received . . .] <sup>1</sup> ready [. . .] <sup>29</sup> greatly. 33 And the [decad revealed] <sup>1</sup> the whole place. <sup>1</sup> But the eleven and the <sup>1</sup> [twelve] have traversed <sup>5</sup> [. . .] not having [. . .] <sup>1</sup> it [is higher . . .] <sup>1</sup> seven [. . .] <sup>15</sup> name(s) . . .] <sup>17</sup> promise that [. . .] <sup>1</sup> begin [to separate] <sup>1</sup> them by means of <sup>20</sup> a mark [and] <sup>1</sup> a point, the [one which <sup>1</sup> quarrels] from the one which is [an enemy]. <sup>1</sup>

For the rest, I will <sup>5</sup> [teach you (sg.)] about them. This is <sup>1</sup> [the] generation of the names. That (fem.) which [was not] <sup>1</sup> generated [...] from the] <sup>1</sup> beginning [...] <sup>15</sup> with regard to [...] <sup>18</sup> time(s), when [confinéd], when <sup>1</sup> spread out, when [diminished]. <sup>20</sup> But there exists the gentle [word], <sup>1</sup> and there exists another <sup>1</sup> word which [approaches] <sup>1</sup> being [...] <sup>1</sup> in this [manner ...]. <sup>26</sup> And he [...] <sup>1</sup> the difference [...] <sup>1</sup> and the [...] 36 the all and a [...] <sup>1</sup> the [undivided] beings <sup>1</sup> and the power [...] <sup>1</sup> having [a] <sup>5</sup> share in [the joy] <sup>1</sup> separately and [...] <sup>1</sup> whether [...] <sup>15</sup> power <sup>1</sup> [...] he] exists <sup>1</sup> [in] every place [...] <sup>1</sup> them always. <sup>1</sup> [He] dwells with the corporeal <sup>20</sup> and the incorporeal ones. <sup>1</sup>

THE INTERPRETATION OF KNOWLEDGE (XI,1)

Introduced by

ELAINE H. PAGELS

Translated by

JOHN D. TURNER

The Interpretation of Knowledge offers a unique opportunity to see how a gnostic teacher uses New Testament writings and applies them to the church. Features of style and structure suggest that the text presents a homily intended for delivery in a service of worship. The structure of the discussion follows a common pattern of worship, in which readings from the gospel are followed by readings from the apostle (that is, from Paul). Correspondingly, an early section of The Interpretation of Knowledge (9,21-14,15) uses passages known from Matthew to interpret the Savior's teaching and his passion; the following section (14,15-21,34) uses texts from 1 Corinthians and probably Romans, Colossians, Ephesians, and Philippians to interpret the church as the "body of Christ."

The author is concerned to address a community that is torn by jealousy and hatred over the issue of spiritual gifts. Some members refuse to share their spiritual gifts with one another; others envy those who have received such gifts as prophecy and public speaking and so stand out in the congregation. Some despise others whom they consider ignorant (that is, lacking gnosis); the rest feel slighted and resentful.

The author's concern throughout The Interpretation of Knowledge is to rectify this divisive situation. Having recalled how the Savior taught the oneness of the Father (9,28-29), and, further, how the "great Son" voluntarily accepted humiliation for the sake of his "small brothers" (14,28-29), he now applies the lessons of unity and of humility to the church. First he recalls how the church received redemption; the Savior abolished the "old bond of debt" which enslaved those "condemned in Adam" (14,34-36; cf. Cl 2:14) and proclaimed in its place the "edict of the Father" (14,29-31), offering forgiveness of sins and release from death (14,36-38). From 13,20 through 21,35 the author takes up Paul's metaphor of the body and its members (cf. Ro 12:4-8; 1 Co 12:12-31) and combines it with the images of Christ as the Head of the body, the church (cf. Cl 1:18; 2:19; Ep 4:15-16) in order to remind the members that they all share in the "same body" and the "same Head." Despite the diversity of gifts (cf. 1 Co 12:4), each member shares in the same grace (16,18-24; cf. Ro 12:6); the same power which inspires the speaker enables the listener to understand what he says (16,31-38). Those who receive lesser gifts are not to complain, but to rejoice that they also share in the body (18,28-38; 1 Co 12:14-26). Those who receive greater gifts, such as knowledge (gnosis; cf. 1 Co 12:8) are not to despise others as inferior or ignorant (17,25-26). On the contrary, "you are ignorant when you hate them" (17,27), for those who show hatred and jealousy toward others demonstrate by their attitude that they still resemble the jealous and ignorant demiurge. These attitudes betray their ignorance of God (15,30-33), the true Father, and of his Son.

Amplifying Paul's image of the church as a spiritual organism, the author takes up the metaphor of the plant with roots, branches, and fruits, "the roots have a connection with one another, and their fruits are undivided" (19,31-33). As the roots exist for the sake of the fruits and for another, "let us become like the roots, since we are equal" (19,36-37). The text concludes with warnings of persecution (20,20-38) and the exhortation to overcome sin; those who do overcome it shall receive a "crown of victory, even as our Head was glorified by the Father" (21,30-34).

The author, who identifies himself as a member of the church, shares scriptural texts and terms familiar to us from early Christian orthodoxy, while using Valentinian theology to interpret these to his audience. This teacher envisions the church he addresses as including both psychic and pneumatic Christians; he may have addressed this homily to both, or specifically to the small circle of the elect. This text offers a significant primary source for understanding how some Gnostic Christians – and specifically certain Valentinian Christians – understand the church in the light of Jesus' teaching and of Paul's letters.

THE INTERPRETATION OF KNOWLEDGE

He became an [emanation of] <sup>1</sup> the trace. For also they say [about] <sup>30</sup> a likeness that it is apprehended [by means of <sup>1</sup> his trace]. The structure [apprehends by means of <sup>1</sup> the] likeness, but God [apprehends <sup>1</sup> by means of] his members. [He knew <sup>1</sup> them] before they were begotten, [and they <sup>35</sup> will know] him. And the one who [begot <sup>1</sup> each] one from [the first will <sup>1</sup> indwell] them. He will [rule over them]. <sup>1</sup> For it is [necessary] for [each one 3 . . . <sup>26</sup> The] Savior [removed himself] since it is [fitting]. <sup>1</sup> Indeed, [not ignorant] but [carnal <sup>1</sup> is the] word who [took him] as a husband. <sup>1</sup> And it is [he] who exists [as an image], since <sup>30</sup> [that one (masc.)] also [exists], as well as that one (fem.) <sup>1</sup> [who brought] us forth. [And she caused] him to know <sup>1</sup> [that] she is [the] Womb. This [is a] marvel of hers <sup>1</sup> [that she] causes us to transcend [patience. <sup>1</sup> But this is] the marvel: he [loves <sup>35</sup> the one who] was first to [permit] a virgin <sup>1</sup> [. . .]. It is fitting to [. . .] her <sup>1</sup> [. . .] unto death <sup>1</sup> [. . . desire] to practice 4 [. . .]. <sup>24</sup> Therefore <sup>1</sup> [she yielded] to him in [her path]. <sup>1</sup> He was [first to fix] our eye [upon this] <sup>1</sup> virgin [who is fixed] to the [cross] <sup>1</sup> that is in those [places. And] we see [that <sup>1</sup> it is] her water [which] the supreme authority [granted] <sup>30</sup> to the one [in whom] there is [a sign. This <sup>1</sup> is that] water of [immortality which] <sup>1</sup> the great [powers] will grant to [him while he is] <sup>1</sup> below [in the likeness] of [her young son. <sup>1</sup> She did not stop] on his account. She [. . .] <sup>35</sup> the [. . .] he became [. . .] <sup>1</sup> in the [. . .] word that [appears] <sup>1</sup> to the . . . word that [appears] <sup>1</sup> to the [. . .]. <sup>1</sup> He [did not . . . 5 . . .] <sup>14</sup> in [. . .] <sup>1</sup> through [. . .] <sup>1</sup> come from those places. [Some fell] <sup>1</sup> in the path. Others [fell in the rocks]. <sup>1</sup> Yet still others he [sowed in the thorns]. <sup>1</sup> And still others [he gave to drink <sup>1</sup> . . .] <sup>21</sup> and the shadow. Behold [. . .] <sup>1</sup> he [. . .] <sup>25</sup> And] this [is the eternal reality] <sup>1</sup> before the souls come forth from <sup>1</sup> [those who] are being killed.

fect restrains [them] <sup>1</sup> until the [final] reality that is <sup>1</sup> [their] portion, since he [brought] us down, <sup>1</sup> having bound us in nets of flesh. <sup>30</sup> Since the body is [a] <sup>1</sup> temporary dwelling which <sup>1</sup> the rulers and [authorities] have as [an] abode, <sup>1</sup> the man within, [after being] <sup>1</sup> imprisoned in the fabrication, [fell] <sup>35</sup> into [suffering. And] having compelled [him] <sup>1</sup> to [serve them,] they constrained him to <sup>1</sup> serve [the] energies. They split <sup>1</sup> the Church so as to inherit 7 [...] <sup>10</sup> power to [...] <sup>1</sup> and [...] <sup>1</sup> and [...] <sup>1</sup> having [touched [...] <sup>1</sup> before [...] <sup>17</sup> it is [the] beauty that will [...] <sup>1</sup> wanted to [...] and] <sup>1</sup> to be with [...] <sup>20</sup> fighting with [one another [...] <sup>1</sup> like others [...] <sup>1</sup> virgin [...] <sup>1</sup> to destroy [...] <sup>1</sup> wound [...] <sup>26</sup> but she [...] she likens] <sup>1</sup> herself to the [...] <sup>1</sup> her since they had struck [...] <sup>1</sup> imperishable. He hastened [...] <sup>1</sup> he did not put up with [...] <sup>1</sup> they despise [...]. <sup>1</sup> For when the Mother had [8 ... <sup>6</sup> the] Mother [...] <sup>8</sup> her enemy <sup>1</sup> [...] the teaching [...] of] <sup>11</sup> the force [...] <sup>15</sup> nature [...] <sup>1</sup> behold a maiden <sup>1</sup> [...] he is unable <sup>1</sup> [...] first <sup>1</sup> [...] the] opposite [...]. <sup>20</sup> But how has he <sup>1</sup> [...] maiden <sup>1</sup> [...] he was not able <sup>1</sup> [...] he [became <sup>1</sup> [...] killed [him <sup>25</sup> [...] alive <sup>1</sup> [...] he reckoned her [...] <sup>1</sup> better than life <sup>1</sup> [...] since he knows that if <sup>1</sup> [...] world created [him <sup>30</sup> [...] him to raise <sup>1</sup> [him [...] up from <sup>1</sup> [...] upon the regions [...] <sup>1</sup> those] whom they rule [...]. But [...] emitted him <sup>35</sup> [...] he dwells in him <sup>1</sup> [...] the Father of the All <sup>1</sup> [...] be more to her [...] <sup>1</sup> him. He [9 ...] <sup>9</sup> like [...] <sup>1</sup> into [...] he [has] <sup>1</sup> them [...] <sup>1</sup> them [...] each [one will be] <sup>1</sup> worthy [...] take him and [...] <sup>15</sup> the] teacher should hide himself [as if <sup>1</sup> he were] a god [who] would embrace [his works] <sup>1</sup> and destroy them. For [he] also <sup>1</sup> spoke with the Church [and] he [made himself] <sup>1</sup> her teacher of immortality, and [destroyed] <sup>20</sup> the arrogant [teacher] by [teaching] <sup>1</sup> her to [die].

But who [is it] that redeemed<sup>30</sup> the one who was reproached? It is [the] emanation<sup>1</sup> of the name. For just as the flesh has need<sup>1</sup> of a name, so also is [the] flesh an Aeon<sup>1</sup> that Wisdom has emitted. It<sup>1</sup> received the majesty that is descending,<sup>35</sup> so that the Aeon might enter<sup>1</sup> the one who was reproached, that we might escape<sup>1</sup> the disgrace of the carcass and be regenerated<sup>1</sup> in the flesh [and] blood of 13 [...] <sup>9</sup> destiny. He [...] <sup>1</sup> and the Aeons [...] <sup>1</sup> they] accepted the Son [although he was] <sup>1</sup> a complete mystery [...] <sup>1</sup> each one] of his [members ...] <sup>1</sup> grace. [When <sup>15</sup> he cried out, he] was separated<sup>1</sup> from the Church like [portions of] <sup>1</sup> the darkness from the Mother, while his [feet] <sup>1</sup> provided him traces, and [these] <sup>1</sup> scorched the path of [the] ascent<sup>20</sup> to the Father.

But [what is the way and manner (in) which] <sup>1</sup> it (fem.) became [their Head]? Well, it (fem.) made the [dwelling place to bring forth] <sup>1</sup> the light [to those] who dwell within<sup>1</sup> him so that [they might] see the [ascending] Church.<sup>25</sup> For the Head drew<sup>1</sup> itself up from the pit; it<sup>1</sup> was bent over the cross and [it] <sup>1</sup> looked down to Tartaros so that <sup>1</sup> those below might look above.<sup>30</sup> Hence, for example, when someone<sup>1</sup> looks at [someone], then the face of the one<sup>1</sup> who looked down looks up; <sup>1</sup> so also once the Head looked<sup>1</sup> from the [height] to its members, our<sup>35</sup> members [went] above, where the Head<sup>1</sup> was. And it, the cross, <sup>1</sup> was [undergoing] nailing for the members, <sup>1</sup> and solely that they might be able 14 [...] <sup>8</sup> have [...] <sup>1</sup> because they were [like ...] <sup>10</sup> slave. The consummation [is <sup>1</sup> thus: He whom] she indicated<sup>1</sup> [will be completed] by the [one who] indicated. <sup>1</sup> And the seeds [that remain will endure] <sup>1</sup> until the All is separated [and takes] <sup>15</sup> shape.

the] <sup>1</sup> Christ removed himself [from] <sup>1</sup> all these, since he loves [his members] <sup>1</sup> with all his heart. [One who is jealous sets] <sup>20</sup> his members against [one another. If] <sup>1</sup> he is [not] jealous, [he will not] be removed from (the) [other members and the] <sup>1</sup> good which [he] sees. [By having a] <sup>1</sup> brother [who] regards us [as he] <sup>25</sup> also is, one glorifies the [one who gives us] <sup>1</sup> grace. Moreover, it is fitting for [each] <sup>1</sup> of us to [enjoy] the gift <sup>1</sup> that he has received from [God, and] <sup>1</sup> that we not be jealous, since we know that <sup>30</sup> he who is jealous is an obstacle in his (own) [path], <sup>1</sup> since he destroys only himself <sup>1</sup> with the gift and he is ignorant <sup>1</sup> of God. He ought to rejoice [and] <sup>1</sup> be glad and partake of grace and <sup>35</sup> bounty. Does someone have a <sup>1</sup> prophetic gift? Share it without <sup>1</sup> hesitation. Neither approach <sup>1</sup> your brother jealously nor 16 [...] <sup>9</sup> chosen as they [...] <sup>1</sup> empty as they [escape . . .] <sup>1</sup> fallen from their [...] <sup>1</sup> are ignorant that <sup>1</sup> [. . . in this way they] have <sup>1</sup> [...] them in <sup>15</sup> [...] in order that they may <sup>1</sup> [reflect] perforce upon the things that you want <sup>1</sup> [them to think] about when [they <sup>1</sup> think about] you. [Now] your brother <sup>1</sup> [also has his] grace: <sup>20</sup> [Do not] belittle yourself, but <sup>1</sup> [rejoice and give] thanks spiritually <sup>1</sup> [and] pray for that <sup>1</sup> [one in order that] you might share the grace <sup>1</sup> [that dwells] within him. So do not consider [him <sup>25</sup> foreign] to you, rather, (as) one <sup>1</sup> who is yours, whom each <sup>1</sup> [of] your <fellow> members received. <sup>1</sup> By [loving] the Head who possesses them, <sup>1</sup> you also possess the one from whom it is that <sup>30</sup> these outpourings of gifts exist <sup>1</sup> among your brethren.

 what is the profit for them? <sup>1</sup> They are senselessly mad! They rend <sup>1</sup> their surroundings! They dig the earth! 21 [...] <sup>3</sup> him [...] <sup>1</sup> hid [...] <sup>5</sup>
 more now is the [jealousy of the Church] <sup>1</sup> of the Savior. For [each one]
 adept] <sup>1</sup> and (that of) an ordinary person. It is [still] a <sup>1</sup> single [ability] that they possess. And <sup>1</sup> as for us, we are adepts [at] <sup>1</sup> the Word. If we sin against [it], <sup>30</sup> we sin more than Gentiles. <sup>1</sup> But if we surmount every sin, <sup>1</sup> we shall receive the crown of <sup>1</sup> victory, even as our Head was <sup>1</sup> glorified by the Father. <sup>35</sup>

The Interpretation of Knowledge

A VALENTINIAN EXPOSITION (XI,2), with
ON THE ANOINTING, ON BAPTISM A AND B, and
ON THE EUCHARIST A AND B

Introduced by
ELAINE H. PAGELS

Translated by
JOHN D. TURNER

A Valentinian Exposition expounds the origin of the creation and the process of redemption in terms of Valentinian theology, specifically in terms of the myth of Sophia. The tractate thus offers the only original Valentinian account of that myth: The Tripartite Tractate (I,5) recounts another version that features the Logos instead of Sophia.

The author begins by promising to reveal “my mystery,” and follows the account with baptismal and eucharistic prayers and benedictions. This suggests that A Valentinian Exposition offers a kind of secret catechism for candidates being initiated into gnosis. Following the revelation of the mystery, the candidate is invited to participate in anointing, baptism, and the eucharist, as Gnostic Christians understand these sacraments.

Besides relating the Sophia myth and referring to sacramental rituals, A Valentinian Exposition has a third remarkable feature: it gives firsthand evidence of theological controversies among different groups of Valentinian theologians. The heresiologists attest that gnostic teachers disagree among themselves on the interpretation of fundamental doctrines; thus A Valentinian Exposition demonstrates the truth of Tertullian’s statement that Valentinian Christians “disagree on many specific issues, even with their own founders” (Praescr. 42). Irenaeus, Hippolytus, and others mention several such issues involving the story of Sophia: the interpretation of the primordial source (in what sense is it monadic or dyadic), of Limit (what are his functions) and the passion of Sophia (what motivated it). While the church fathers sketch out various positions taken on these issues, the author of A Valentinian Exposition engages each issue, challenging certain views and advocating others.

Valentinian theologians disagreed, first of all, on the question of whether the primordial root of all is a monad or a dyad. According to Irenaeus, Valentinus himself and the followers of his student Ptolemy said that the primal source is a dyad consisting of the Father of the All and his feminine counterpart, Silence, the Mother of all things (Haer. 1.11.1). But this author insists, on the contrary, that the Father is one, singular, a monad; and that the Silence, far from being the Father's dyadic syzygy, was merely the state of tranquility in which the Father reposed in his original solitude.

Second, this author discusses the function of Limit: he himself maintains that Limit possesses four powers, while other Valentinians attribute to Limit only two of those four powers. As this author interprets the story, Limit first separated Sophia's passion from the pleroma, and so protected and confirmed the aeons against the violation her transgression incurred. Yet Limit also restrained Sophia from being absorbed into the Father, and, finally, he separated her passions from her and confirmed her as well.

A third issue of controversy among Valentinian theologians concerned the interpretation of Sophia's suffering. According to Irenaeus' account, some Valentinians said that Sophia, in transgressing her role in the pleroma, only expressed the involuntary longing of all the aeons for closer communion with the Father (Haer. 1.2.2); others said that she willfully and audaciously attempted to rise above the condition of interdependence she shared in common with all the other aeons, and dared to imitate the Father himself (Haer. 1.2.3). The author of A Valentinian Exposition apparently takes a position closer to the latter view, which indicates that Sophia willfully violated the pleromic harmony, and later repented of this as she turned back to the Father.

This text goes on to describe how Sophia, after suffering in isolation, repented and received Christ, who descended to become her divine counterpart. Their divine reunion demonstrates the Father's will that "nothing . . . happen in the pleroma apart from a syzygy" (i.e., that all beings except himself be interdependent); and shows how all things "will come to be in unity and reconciliation."

Finally, this text offers what appear to be liturgical fragments of a Valentinian celebration of baptism and the eucharist: in this respect, as in others mentioned above, the text offers a unique and valuable opportunity to investigate various forms of Valentinian thought and ritual practice.

A VALENTINIAN EXPOSITION

When he willed, <sup>1</sup> the First Father revealed himself <sup>1</sup> in him. Since, after all, because <sup>1</sup> [of him] the revelation is available to the <sup>30</sup> All, I for my part call the All <sup>1</sup> “the desire of the All.” And he took <sup>1</sup> such a thought concerning the All — <sup>1</sup> I for my part call the thought “Monogenes.” <sup>1</sup> For now God has brought <sup>35</sup> Truth, the one who glorifies the Root of the <sup>1</sup> All. Thus it is he who <sup>1</sup> revealed himself in Monogenes, <sup>1</sup> and in him <sup>1</sup> he revealed the Ineffable One 25 [. . .] <sup>18</sup> the Truth. [They] <sup>1</sup> saw him [dwelling] in the Monad [and] <sup>20</sup> in the Dyad [and] in the Tetrads. [He] <sup>1</sup> first brought forth [Monogenes <sup>1</sup> and Limit]. And Limit [is the <sup>1</sup> separator] of the All [and the confirmation <sup>1</sup> of the All], since they are [. . .] <sup>25</sup> the hundred [. . .]. <sup>1</sup> He is the [Mind . . .] <sup>30</sup> the Son. [He is] completely [ineffable] <sup>1</sup> to the All, and he is the confirmation <sup>1</sup> and [the] hypostasis of the All, the [silent veil], <sup>1</sup> the [true] High Priest, <sup>1</sup> [the one who has] <sup>35</sup> the authority to enter <sup>1</sup> the Holies of Holies, revealing <sup>1</sup> the glory of <sup>1</sup> the Aeons and bringing forth the <sup>1</sup> abundance to <fragrance>. The East 26 [. . .] <sup>18</sup> that is] in [him]. He is the one who <sup>1</sup> revealed himself as] the <sup>20</sup> primal [sanctuary] and [the] treasury of <sup>1</sup> [the All]. And [he] encompassed the All, <sup>1</sup> [he] who is higher [than the] All. These for their part <sup>1</sup> [sent] Christ [forth to <sup>1</sup> establish her] just as [they] were established [before <sup>25</sup> her] descent. [And they say <sup>1</sup> concerning] him: [. . .] <sup>29</sup> He is not manifest, but <sup>1</sup> invisible] to [those remaining within Limit]. <sup>1</sup>

to [... <sup>22</sup> Limit] and <sup>1</sup> [...] Limit [... <sup>27</sup> the] greatness <sup>1</sup> which [...] the <sup>1</sup> [goodness ...] him. Life <sup>30</sup> [...] suffer <sup>1</sup> [...] by <sup>1</sup> the face [...] in the presence of <sup>1</sup> the [Pleroma ...] which he wanted <sup>1</sup> [... And] he wanted <sup>35</sup> to [leave] the Thirtieth – <sup>1</sup> being [a syzygy] of Man and <sup>1</sup> Church, that is, Sophia – to surpass [the Triacontad and] bring the Pleroma 32 [...] <sup>16</sup> his [...] <sup>1</sup> but [...] and] <sup>1</sup> she [...] <sup>22</sup> the [All ...] <sup>28</sup> but [...] <sup>1</sup> who [...] the All [...]. <sup>32</sup> He made [...] the thoughts <sup>1</sup> and [...] the] Pleroma <sup>1</sup> through the Word [...] his <sup>35</sup> flesh. These, then, [are the Aeons that] are like <sup>1</sup> them. After the [Word] entered <sup>1</sup> it, just as [I] said before, <sup>1</sup> also [the one who comes to be] with <sup>1</sup> the Uncontainable One [brought] forth 33 [...] <sup>11</sup> before they <sup>1</sup> [...] forth [...] <sup>1</sup> hide him from <sup>1</sup> [...] the syzygy and <sup>15</sup> [...] the movement and <sup>1</sup> [...] project the <sup>1</sup> Christ [...] and the seeds <sup>1</sup> [...] of the cross <sup>1</sup> since [...] the imprints] of the nail <sup>20</sup> wound [...] perfection. <sup>1</sup> [Since it is] a perfect form <sup>1</sup> [that should] ascend into <sup>1</sup> [the Pleroma], he did not [at all] want <sup>1</sup> [to] consent to the suffering, <sup>25</sup> [but he was] detained <sup>1</sup> [...] him by Limit, <sup>1</sup> that is, by the syzygy, <sup>1</sup> since her correction will <sup>1</sup> not occur through anyone except <sup>30</sup> her own Son, <sup>1</sup> whose alone is the fullness <sup>1</sup> of divinity. He willed <sup>1</sup> within himself bodily <sup>1</sup> to leave the powers and he descended. <sup>35</sup> And these things (passions) Sophia suffered <sup>1</sup> after her son ascended from <sup>1</sup> her, [for] she knew <sup>1</sup> that she dwelt in a 34 [... <sup>10</sup> in unity] <sup>1</sup> and [restoration. They were] <sup>1</sup> stopped [...] <sup>1</sup> the brethren [...] <sup>1</sup> these. A [...] did not [...] <sup>15</sup> I became [...]. <sup>1</sup> Who indeed [are] they? [The ...], on the one hand, <sup>1</sup> stopped her [...], on the other hand, [...] <sup>1</sup> with the [...] <sup>1</sup> her. These [moreover are those who were] looking at me, <sup>20</sup> these who [...] these] <sup>1</sup> who considered [...] the <sup>1</sup> [death]. They were stopped [...] her <sup>1</sup> and she repented [and she] <sup>1</sup> besought the Father of the [truth], saying, <sup>25</sup> “Granted that I have [renounced] <sup>1</sup> my consort. Therefore [I am] <sup>1</sup> beyond confirmation as well. I deserve <sup>1</sup> the things (passions) I suffer. <sup>1</sup> I used to dwell in the Pleroma <sup>30</sup> putting forth the Aeons and <sup>1</sup> bearing fruit with my consort.” <sup>1</sup> And she knew what she was <sup>1</sup> and what had become of <sup>1</sup> her.

After Jesus brought [forth further] <sup>1</sup> he brought [forth] for <sup>1</sup> the All those of the Pleroma <sup>1</sup> and of the syzygy, that [is, the] <sup>1</sup> angels. For simultaneously with the <sup>25</sup> [agreement] of the Pleroma <sup>1</sup> her consort projected <sup>1</sup> the angels, since he abides in <sup>1</sup> the will of the Father. For this <sup>1</sup> is the will of the Father: <sup>30</sup> not to allow anything to happen in the <sup>1</sup> Pleroma apart from a syzygy. <sup>1</sup> Again, the will of the Father is: <sup>1</sup> always produce <sup>1</sup> and bear fruit. That she should suffer, <sup>35</sup> then, was not the will <sup>1</sup> of the Father, for she dwells <sup>1</sup> in herself alone without <sup>1</sup> her consort. Let us 37 [...] <sup>9</sup> another one [...] <sup>1</sup> the Second [...] <sup>1</sup> the son of another [...] <sup>1</sup> is the Tetrad of the world. [And] <sup>1</sup> that Tetrad put forth [fruit] <sup>1</sup> as if the Pleroma [of the world were] <sup>15</sup> a Hebdomad. <sup>1</sup> And [it] entered [images] <sup>1</sup> and [likenesses and angels] <sup>1</sup> and [archangels, divinities] <sup>1</sup> and [ministers]. <sup>20</sup>

God. And [Adam <sup>1</sup> sowed] him. Therefore [he acquired] <sup>1</sup> sons who [angered <sup>1</sup> one another. And] Cain [killed] <sup>25</sup> Abel his brother, for [the Demiurge] <sup>1</sup> breathed into [them] <sup>1</sup> his spirit. And there [took place] <sup>1</sup> the struggle with the apostasy <sup>1</sup> of the angels and mankind, <sup>30</sup> those of the right with those of the left, <sup>1</sup> those in heaven with those on earth <sup>1</sup> the spirits with the carnal, <sup>1</sup> and the Devil against God. <sup>1</sup> Therefore the angels lusted <sup>35</sup> after the daughters of men <sup>1</sup> and came down to flesh so that <sup>1</sup> God would cause a flood. <sup>1</sup> And he almost <sup>1</sup> regretted that he had created the world 39 [. . . <sup>10</sup> the consort] <sup>1</sup> and [Sophia and her Son] <sup>1</sup> and the angels [and the seeds]. <sup>1</sup> But the syzygy is the [complete one] <sup>1</sup> and Sophia and Jesus and [the angels] <sup>15</sup> and the seeds are [images <sup>1</sup> of] the Pleroma. Moreover the Demiurge <sup>1</sup> [cast a shadow over] <sup>1</sup> the syzygy and [the] Pleroma, <sup>1</sup> and Jesus and [Sophia] and the [angels] <sup>20</sup> and the seeds. [The complete one <sup>1</sup> glorifies] Sophia; the image <sup>1</sup> [glorifies] Truth. [And] the glory [of <sup>1</sup> the seeds] and Jesus [are] those of [Silence <sup>1</sup> and] Monogenes. [And] <sup>25</sup> the [angels] of the males and [the <sup>1</sup> seminal ones] of the females <sup>1</sup> [are] all Pleromas. <sup>1</sup> Moreover whenever Sophia [receives] <sup>1</sup> her consort and Jesus <sup>30</sup> receives the Christ and the seeds <sup>1</sup> and the angels, then [the] <sup>1</sup> Pleroma will receive Sophia <sup>1</sup> joyfully, and the All will <sup>1</sup> come to be in unity and <sup>35</sup> reconciliation. For by this <sup>1</sup> the Aeons have been increased; <sup>1</sup> for they knew that <sup>1</sup> should they change, they are <sup>1</sup> without change.

ON THE ANOINTING

[. . .] <sup>9</sup> according to [. . .] <sup>10</sup> the type of [. . .] <sup>1</sup> see him. It is fitting for <sup>1</sup> [you at this time] to send thy Son <sup>1</sup> [Jesus] Christ and anoint <sup>1</sup> us so that we might be able <sup>15</sup> to trample [upon] the <sup>1</sup> [snakes] and [the heads] of the scorpions <sup>1</sup> and [all] the power of the Devil <sup>1</sup> since he is the shepherd of [the <sup>1</sup> seed]. Through him we [have <sup>20</sup> known] thee. And we [glorify] thee: <sup>1</sup> [Glory] be to thee, the Father in the [Son, the <sup>1</sup> Father] in the Son, the Father [in the] <sup>1</sup> holy [Church and in the] <sup>1</sup> holy [angels]! From <sup>25</sup> now on he abides [forever <sup>1</sup> in] the perpetuity of the Aeons, <sup>1</sup> forever until the [untraceable] Aeons <sup>1</sup> of the Aeons. <sup>1</sup> Amen.

ON BAPTISM A

[This] is the fullness of the summary <sup>1</sup> of knowledge which (summary) <sup>1</sup> was revealed to us by <sup>1</sup> our Lord Jesus Christ, <sup>1</sup> the Monogenes. These are the <sup>35</sup> sure and necessary (items) <sup>1</sup> so that we may walk <sup>1</sup> in them. But they are <sup>1</sup> those of the first baptism 41 [ . . . <sup>10</sup> The first] <sup>1</sup> baptism [is the forgiveness] <sup>1</sup> of sins [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> <who> said, [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> you to the [ . . . ] <sup>15</sup> your sins the [ . . . is] <sup>1</sup> a pattern of the [ . . . ] <sup>1</sup> of the Christ [which <sup>1</sup> is the] equal of the [ . . . within] <sup>1</sup> him. So we have [been sent] <sup>1</sup> out [of the world] <sup>1</sup> into the Aeon. For [the] <sup>1</sup> interpretation of John <sup>1</sup> is the Aeon, while the interpretation <sup>1</sup> of that which [is] the Jord[an] <sup>35</sup> is the descent which is [the upward progression], <sup>1</sup> that [is, our exodus] <sup>1</sup> from the world [into] <sup>1</sup> the Aeon.

ALLOGENES (XI,3)

Introduced by

ANTOINETTE CLARK WIRE

Translated by

JOHN D. TURNER and ORVAL S. WINTERMUTE

The tractate Allogenes is a revelation discourse in which a certain Allogenes receives divine auditions and visions and records them for his "son" Messos. The fictive nature of this repeated address of Allogenes to Messos is indicated by the name Allogenes, which means "stranger," "one of another race," and often in this period designates Seth or a representative of the Sethian spiritual race. The reader is thus encouraged to identify with Messos and learn from Allogenes how to overcome the fear and ignorance Allogenes initially feels, how to meditate on each step of revealed knowledge, and ultimately how to ascend into full realization of one's spiritual self within the divine.

Although Allogenes presents itself as a single revelation discourse, it can be divided into two parts. Part One (45,1-57,23) highlights five revelations of the female diety Youel to Allogenes. Her revelations are complex mythological descriptions of the divine powers, particularly the aeon of Barbelo. Part Two (57,24-69,19) describes in more philosophical language the ascent of Allogenes as a progressive revelation by the heavenly luminaries. Its final stage, the "primary revelation of the Unknown One," reveals the transcendent God as invisible, unfathomable, incomprehensible, "the spiritual, invisible Triple Power" which is "the best of the best" and exists, paradoxically, as "the nonbeing Existence."

The differences between these two parts of Allogenes can be explained in terms of different sources being used or in terms of the one writer's purpose. Source theories try to determine where certain traditions come from and how they have already developed. The Barbelo mythology of Part One is found also in The Apocryphon of John (BG 8502,2; NHC II,1; III,1; IV,1) where it is associated with an account of how Sophia brought deficiency into the universe. Allogenes' Barbelo Gnosticism, like that of Zostrianos (VIII,1) and The Three Steles of Seth (VII,5), is not interested in how evil began but in positive revelation of divine reality. Part Two of Allogenes also parallels The Apocryphon of John to the extent of a full-page description of the transcendent God in terms of what God is not. But again it departs from this tradition in the same direction as do Zostrianos and The Three Steles of Seth by presenting this knowledge as an ascent ritual in a way parallel to Hermetic Gnosticism (Corp. Herm. I,24-26 and NHC VI,6). Apparently the author has taken both Barbelo Gnosticism and philosophical monism from the same general tradition as The Apocryphon of John and put them in sequence with certain linking passages for a single purpose.

Assuming that the reader has already been released from evil, the writer in the persona of Allogenes leads on up the heavenly path, praising the divine, into the blessing of knowledge, the vitality of life and finally the existence that is nonexistence. The ascent rituals of Hermetism refer occasionally to community life, and The Three Steles of Seth uses the first person plural to praise God at each ascent level. But here the instructions are spoken to a single person who is reading and could be meant as self-help in an individual's search for God.

This tractate has attracted wide interest because the Neoplatonist Porphyry said that Plotinus attacked certain Gnostics who "produced revelations by Zoroaster and Zostrianos and Nicotheos and Allogenes and Messos and other such people" (Vit. Plot. 16). If this quote does indeed refer to this book named Allogenes, and to documents close to it (Zostrianos VIII,1 bears a coded subtitle, "Words of Zoroaster") as many are proposing, it suggests a somewhat different relation of the Gnostics to later Platonism than is commonly assumed. Not only did Gnostics clearly borrow many philosophical themes from Platonism, but Platonists and Neoplatonists were being forced to deal with Gnostic schools as rivals to their own. And though Plotinus in his own tractate against the Gnostics does his best to ridicule their dualism, cult, and jargon, it is clearly the monistic Gnostics of the Allogenes sort who challenge him most. It is they who attribute to revelation the truths he is convinced that they have derived from Plato; it is they who believe that through self-knowledge they become superior to the heavenly bodies (Enn. II. 9.5-11). The question that remains is whether the Gnostics may not have had a reverse influence on Neoplatonism, specifically whether these gnostic texts could be the source of a certain existence-life-thought triad which is not attested in Neoplatonism before Proclus in the fifth century (Theol. 101-03).

An Alexandrian origin of the original Greek text of Allogenes not long after 300 C.E. would allow time for its Greek circulation and its Coptic translation before it was placed in the Nag Hammadi library early in the next century.

ALLOGENES

since it is <sup>1</sup> he who shall come to be when he <sup>1</sup> recognizes himself]. And he is [One] <sup>20</sup> who subsists as a [cause]<sup>1</sup> and source [of Being] and [an] <sup>1</sup> immaterial [material and an] <sup>1</sup> innumerable [number and a formless] <sup>1</sup> form and a [shapeless] <sup>25</sup> shape and [a powerlessness and <sup>1</sup> a power and an insubstantial <sup>1</sup> substance and a motionless motion and an inactive <sup>1</sup> activity. [Yet he is <sup>30</sup> a] provider of [provisions <sup>1</sup> and] a divinity [of] <sup>1</sup> divinity – but whenever <sup>1</sup> they apprehend, they participate <sup>1</sup> the first Vitality and <sup>35</sup> an undivided activity, <sup>1</sup> an hypostasis of the First One <sup>1</sup> from the One who truly exists. <sup>1</sup> And a second <sup>49</sup> activity [...] <sup>1</sup> however, is the [...]. <sup>5</sup> He is endowed with <sup>1</sup> blessedness] and <sup>1</sup> goodness, because [when he is] <sup>1</sup> recognized [as the] traverser <sup>1</sup> of the boundlessness of the <sup>10</sup> Invisible Spirit [that <sup>1</sup> subsists] in him, it (the boundlessness) turns him to [it (the Invisible Spirit) <sup>1</sup> in] order that it might know what is <sup>1</sup> within him and <sup>1</sup> how he exists. And <sup>15</sup> he was becoming salvation for <sup>1</sup> every one by being a <sup>1</sup> point of departure for those who truly exist, <sup>1</sup> for through him <sup>1</sup> his knowledge endured, <sup>20</sup> since he is the one who knows what <sup>1</sup> he is. But they brought forth nothing <sup>1</sup> beyond themselves, neither <sup>1</sup> power nor rank nor <sup>1</sup> glory nor aeon, <sup>25</sup> for they are all <sup>1</sup> eternal. He is Vitality and <sup>1</sup> Mentality and That-Which-Is. <sup>1</sup> For then That<sup>1</sup>-Which-Is constantly possesses its <sup>30</sup> Vitality and Mentality, <sup>1</sup> and {Life has} <sup>1</sup> Vitality possesses <sup>1</sup> {non}-Being and <sup>1</sup> Mentality. Mentality <sup>35</sup> possesses Life and That-Which-Is. <sup>1</sup> And the three are one, <sup>1</sup> although individually they are three.

it silently abides, <sup>1</sup> by which you know <sup>1</sup> your proper self and, <sup>1</sup> seeking yourself, withdraw to the Vitality <sup>15</sup> that you will <sup>1</sup> see moving. And although it is <sup>1</sup> impossible for you to stand, fear <sup>1</sup> nothing; but if you <sup>1</sup> wish to stand, withdraw <sup>20</sup> to the Existence, and you will <sup>1</sup> find it standing and <sup>1</sup> at rest after the likeness of the One <sup>1</sup> who is truly at rest <sup>1</sup> and embraces all these <sup>25</sup> silently and <sup>1</sup> inactively. And when you receive <sup>1</sup> a revelation of him by <sup>1</sup> means of a primary revelation <sup>1</sup> of the Unknown One – <sup>30</sup> the One whom if you should <sup>1</sup> know him, be ignorant <sup>1</sup> of him – and you become <sup>1</sup> afraid in that place, <sup>1</sup> withdraw to the rear because of the <sup>35</sup> activities. And when you become <sup>1</sup> perfect in that place, <sup>1</sup> still yourself. And <sup>1</sup> in accordance with the pattern that indwells <sup>1</sup> you, know likewise 60 [that] it is this way in [all such (matters)] <sup>1</sup> after this (very) pattern. And <sup>1</sup> [do not] further dissipate, [so that] <sup>1</sup> you may be able to stand, <sup>5</sup> and do not desire to [be active] <sup>1</sup> lest you fall [in any way] <sup>1</sup> from the inactivity in [you] <sup>1</sup> of the Unknown One. Do not <sup>1</sup> [know] him, for it is impossible; <sup>10</sup> but if by means of an <sup>1</sup> enlightened thought you should know <sup>1</sup> him, be ignorant of him.” <sup>1</sup>

And when <sup>1</sup> I wanted to stand firmly, <sup>30</sup> I withdrew to <sup>1</sup> the Existence, which I found <sup>1</sup> standing and at rest <sup>1</sup> like an image and <sup>1</sup> likeness of what is conferred upon <sup>35</sup> me by a revelation <sup>1</sup> of the Indivisible One and the One who <sup>1</sup> is at rest. I was filled <sup>1</sup> with revelation by means <sup>1</sup> of a primary revelation 61 of the Unknowable One. [As though] <sup>1</sup> I were ignorant of him, I [knew] <sup>1</sup> him and I received power [by] <sup>1</sup> him. Having been permanently strengthened <sup>5</sup> I knew the One who <sup>1</sup> exists in me and the Triple-Powered One <sup>1</sup> and the revelation of <sup>1</sup> his uncontainableness. [And] <sup>1</sup> by means of a primary <sup>10</sup> revelation of the First One (who is) unknowable <sup>1</sup> to them all, the God <sup>1</sup> who is beyond perfection, I <sup>1</sup> saw him and the Triple-Powered One that exists <sup>1</sup> in them all. I was seeking <sup>15</sup> the ineffable <sup>1</sup> and Unknowable God – <sup>1</sup> whom if one should <sup>1</sup> know him, he would be absolutely <sup>1</sup> ignorant of him – the Mediator of <sup>20</sup> the Triple-Powered One who subsists in <sup>1</sup> stillness and silence and is <sup>1</sup> unknowable.

“He is neither divinity<sup>1</sup> nor blessedness<sup>30</sup> nor perfection. Rather<sup>1</sup> it (this triad) is an unknowable entity of him,<sup>1</sup> not that which is proper to him; rather<sup>1</sup> he is another one<sup>1</sup> superior to the blessedness and<sup>35</sup> the divinity and<sup>1</sup> perfection. For he is not<sup>1</sup> perfect but he is another thing 63 that is superior. He is neither<sup>1</sup> boundless, nor<sup>1</sup> is he bounded by<sup>1</sup> another. Rather he is something [superior].<sup>5</sup> He is not corporeal.<sup>1</sup> He is not incorporeal.<sup>1</sup> He is not great. [He is not] small.<sup>1</sup> He is not a number. He is not a [creature].<sup>1</sup> Nor is he something<sup>10</sup> that exists, that<sup>1</sup> one can know. But<sup>1</sup> he is something else of himself that is superior, which<sup>1</sup> one cannot know.<sup>1</sup>

“And he is much higher in <sup>5</sup> beauty than all those <sup>1</sup> [that] are good, and he is thus <sup>1</sup> unknowable to all of them <sup>1</sup> in every respect. And <sup>1</sup> through them all he is <sup>10</sup> in them all, not <sup>1</sup> only as the unknowable knowledge <sup>1</sup> that is proper to him. And <sup>1</sup> he is united with the <sup>1</sup> ignorance that sees him. Whether (one sees) <sup>15</sup> in what way he is unknowable, <sup>1</sup> or sees <sup>1</sup> him as he is <sup>1</sup> in every respect, or <sup>1</sup> would say that <sup>20</sup> he is something like <sup>1</sup> knowledge, he has sinned against him, <sup>1</sup> being liable to judgment because he did not <sup>1</sup> know God. He will not <sup>1</sup> be judged by <sup>25</sup> That One who <sup>1</sup> is neither concerned for anything nor <sup>1</sup> has any desire, <sup>1</sup> but it (judgment) (is) from <sup>1</sup> himself because he did not find the origin <sup>30</sup> that truly exists. He was blind <sup>1</sup> apart from the eye <sup>1</sup> of revelation that is at rest, <sup>1</sup> the (one) that is activated, <sup>1</sup> the (one) from the Triple-<sup>35</sup> Power of the First Thought <sup>1</sup> of the Invisible Spirit. <sup>1</sup> This one thus exists from 65 [...] <sup>16</sup> something [...] set firmly on the ... a) <sup>1</sup> beauty and a [first emergence] <sup>1</sup> of stillness and silence <sup>20</sup> and tranquility and <sup>1</sup> unfathomable greatness. When he appeared, <sup>1</sup> he did not need <sup>1</sup> time nor (did he partake) of eternity. <sup>1</sup> Rather of <sup>25</sup> himself he is unfathomably <sup>1</sup> unfathomable. He does not activate <sup>1</sup> himself so as to become <sup>1</sup> still. He is not an <sup>1</sup> existence lest he <sup>30</sup> be in want. Spatially he is corporeal, <sup>1</sup> while properly he is incorporeal. <sup>1</sup> He has <sup>1</sup> non-being existence. <sup>1</sup> He exists for all of them unto himself <sup>35</sup> without any desire. <sup>1</sup> But he is a greater summit <sup>1</sup> of greatness. And he is <sup>1</sup> higher than his stillness in order that 66 [...] <sup>16</sup> he] saw [them] <sup>1</sup> and [empowered them all], although they do not <sup>1</sup> concern [themselves] with That One at <sup>1</sup> all, nor, if one should <sup>20</sup> receive from him, does he receive power. <sup>1</sup> Nothing activates him in accordance with <sup>1</sup> the Unity that is at rest. <sup>1</sup> For he is unknowable; <sup>1</sup> he is an airless place of <sup>25</sup> the boundlessness. Since <sup>1</sup> he is boundless and powerless <sup>1</sup> and nonexistent, he was not giving <sup>1</sup> Being. Rather he contains <sup>1</sup> all of these in himself, being at rest <sup>30</sup> (and) standing out of <sup>1</sup> the one who stands <sup>1</sup> continually, since there had appeared <sup>1</sup> an Eternal Life, the <sup>1</sup> Invisible and Triple-Powered Spirit <sup>35</sup> which is in all of these <sup>1</sup> who exist. And it surrounds <sup>1</sup> them all, being higher than <sup>1</sup> them all. A shadow 67 [...] <sup>17</sup> he [was filled with power. And <sup>1</sup> he] stood [before them], <sup>1</sup> empowering them all, and he filled <sup>20</sup> them all.”

which is he, <sup>1</sup> lest he be diminished. <sup>1</sup> It is not fitting to <sup>1</sup> spend more <sup>35</sup> time seeking. It was <sup>1</sup> appropriate that you (pl.) <alone> know <sup>1</sup> and that they speak <sup>1</sup> with another one. But you will receive them 68 [. . . <sup>6</sup> and he said to me], “Write down <sup>1</sup> [the things that I] shall [tell] you and <sup>1</sup> of which I shall remind you for the sake of <sup>1</sup> those who will be worthy <sup>20</sup> after you. And you will leave <sup>1</sup> this book upon a mountain <sup>1</sup> and you will adjure the guardian: <sup>1</sup> ‘Come Dreadful One.’” <sup>1</sup>

HYPHSIPHRONE (XI,4)

Introduced and translated by

JOHN D. TURNER

Hypsiphronē, which means “high-minded one” or perhaps “she of exalted thought,” is the fourth and last treatise of Codex XI of the Coptic library from Nag Hammadi. It presently consists of four large and two small fragments containing the lower portions of the inner and outer margins of two papyrus leaves, which must have originally contained the entirety of this short treatise. It is written in the same script as the much longer and better preserved treatise of that Codex, Allogenes, although there is no discernible further relationship beyond these two treatises. Hypsiphronē is written in an apparently standard Sahidic Coptic dialect, unlike the other treatises of Codex XI. It bears the superscript title “Hypsiph[rone],” the remainder of the title being restored from other occurrences within the treatise; since the conclusion of the treatise is not extant, it may or may not have borne a subscript title.

Apart from the poor condition of the treatise, even its cryptic title affords little insight into its content. The incipit “The book (or scroll) [concerning the things] that were seen [by] Hypsiphronē being [revealed] in the place of [her] virginity” adds little more. Although there is mentioned a plurality of persons speaking with one another, the treatise does not appear to be a dialogue. Instead, the whole is presented as a speech of Hypsiphronē who reports the receipt of certain revelations during her descent from the “place of her virginity” into the world. The only figure mentioned by Hypsiphronē is one Phainops, “he of the gleaming eye,” who apparently presides over a fount of blood into which he breathes, and which seems to produce a fiery effect.

One may conjecture that Hypsiphronē represents some form of the personified thought of a high deity who leaves her dwelling in the transcendental realm, where there are no distinctions of gender, to descend to the earthly realm at the time of the creation of humankind. There she encounters Phainops, probably in the act of creating humankind, who apparently produces “a [man in the likeness] of blood” from his fiery fount of blood.

In spite of the paucity of text, what remains seems to have some affinity with the group of gnostic texts generally designated as Sethian. To judge from the name Hypsiphronē, one may have to do here with the Sethian figure of Eleleth, called Phronesis in Hyp. Arch. (93,8-97,21), one of the traditional Sethian Four Illuminators, whose name might be derived from Aramaic ʿillith, “the tall one,” which could be rendered by Greek hypsiphronē.

The fount of blood may refer to the heavenly Adamas or heavenly archetype of Adam, described in Orig. World (108,2-31) as the “enlightened bloody one” (based on the Hebrew pun on ʾadam, “man,” and dam, “blood”). In this case, Hypsiphronē would be the Illuminator Eleleth, who in some Sethian texts is regarded as the abode of Sophia and certain “repentant souls” and in others (Trim. Prot., Gos. Eg.) is held responsible for the act usually ascribed to Sophia: that of producing the demiurge Yaldabaoth. Eleleth/Hypsiphron would also be responsible for the projection below of Adamas, the image of God after whom the earthly Adam is modeled. In any case, Hypsiphron is certainly a figure similar to that of the descending and restored Sophia. Phainops, "radiant-faced one," might then be a name for either the enlightened archetypal Adamas, or, since he seems to be distinguished from the "fount of blood," for the fiery angel Sabbaoth, the brother of the evil demiurge produced by the breath of Zoe, Pistis Sophia's daughter, in an effort to imprison the demiurge (Hyp. Arch. 95,5-96,4). Thus, although it bears no trace of the traditional Sethian names for these figures, Hypsiphron may in fact be very closely related to the other Sethian texts.

Now I<sup>1</sup> [was first by individual] ranking [. . .] 70<sup>14</sup> I came [forth<sup>15</sup> to the place] of my [virginity]<sup>1</sup> and I went down<sup>1</sup> to the [world. Then I] was told<sup>1</sup> [about] them (by) those who abide<sup>1</sup> in [the place] of my [virginity].<sup>20</sup>

FREDERIK WISSE

Before the discovery of the fragments of the Coptic version in Nag Hammadi Codex XII, The Sentences of Sextus were known through Latin, Syriac, Armenian, and Georgian translations, as well as through two manuscripts in the original Greek. Apart from some patristic quotations, the Coptic version is by far the oldest witness to this collection of wisdom sayings. It appears to be a faithful and consistent translation from the Greek, and it stands closer to the critical text provided by Henry Chadwick (The Sentences of Sextus; A Contribution to the History of Early Christian Ethics, Texts and Studies 5, Cambridge: The University Press, 1959) than the two Greek witnesses and the other versions. As such it is of considerable value for the study of the text and of the character of the document.

Of the approximately thirty-nine original pages of the tractate, ten survive. This assumes that the Coptic version did not contain more than the 451 sentences included in the Latin translation of Rufinus. The numeration of the sentences follows Chadwick's edition.

Though most of the sentences are of non-Christian origin, they enjoyed considerable popularity in Christian circles. Their presence among the Nag Hammadi tractates is not surprising. They share an ascetic outlook with many other writings in the collection. Indeed, the overwhelmingly ascetic tone of the entire Nag Hammadi library may indicate that the compilers and users of these books were part of the early monastic movement in Egypt. For a discussion of the moral teaching of Sextus, the reader is referred to Chadwick's edition.

THE SENTENCES OF SEXTUS

XII 15, 1-16, 28; 27, 1-34, 28

(157) is [a sign] of ignorance. <sup>1</sup>

(158/159) [Love] the truth, and the lie <sup>1</sup> [use] like poison. <sup>1</sup>

(160) [May] the right time precede your words. <sup>5</sup>

(165a) It is [better] for you to be defeated <sup>1</sup> [while speaking the truth], than to be victorious <sup>1</sup> [through deceit].

(165c) [Untrue words] are <sup>20</sup> [characteristic of] evil persons.

(165d) [There has to be] a great [crisis <sup>1</sup> before] the lie [is necessary]. <sup>1</sup>

(165g) [If you speak] after <sup>1</sup> [many (others) you will see better] what is profitable. <sup>1</sup>

(166) [Faithful] is he who is first with <sup>1</sup> all [good works]. 16

(167) Wisdom leads [the soul] <sup>1</sup> to the place of [God].

(173) When there is no [(accounting of) sin, do not speak] <sup>15</sup> in anything (which is) from [God].

(174) [The] sins <sup>1</sup> of those who are [ignorant are] <sup>1</sup> the shame of those who have [taught them]. <sup>1</sup>

(175) Those on account of whom [the name of God] is blasphemed <sup>1</sup> [are dead] <sup>20</sup> before God.

(178) What it is [not right to do], <sup>25</sup> do not even consider [doing it].

(180) [What] <sup>1</sup> it [is] shameful [to do, is also] (pp. 17-26 are missing) 27

(309) [After] God, no one is as free <sup>1</sup> as the wise man. <sup>1</sup>

(310) [Everything] God possesses <sup>1</sup> the wise man has also.

(313) An evil soul <sup>1</sup> flees from God. <sup>1</sup>

(314) Everything bad <sup>15</sup> is the enemy of God.

(316) Where <sup>1</sup> your thought is, <sup>1</sup> there is your <sup>20</sup> goodness.

(325/326a) Someone who says, "I <sup>1</sup> believe," even if he spends a long <sup>1</sup> time pretending, <sup>1</sup> he will not prevail, but he will <sup>20</sup> fall; as <sup>1</sup> your heart is, (so) will be <sup>1</sup> your life.

(328) [Let not] an ungrateful man <sup>1</sup> cause you to cease to do [good]. 29

(331) Persuade a senseless brother <sup>1</sup> [not to] be senseless; if he is mad, <sup>1</sup> protect him.

(333) You cannot receive understanding unless <sup>1</sup> you know first that you possess <it>. <sup>1</sup> In everything there is again this sentence.

(337) He whom God <sup>20</sup> will not bring out of (the) body, <sup>1</sup> let him not burden himself. <sup>1</sup>

(338) Not only do not hold an opinion <sup>1</sup> which does not benefit the needy, <sup>1</sup> [but also do not] listen to it.

(339) He who gives <sup>25</sup> [something without] respect commits an outrage. <sup>1</sup> [. . .].

(340) If you take on the <sup>1</sup> [guardianship of] orphans, you will be <sup>1</sup> [the] father of many children (and) you will be 30 beloved of God.

(341) He [whom you serve] <sup>1</sup> because of [honor, you have] <sup>1</sup> served for a wage.

(345) It is better to die [than] <sup>10</sup> to darken the soul because of [the] <sup>1</sup> immoderation of the belly.

(348/349) Unclean demons <sup>1</sup> do lay claim to a <sup>1</sup> polluted soul; a faithful (and) <sup>20</sup> good soul evil demons <sup>1</sup> will not be able to hinder in the <sup>1</sup> way of God.

(350) Do not give the word of <sup>1</sup> God to everyone.

(357) [The] true [word] about God <sup>1</sup> is [the] word of God.

(355) Speak <sup>1</sup> concerning the word about God <sup>10</sup> as if you were saying it in the presence of God. <sup>1</sup>

(359) May your pious works <sup>1</sup> precede every word about <sup>1</sup> God.

(361) Be (more) sparing with a word about <sup>20</sup> God (than) about a soul.

(364) If a tyrant 32 threatens you, [then, especially], <sup>1</sup> remember God.

(365) [He who speaks] <sup>1</sup> the word of God [to those for whom] <sup>1</sup> it is not lawful, he is [the betrayer] <sup>5</sup> of God.

(366) It is better [for] <sup>1</sup> you to be silent about the word of [God] <sup>1</sup> than to speak recklessly. <sup>1</sup>

(367/368) He who speaks lies about <sup>1</sup> God is lying to <sup>10</sup> God; a man who does not have <sup>1</sup> anything truthful to say about [God] <sup>1</sup> is abandoned by God.

(369) [It is not] <sup>1</sup> possible for you to know God when you <sup>1</sup> do not worship him.

(370) A man who <sup>15</sup> does evil to someone will not be able to worship <sup>1</sup> God.

(372) He who takes care of men while <sup>1</sup> praying for all of them – this is <sup>20</sup> the truth of God.

(376a) [A man who] is worthy of God, <sup>1</sup> [he] is God among <sup>1</sup> [men], and [he is] the son of God. <sup>5</sup>

(382) God does not need anything, <sup>1</sup> but he rejoices over those who give to the <sup>1</sup> needy.

(383) The faithful do not speak many <sup>25</sup> words, but their works are numerous. <sup>1</sup>

(384) It is a faithful person fond of learning <sup>1</sup> who is the worker of the truth. 34

(385) [Adjust . . . the] calamities <sup>1</sup> in order that [. . .].

(387) The tyrant will <sup>5</sup> not be able to take away happiness. <sup>1</sup>

(388) What it is right to do, do it <sup>1</sup> willingly.

(391) No man <sup>1</sup> who <looks> down upon the earth <sup>15</sup> and upon tables is wise. <sup>1</sup>

(393) Guard yourself from lying: there is <sup>1</sup> he who deceives and there is he who is <sup>1</sup> deceived.

(396) They are miserable <sup>1</sup> because of whom the [word] is blasphemed. <sup>1</sup>

(397) Death will [not] be able to destroy (pp. 35-end are missing).

FRAGMENTS (XII,3)

Introduced and translated by

FREDERIK WISSE

It is uncertain whether the two fragments presented here in translation come from the same tractate. With no title and only one substantial fragment surviving, the character of the tractate remains obscure. It seems to present ethical teaching within a religious context. The first person singular and plural are used, and the speaker refers to "my Father," which suggests that he may be Jesus. The speaker contrasts himself and his followers with others, referred to in the third person plural, who live in wickedness and do evil deeds. Nothing in the fragments suggests that the tractate was gnostic. There is no reason to doubt that the Coptic represents a translation from the Greek.

TRIMORPHIC PROTENNOIA (XIII, I)

Introduced and translated by

JOHN D. TURNER

Trimorphic Protennoia ("The Three-formed [Divine] First Thought") is, in its form, a Barbeloite treatise which has undergone both Sethian and Christian revisions. It is roughly contemporaneous with The Apocryphon of John (mid-second century C.E.), which it resembles in certain interesting ways, and is distinguished by a number of striking parallels to the Fourth Gospel and especially its prologue.

The underlying basis of Trimorphic Protennoia can be seen in the series consistent "I am" self-predicatory aretalogies, in which Protennoia recites her divine identity and role in the creation and salvation of the world. These are structured into an introductory aretalogy (35,1-32) identifying Protennoia as the divine First Thought followed by three similar aretalogies in the same style, the second and third of which form separately titled subtracates in the Trimorphic Protennoia: First, Protennoia is the Voice of the First Thought who descends first as light into darkness to give shape to her fallen members (35,32-36,27; 40,29-41,1). Second, Protennoia is the Speech of the Thought who descends to empower her fallen members by giving them spirit or breadth (42,4-27; 45,2-12; 45,21-46,3). Third, Protennoia is the Word or Logos of the Thought who descends in the likeness of the powers, assumes a human appearance, introduces the illuminatory baptismal rite of the Five Seals and restores her members into the light (46,5-6; 47,5-22; 49,15-22; 50,9-12,18-20).

One cannot fail to notice here a striking resemblance, not only to the language and structure of the Johannine prologue's narration of the descents of the Logos, but also to the similar first-person aretalogy on the three descents of Pronoia found at the end of the longer version of the Apocryphon of John (II, I:30,11-31,25), with which the Trimorphic Protennoia may even be genetically related.

The underlying tripartite aretalogy has been expanded by means of six narrative doctrinal insertions (36,27-40,29; 41,1-42,2; 42,27-45,2; 46,7-47,5; 47,22-49,15; 49,22-50,9). Three of these insertions, whose third-person expository prose breaks the otherwise smooth flow of Protennoia's self-referential speech, are designated as "mysteries" which Protennoia is said to have communicated to the sons of the light.

Essentially, the scheme of the divine First Thought's triple descent into this world is a derivative of speculation at home in the Hellenistic Jewish wisdom schools responsible for the personification of the figure of the divine wisdom and the development of the myth concerning her role in the creation of the world and in the subsequent enlightenment of mankind as it is found especially in 1 Enoch 42, Sirach 24, Wisdom 7-8, and in Philo. It seems that Sophia's two unsuccessful descents in 1 Enoch 42 and her successful one in Sirach 24 were combined into a total of three descents into the lower world, two resulting in partial liberation, and the third resulting in the final awakening and salvation of those who received her. This is the same pattern that underlies the Johannine prologue, which, though not a Barbeloite composition, was likely also a product of a similar form of wisdom speculation. The unique contribution of the Barbeloites seems to have been the interpretation of the three revelatory descents: first, in terms of a primal divine triad of Father, Mother and Son, second in terms of a theory of progressive revelation in which each successive appearance of the revealer is characterized by an increasing degree of articulateness and finality (Voice, Speech, and Word) and third, the association of the final descent with a Logos figure who confers final enlightenment in the form of transcendentalized baptismal rite called the Five Seals.

It is clear that the Trimorphic Protennoia has been secondarily Christianized. Three glosses identifying the Autogenes Son as the Christ in the first subtractate (37,[31]; 38,22; 39,6-7) probably derive from the traditional Barbeloite theogonical material common to The Apocryphon of John and Irenaeus, Haer. 1.29, upon which the author drew for the first narrative insertion. These Christian glosses would have been suggested by an equation between the Christian designation of Christ as monogenes and what seems to be a pre-Christian designation for the third member of the Barbeloite Father-Mother-Son triad, namely the Self-Begotten (autogenes) Son.

The third subtractate narrates the incognito descent of Protennoia as the Word disguised in the form of the sovereignties, powers, and angels, culminating in the final revelation of herself in the human form of her members below, but it seems to have been supplemented by an alien and tendentious Christological interpretation. In the third subtractate, traditional Christological titles such as Christ, Beloved, Son of God (i.e., "Son of the Archigenetor") and Son of Man are polemically interpreted in a consciously docetic fashion so as to suggest that these titles were inappropriately applied to the human Jesus by the apostolic church. By implication, the apostolic Jesus is shown actually to be the Christ of the evil archons; the apostolic beloved is actually the Beloved of the archons; the apostolic Son of God is the Son of the ignorant world creator; and the apostolic Son of Man is only a human being among the sons of men.

It is interesting that most of these reinterpretations of the Christology of the apostolic church in the Trimorphic Protennoia seem to depend on key passages from the Gospel of John to score their point in any acute fashion. It seems that the key to the relationship between these two texts lies in the recognition that Trimorphic Protennoia has undergone at least three stages of composition. First, there was the original triad of the aretalogical self-predications of Protennoia as Voice, Speech, and Word that were probably built up out of the Jewish wisdom tradition and maybe out of The Apocryphon of John's similar Pronoia aretalogy itself sometime during the first century C.E.; there is little here that seems specifically gnostic or Christian or Sethian or Barbeloite. Second, this was supplemented, whether by the same or by a different author, by various narrative doctrinal passages based upon traditional Barbeloite theogonical materials similar to those of The Apocryphon of John and Irenaeus, Haer. 1.29. After circulation as a mildly Christian Barbeloite text in this form, the third and last stage of composition seems to have involved a deliberately polemical incorporation of Christian, specifically Johannine Christian, materials into the aretological portion of the third subtractate. One might assign the third compositional stage of Trimorphic Protennoia to the period of struggle over the interpretation of the Christology of the Fourth Gospel witnessed by the New Testament letters of John, perhaps the first quarter or half of the second century.

TRIMORPHIC PROTENNOIA

XIII 35, 1-50, 24

I am the life <sup>1</sup> of my Epinoia that dwells within <sup>1</sup> every Power and every eternal movement <sup>15</sup> and (in) invisible Lights and <sup>1</sup> within the Archons and Angels and <sup>1</sup> Demons and every soul dwelling <sup>1</sup> in [Tartaros] and (in) every material soul. <sup>1</sup> I dwell in those who came to be. I move in <sup>20</sup> everyone and I delve into them all. <sup>1</sup> I walk uprightly, and those who <sup>1</sup> sleep I [awaken]. And I <sup>1</sup> am the sight of those who dwell in sleep. <sup>1</sup>

they recognize <sup>1</sup> it (the voice), since a seed indwells [them]. <sup>1</sup> I am the Thought of the Father and through <sup>1</sup> me proceeded [the] Voice, <sup>1</sup> that is, the knowledge of the everlasting things. I <sup>20</sup> exist as Thought for the [All] – being joined <sup>1</sup> to the unknowable and incomprehensible Thought – <sup>1</sup> I revealed myself – yes, I – among <sup>1</sup> all those who recognize me. For it is I <sup>1</sup> who am joined with everyone by virtue of <sup>25</sup> the hidden Thought and an exalted <Voice>, even a Voice from <sup>1</sup> the invisible Thought. And it is immeasurable, <sup>1</sup> since it dwells in the Immeasurable One. It is a mystery; <sup>1</sup> it is [unrestrainable] <sup>30</sup> by [the Incomprehensible One]. It is invisible <sup>1</sup> [to all those who are] visible <sup>1</sup> in the All. [It is a Light] dwelling in <sup>1</sup> Light.

It is we [also who] alone [have separated] <sup>1</sup> [from the] visible [world] <sup>35</sup> since we [are saved by the] <sup>1</sup> hidden [wisdom by means of the] 37 ineffable, immeasurable [Voice]. And he who is <sup>1</sup> hidden within us pays the tributes of his fruit <sup>1</sup> to the Water of Life.

Then <sup>1</sup> the Son who is perfect in every respect – that is, <sup>5</sup> the Word who originated through that <sup>1</sup> Voice; who proceeded from the height; who <sup>1</sup> has within him the Name; who is <sup>1</sup> a Light – he (the Son) revealed the everlasting things and <sup>1</sup> all the unknowns were known. <sup>10</sup> And those things difficult to interpret <sup>1</sup> and secret, he revealed, and <sup>1</sup> as for those who dwell in Silence with the First <sup>1</sup> Thought, he preached to them. And <sup>1</sup> he revealed himself to those who dwell in darkness, and <sup>15</sup> he showed himself to those who dwell in the abyss, <sup>1</sup> and to those who dwell in the hidden treasures he told <sup>1</sup> ineffable mysteries, <sup>1</sup> and he taught unrepeatable doctrines <sup>1</sup> to all those who became Sons of <sup>20</sup> the Light.

But now I have come down <sup>30</sup> and reached down to Chaos. And <sup>1</sup> I was [with] my own who <sup>1</sup> were in that place. [I am hidden] within <sup>1</sup> them, empowering [them and] giving <sup>1</sup> them shape. And [from the first day] until <sup>35</sup> the day [when I will grant mighty power] <sup>1</sup> to those who [are mine, I will reveal myself to] <sup>1</sup> those who have [heard my mysteries], 41 that is, the [Sons] of [the] Light.

I <sup>1</sup> am their Father and I shall tell you a <sup>1</sup> mystery, ineffable and indivulgeable <sup>1</sup> by [any] mouth: Every bond <sup>5</sup> I loosed from you, and the <sup>1</sup> chains of the Demons of the underworld, I broke, <sup>1</sup> these things which are bound on my members, restraining them. And <sup>1</sup> the high walls of darkness I overthrew, <sup>1</sup> and the secure gates of <sup>10</sup> those pitiless ones I broke, and I smashed <sup>1</sup> their bars. And the evil Force and <sup>1</sup> the one who beats you, and the one who hinders <sup>1</sup> you, and the Tyrant, and the Adversary, <sup>1</sup> and the one who is King, and the present Enemy, <sup>15</sup> indeed all these I explained to those <sup>1</sup> who are mine, who are the Sons of the light, <sup>1</sup> in order that they might nullify them all <sup>1</sup> and be saved from all those bonds <sup>1</sup> and enter into the place where they were at <sup>20</sup> first.

mysteries, and I spoke, <sup>25</sup> I together with the Archons and Authorities. <sup>1</sup> For I had gone down below their <sup>1</sup> language and I spoke my mysteries to <sup>1</sup> my own – a hidden mystery – and <sup>1</sup> the bonds and eternal oblivion were nullified. <sup>30</sup> And I bore fruit in them, that <sup>1</sup> is, the Thought of the unchanging Aeon, and <sup>1</sup> my house, and their [Father]. And I went <sup>1</sup> down [to those who were mine] from the first and <sup>1</sup> I [reached them and broke] the first strands <sup>35</sup> that [enslaved them. Then] <sup>1</sup> everyone [of those] within me shone, and 42 I prepared [a pattern] for those ineffable Lights that are <sup>1</sup> within me. Amen. <sup>1</sup>

The Discourse of Protennoia: [One] <sup>1</sup>

I am the Voice that appeared through <sup>5</sup> my Thought, for I am “He who is syzygetic,” <sup>1</sup> since I am called “the Thought of the Invisible One.” <sup>1</sup> Since I am called “the unchanging Speech,” <sup>1</sup> I am called “She who is syzygetic.”

I am a single <sup>1</sup> one (fem.) since I am undefiled. I am the Mother [of] <sup>10</sup> the Voice, speaking in many ways, completing <sup>1</sup> the All. It is in me that knowledge dwells, <sup>1</sup> the knowledge of <things> everlasting. It is I [who] <sup>1</sup> speak within every creature and I was known <sup>1</sup> by the All. It is I who lift up <sup>15</sup> the Speech of the Voice to the ears of those who <sup>1</sup> have known me, that is, the Sons of the Light. <sup>1</sup>

Now I have come the second time in the likeness <sup>1</sup> of a female and have spoken with them. And <sup>1</sup> I shall tell them of the coming end of the Aeon <sup>20</sup> and teach them of the beginning of the Aeon <sup>1</sup> to come, the one without change, <sup>1</sup> the one in which our appearance will be changed. <sup>1</sup> We shall be purified within those Aeons from which I <sup>1</sup> revealed myself in the Thought <sup>25</sup> of the likeness of my masculinity. I settled <sup>1</sup> among those who are worthy in the Thought of my <sup>1</sup> changeless Aeon.

For I shall tell you a <sup>1</sup> mystery [of] this particular Aeon and <sup>1</sup> tell you about the forces that are in it. <sup>30</sup> The birth beckons: [hour] begets <sup>1</sup> hour, [day begets day]. The months <sup>1</sup> made known the [month. Time] has [gone round] <sup>1</sup> succeeding [time]. This particular Aeon 43 was completed in [this] fashion, and it was estimated, and <sup>1</sup> it (was) short, for it was a finger that released a <sup>1</sup> finger and a joint that was separated from <sup>1</sup> a joint. Then when the great Authorities knew <sup>5</sup> that the time of fulfillment had appeared – <sup>1</sup> just as in the pangs of the parturient it (the time) had drawn near, <sup>1</sup> so also had <sup>1</sup> the destruction approached – all together the elements <sup>1</sup> trembled, and the foundations of the underworld and the ceilings <sup>10</sup> of Chaos shook and a great fire shone <sup>1</sup> within their midst, and the rocks and the earth <sup>1</sup> were shaken like a reed shaken by the wind. <sup>1</sup> And the lots of Fate and those who apportion <sup>1</sup> the domiciles were greatly disturbed over <sup>15</sup> a great thunder. And the thrones of <sup>1</sup> the Powers were disturbed since they were overturned, and their <sup>1</sup> King was afraid. And those who pursue Fate <sup>1</sup> paid their allotment of visits to the path, and <sup>1</sup> they said to the Powers, “What is this disturbance <sup>20</sup> and this shaking that has come upon us through <sup>1</sup> a Voice <belonging> to the exalted Speech? <sup>1</sup> And our entire habitation has been shaken, and the entire <sup>1</sup> circuit of our path of ascent has met with <sup>1</sup> destruction, and the path upon which we go, <sup>25</sup> which takes us up to the Archigenetor <sup>1</sup> of our birth, has ceased to be established for us.” <sup>1</sup> Then the Powers answered, saying, <sup>1</sup> “We too are at a loss about <sup>1</sup> it since we did not know what was responsible for it. But <sup>30</sup> arise, let us go up to the Archigenetor <sup>1</sup> and ask him.” And the <sup>1</sup> Powers all gathered and went up to the Archigenetor. <sup>1</sup> [They said to] him, “Where is your boasting <sup>1</sup> in which [you boast]? <sup>35</sup> Did we not [hear you say], ‘I <sup>1</sup> am God [and I am] your Father 44 and it is I who [begot] you and there is no [other] <sup>1</sup> beside me’? Now behold, there has appeared <sup>1</sup> [a] Voice belonging to that invisible Speech <sup>1</sup> of [the Aeon] (and) which we know not. And <sup>5</sup> we ourselves did not recognize to whom we <sup>1</sup> belong, for that Voice which we listened to <sup>1</sup> is foreign to us, and we do not recognize <sup>1</sup> it; we did not know whence it was. It came <sup>1</sup> and put fear in our midst and weakening <sup>10</sup> in the members of our arms. So now let <sup>1</sup> us weep and mourn most bitterly! <sup>1</sup> As for the future, let us make our entire flight <sup>1</sup> before we are imprisoned perforce and <sup>1</sup> taken down to the bosom of the underworld. For already <sup>15</sup> the slackening of our bondage has approached, <sup>1</sup> and the times are cut short and the days have shortened <sup>1</sup> and our time has been fulfilled, and the weeping <sup>1</sup> of our destruction has approached us so that <sup>1</sup> we may be taken to the place we recognize. <sup>20</sup> For as for our tree from which we grew, a fruit <sup>1</sup> of ignorance is what it has; and <sup>1</sup> also its leaves, it is death that dwells in them, <sup>1</sup> and darkness dwells under the shadow of its <sup>1</sup> boughs. And it was in deceit <sup>25</sup> and lust that we harvested it, this (tree) through <sup>1</sup> which ignorant Chaos became for us a dwelling place. <sup>1</sup> For behold, even he, the Archigenetor <sup>1</sup> of our birth, about whom we boast, <sup>1</sup> even he did not know this Speech.”

life <sup>35</sup> [has approached and there dawns 45 the] beginning of the [Aeon to come] which [has <sup>1</sup> no change forever].

I am <sup>1</sup> androgynous. [I am Mother (and) I am] Father since [I <sup>1</sup> copulate] with myself. I [copulated] with myself <sup>5</sup> [and with those who love] me, [and] <sup>1</sup> it is through me alone that the All [stands firm]. I am the Womb <sup>1</sup> [that gives shape] to the All by giving birth to the Light that <sup>1</sup> [shines in] splendor. I am the Aeon to [come. <sup>1</sup> I am] the fulfillment of the All, that is, Me[iroth]ea, <sup>10</sup> the glory of the Mother. I cast [voiced] Speech <sup>1</sup> into the ears of those who know <sup>1</sup> me.

And I am inviting you into the exalted, perfect Light. <sup>1</sup> Moreover (as for) this (Light), when you enter <sup>1</sup> it you will be glorified by those [who] <sup>15</sup> give glory, and those who enthrone will <sup>1</sup> enthrone you. You will accept robes from <sup>1</sup> those who give robes and the Baptists <sup>1</sup> will baptize you and you will become <sup>1</sup> gloriously glorious, the way you first were <sup>20</sup> when you were <Light>. <sup>1</sup>

And I hid myself in everyone and revealed [myself] <sup>1</sup> within them, and every mind seeking <sup>1</sup> me longed for me, for it is I <sup>1</sup> who gave shape to the All when it had no form. <sup>25</sup> And I transformed their forms <sup>1</sup> into (other) forms until the time when a form <sup>1</sup> will be given to the All. It is through me that the Voice <sup>1</sup> originated and it is I who put the breath <sup>1</sup> within my own. And I cast into <sup>30</sup> them the eternally holy Spirit and <sup>1</sup> I ascended and entered my Light. <sup>1</sup> [I went up] upon my branch and <sup>1</sup> sat [there among the] Sons of the [holy] Light. <sup>1</sup> And [I withdrew] to their dwelling place 46 which [...] <sup>3</sup> become [glorious . . . . Amen]. <sup>1</sup>

[On Fate: Two] <sup>5</sup>

The third <sup>1</sup> time I revealed myself to them [in] <sup>15</sup> their tents as Word and I <sup>1</sup> revealed myself in the likeness of their shape. And <sup>1</sup> I wore everyone's garment and <sup>1</sup> I hid myself within them, and [they] did not <sup>1</sup> know the one who empowers me. For I dwell within <sup>20</sup> all the Sovereignities and Powers and within <sup>1</sup> the Angels and in every movement [that] exists <sup>1</sup> in all matter. And I hid myself within <sup>1</sup> them until I revealed myself to my [brethren]. <sup>1</sup> And none of them (the Powers) knew me, [although] <sup>25</sup> it is I who work in them. Rather [they thought] <sup>1</sup> that the All was created [by them] <sup>1</sup> since they are ignorant, not knowing [their] <sup>1</sup> root, the place in which they grew.

[I] <sup>1</sup> am the Light that illumines the All. I <sup>30</sup> am the Light that rejoices [in my] <sup>1</sup> brethren, for I came down to the world [of] <sup>1</sup> mortals on account of the Spirit that remains [in] <sup>1</sup> that which [descended] (and) came forth [from] the <sup>1</sup> innocent Sophia. [I came] and I delivered <sup>35</sup> [. . .] and I [went] to <sup>48</sup> [. . .] <sup>6</sup> which he had [formerly and <sup>1</sup> I gave to him] from the Water [of Life, which <sup>1</sup> strips] him of the Chaos [that is <sup>1</sup> in the] uttermost [darkness] that exists [inside] <sup>10</sup> the entire [abyss], that is, the thought of [the corporeal] <sup>1</sup> and the psychic. All these I <sup>1</sup> put on. And I stripped him of it <sup>1</sup> and I put upon him a shining Light, that <sup>1</sup> is, the knowledge of the Thought of the Fatherhood. <sup>15</sup>

I hid myself within them <sup>1</sup> all until I revealed myself among my members, <sup>1</sup> which are mine, and I taught them about the ineffable <sup>1</sup> ordinances, and (about) the brethren. But they are inexpressible <sup>1</sup> to every Sovereignty and every ruling <sup>25</sup> Power except to the Sons of the Light <sup>1</sup> alone, that is, the ordinances of the Father. These are <sup>1</sup> the glories that are higher than every glory, that is, [the Five] <sup>1</sup> Seals complete by virtue of Intellect. He <sup>1</sup> who possesses the Five Seals of these <sup>30</sup> particular names has stripped off <the> garments <sup>1</sup> of ignorance and put on <sup>1</sup> a shining Light. And nothing <sup>1</sup> will appear to him that belongs to the Powers <sup>1</sup> of the Archons. Within those of this sort <sup>35</sup> darkness will dissolve and [ignorance] will die. <sup>1</sup> And the thought of the creature <sup>1</sup> which [is scattered will] present a single appearance <sup>1</sup> and [dark Chaos] will dissolve and 50 [. . .] <sup>3</sup> and the [. . .] <sup>1</sup> incomprehensible [. . .] <sup>5</sup> within the [. . .] <sup>1</sup> until I reveal myself [to all my fellow <sup>1</sup> brethren] and until I gather [together] <sup>1</sup> all [my fellow] brethren within my [eternal <sup>1</sup> kingdom]. And I proclaimed to them the ineffable [Five <sup>10</sup> Seals in order that <sup>1</sup> I might] abide in them and they also <sup>1</sup> might abide in me.

As for me, I put on <sup>1</sup> Jesus. I bore him from the cursed <sup>1</sup> wood, and established him in the dwelling places <sup>15</sup> of his Father. And those who watch over <sup>1</sup> their dwelling places did not recognize me. <sup>1</sup> For I, I am unrestrainable together with my <sup>1</sup> Seed, and my Seed, which is mine, I shall [place] <sup>1</sup> into the Holy Light within an <sup>20</sup> incomprehensible Silence. Amen. <sup>1</sup>

The extant text of The Gospel of Mary can easily be divided into two parts. The first section (7,1-9,24) describes the dialogue between the (risen) Savior and the disciples. He answers their questions concerning matter and sin. Relying on an exegesis of Romans 7, as Anne Pasquier has shown, the Savior argues, in effect, that sin is not a moral category, but a cosmological one; it is due to the improper mixing of the material and the spiritual. In the end all things will be resolved into their proper root. After finishing his discourse, the Savior gives them a final greeting, admonishes them to beware of any who may try to lead them astray and commissions them to go and preach the gospel of the kingdom. After he departs, however, the disciples are grieved and in considerable doubt and consternation. Mary Magdalene comforts them and turns their hearts toward the Good and a consideration of the Savior's words.

The second section of the text (10,1-23; 15,1-19,2) contains a description by Mary of special revelation given to her by the Savior. At Peter's request, she tells the disciples about things that were hidden from them. The basis for her knowledge is a vision of the Lord and a private dialogue with him. Unfortunately four pages of the text are missing here so that only the beginning and end of Mary's revelation are extant.

The revelation is in the form of a dialogue. The first question Mary asks the Savior is how one sees a vision. The Savior replies that the soul sees through the mind which is between the soul and the spirit. At this point the text breaks off. When the text resumes at 15,1, Mary is in the midst of describing the Savior's revelation concerning the rise of the soul past the four powers. The four powers are most probably to be identified as essential expressions of the four material elements. The enlightened soul, now free of their bonds, rises past the four powers, overpowering them with her gnosis, and attains eternal, silent rest.

After Mary finishes recounting her vision to the disciples, Andrew and then Peter challenge her on two grounds. First of all, Andrew says, these teachings are strange. Secondly, Peter questions, would the Savior really have told such things to a woman and kept them from the male disciples. Levi admonishes Peter for contending with the woman as against the adversaries and acknowledges that the Savior loved her more than the other disciples. He entreats them to be ashamed, to put on the perfect man, and to go forth and preach as the Savior had instructed them to do. They immediately go forth to preach and the text ends.

The confrontation of Mary with Peter, a scenario also found in The Gospel of Thomas, Pistis Sophia, and The Gospel of the Egyptians, reflects some of the tensions in second-century Christianity. Peter and Andrew represent orthodox positions that deny the validity of esoteric revelation and reject the authority of women to teach. The Gospel of Mary attacks both of these positions head-on through its portrayal of Mary Magdalene. She is the Savior's beloved, possessed of knowledge and teaching superior to that of the public apostolic tradition. Her superiority is based on vision and private revelation and is demonstrated in her capacity to strengthen the wavering disciples and turn them toward the Good.

The text belongs to the genre of the gnostic dialogue. It has, however, also been classified as an apocalypse due to several characteristics it shares with other texts of that genre: revelation dialogue, vision, an abbreviated cosmogony, a description of otherworldly regions and the rise of the soul (though there is no heavenly journey as such), final instructions, and a short narrative conclusion. The difficulty in determining genre is due in part to the fact that the text has undergone secondary redaction. Most scholars agree that the two parts of the text described above were originally separate pieces (oral or written) that were artificially combined to form the present whole. The role of Mary at the end of the first section and the altercation among the disciples at the end provide the narrative connection.

The Gospel of Mary was originally written in Greek some time in the second century. Unfortunately the two extant copies of The Gospel of Mary are extremely fragmentary. The earliest text comprises only a single, fragmentary leaf written in Greek, dated to the early third century (P. Rylands III 463 [22:16,1-19,4]). A longer portion of the text is extant in an early fifth-century Coptic codex (P. Berolinensis 8502,1), though considerable portions of the text are missing there too. Of eighteen pages, only eight are extant (7-10 and 15-19,5). Though the text of the Greek fragment varies considerably from the Coptic version, it parallels the Coptic pages 17,5-21 and 18,5-19,5 and hence does not provide any new material.

THE GOSPEL OF MARY

BG 7, 1-19, 5

Peter said to him, "Since you have <sup>1</sup> explained everything to us, tell us this also: <sup>1</sup> What is the sin of the world?" <sup>1</sup> The Savior said, "There is no sin, <sup>1</sup> but it is you who make sin when <sup>15</sup> you do the things that are like the nature of <sup>1</sup> adultery, which is called 'sin.' <sup>1</sup> That is why the Good came <sup>1</sup> into your midst, to the (essence) of every nature, <sup>1</sup> in order to restore it <sup>20</sup> to its root." Then he continued and <sup>1</sup> said, "That is why you <sup>1</sup> [become sick] and die, for [. . .] 8 of the one who [. . . He who] <sup>1</sup> understands, let him understand. [Matter gave birth to] a <sup>1</sup> passion that has no equal, <sup>1</sup> which proceeded from (something) contrary to nature. <sup>5</sup> Then there arise a disturbance in <sup>1</sup> the whole body. That is why I said to <sup>1</sup> you, 'Be of good courage,' <sup>1</sup> and if you are discouraged <sup>1</sup> (be) encouraged in the presence of the different forms <sup>10</sup> of nature. He who has ears <sup>1</sup> to hear, let him hear." <sup>1</sup>

When the blessed one had said this, he <sup>1</sup> greeted them all, saying, <sup>1</sup> "Peace be with you. Receive <sup>15</sup> my peace to yourselves. Beware that no one <sup>1</sup> lead you astray, saying, <sup>1</sup> 'Lo here!' or 'Lo <sup>1</sup> there!' For the Son of Man <sup>1</sup> is within you. Follow <sup>20</sup> after him! Those who seek him will <sup>1</sup> find him. Go then and preach <sup>1</sup> the gospel of the kingdom. Do not 9 lay down any rules beyond what <sup>1</sup> I appointed for you, and do not give <sup>1</sup> a law like the lawgiver lest <sup>1</sup> you be constrained by it." <sup>5</sup> When he had said this, he departed.

through the spirit, but the mind which [is] <sup>1</sup> between the two – that is [what] <sup>1</sup> sees the vision and it is [ . . . ].’ (pp. 11-14 missing)

THE ACT OF PETER (BG 8502,4)

DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

Translated by

JAMES BRASHLER and DOUGLAS M. PARROTT

The Act of Peter is a narrative about how the virginity of Peter's daughter was preserved and the soul of one Ptolemy saved, by divine intervention exercised through Peter. The setting of Act Pet. is a Sunday (the place is not mentioned; cf. discussion below), when, it appears, it was customary for Peter to conduct his healing ministry. A challenge by one of the bystanders leads Peter to employ the power of God to heal his daughter of paralysis, which healing he immediately reverses (128,7-131,9). Peter's narrative, which constitutes most of the remainder of Act Pet., begins with an explanation of how his daughter came to be paralyzed. When she had grown to sexual maturity, the girl was so attractive that a rich man named Ptolemy burned with desire to marry her. Her mother refused permission, whereupon Ptolemy abducted her. If the operative law was Jewish, Ptolemy's purpose may well have been to force the girl's parents to allow him to marry her (see Dt 22:28-29). Peter's prayers caused her to be paralyzed before Ptolemy could have intercourse with her, and hence her virginity was preserved (131,12-135,17). Ptolemy went blind with grief, but a vision spared him from suicide, revealed his guilt, and sent him to Peter, where his sight was restored and his soul was made to see also (135,17-138,10). Thereafter he lived an exemplary life and gave Peter and his daughter a parcel of land when he died. This Peter sold and gave the proceeds to the poor (138,12-139,17). Peter draws the moral that God cares for his own, and the whole account ends with Peter distributing bread to the crowd and retiring to his home.

Although the physical setting is not mentioned in the text, it is reasonable to think of Jerusalem, since Peter's home is spoken of (141,6), where he lives with his wife and daughter (135,1-6). Another possibility is Rome, but there is a tradition in The Acts of Peter, mentioned below, that he goes alone to Rome. In addition, as noted above, the operative law appears to be Jewish.

The Act of Peter probably was part of the otherwise lost beginning third of a collection of apocryphal narratives known as The Acts of Peter. There is extensive conceptual and literary agreement between The Act of Peter and the remaining Acts of Peter. Whether there is a close enough relationship between The Act of Peter and the Nag Hammadi Acts of Peter and the Twelve Apostles (VI,1) to make it likely that the latter was also part of The Acts of Peter remains to be seen.

Conceptually, the emphasis of The Act of Peter is moderately encratite. Marriage itself is not denounced (note that Peter was married and still living with his wife). What is denounced is Ptolemy's lust, which leads him to attempt to deprive a Christian maiden of her virginity by force (137,1-11). Thus, the encratism in this tractate consists in its advocacy of rigorous sexual self-control, which was a view common among Christians in the second century. There is no doubt, however, that the lack of any statement about the meaning of the narrative would have allowed it to be interpreted in a more extreme sense.

It has been suggested that the reason for the inclusion of The Act of Peter in a codex containing three explicitly gnostic tractates is that the scribe needed to fill up the pages after copying the first three tractates, and thus he was attracted to The Act of Peter by its appropriate length and the encratite tendencies in it. Considering the large amount of explicitly gnostic writing available, one wonders why he chose a work only marginally related. The editor might have been influenced by the immediately preceding tractate, The Sophia of Jesus Christ, which has in its conclusion, when Christ disappears from the disciples, the statement that they "began to preach the Gospel of God, the eternal Father" (129,5-9). He might have thought that an account of apostolic activity would be appropriate. But since many similar accounts would also have been circulating, there may be a further reason for the choice of this particular tractate.

The Act of Peter may have been chosen because of the rich possibilities for allegorization that it would have presented to Gnostics. Ptolemy could have represented the soul, whose attraction to the things of the world (represented by the beauty of Peter's daughter) leads to ignorance (represented by grief and blindness), and would have led to death except for the coming of the light of true knowledge (in Act Pet., the vision of light and the voice of Christ [136,17-137,17]), which removes blindness (138,7-10). The paralysis of the daughter could have represented the power of divine knowledge over the powers of this world; and, of course, the daughter could also have been seen as a type of the fallen Sophia. (For related gnostic views in BG, cf. Soph. Jes. Chr. [BG,3] 103,10-106,9; 117,13-126,16). It may thus have been the deeper meanings seen in this text that attracted the gnostic compiler to it and led him to use it in the codex.

Act Pt. are dated toward the end of the second century. Hence Act Pet. would have been extant by that time, although it might well have had an earlier, independent existence.

THE ACT OF PETER

Now on the first (day) of the week, <sup>1</sup> which is the Lord's day, <sup>1</sup> a crowd gathered and <sup>1</sup> brought to Peter <sup>5</sup> many who were <sup>1</sup> sick, in order that he might <sup>1</sup> heal them. And a person <sup>1</sup> from the crowd made bold <sup>1</sup> to say to Peter, <sup>10</sup> "Peter, behold, in <sup>1</sup> our presence you have caused many <sup>1</sup> blind to see, and you have <sup>1</sup> caused the deaf to hear, <sup>1</sup> and you have caused the lame to <sup>15</sup> walk. And you have helped <sup>1</sup> the weak and have given them <sup>1</sup> strength. But your <sup>1</sup> virgin daughter, who <sup>1</sup> has grown

“Know, then, O servant of <sup>1</sup> Christ Jesus, that God 140 [watches over those who] <sup>1</sup> are his and he prepares <sup>1</sup> what is good for <sup>1</sup> each one. But we <sup>5</sup> think that <sup>1</sup> God has forgotten us. <sup>1</sup> Now then, brothers, let <sup>1</sup> us be penitent and <sup>1</sup> watchful, and pray. <sup>10</sup> And the goodness <sup>1</sup> of God will look <sup>1</sup> down upon us – and we <sup>1</sup> wait for it.” And <sup>1</sup> {all} other teachings <sup>15</sup> Peter spoke in the <sup>1</sup> presence of them all. <sup>1</sup> Praising the name 141 of the Lord Christ, <sup>1</sup> he gave them all <sup>1</sup> bread. <sup>1</sup> When he had distributed it, <sup>1</sup> he <sup>5</sup> arose and went <sup>1</sup> into his house. <sup>1</sup>

by

RICHARD SMITH

“The Gnostics,” Edward Gibbon informed the late eighteenth century, “were distinguished as the most polite, the most learned, and the most wealthy of the Christian name.” Why would Gibbon have told such a mischievous lie? There is nothing in the primary sources available to him on which to base his claim. Gibbon, nevertheless, in that notorious fifteenth chapter of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, avoids the old hostilities. In his witty, malicious – today we might add revisionist – style, Gibbon portrays the Gnostics with such impartiality that his chapter becomes, if not an advertisement for heresy, then at least a subversion of orthodoxy. His catty remarks on the early Christian church were later bowdlerized, yet the most unkind words he has for the Gnostics is to describe their “vain science” as “sublime but obscure.” Hardly the rascals of tradition, we can imagine Gibbon’s Gnostics gracing one of Mme Geoffrin’s salons.

Other philosophes might have welcomed their presence as well, for, as part of the Enlightenment attack on Christianity, the ancient dualist heretics of the early church found their cause promoted. The method, or perhaps the battle order (Gibbon’s Memoirs speak of shooting the shaft and sounding the alarm), was revealed by Gibbon when he fondly praised that patron saint of the Enlightenment, Pierre Bayle. Bayle “balances the false religions in his sceptical scales, til the opposite quantities annihilate each other.” Bayle’s Historical and Critical Dictionary had no entry on Gnostics or Gnosticism (a brand new word in his day), but gathered all of the old dualists together under the heading of Manichaeans. The Manichaean movement had been the final flourish of Gnosticism, and had survived through various geographical wanderings until its flare up in southern France in the Middle Ages when it was eliminated by a crusade. Until the eighteenth century revived an interest in the older sects now called gnostic, the term Manichaean was used for all dualist heresies.

For Voltaire, another of Bayle's devotees, the catchword was also Manichaeism. Candide depicts the adventures of a few silly optimists in a wicked world; a world in which Christian priests are among the most villainous troublemakers. Peter Gay has even described the book as "a declaration of war on Christianity." Yet in the midst of all the chaos Voltaire includes one sympathetic character; a wandering scholar named Martin who introduces himself to Candide as "a Manichaeism." When Candide protests that there are no more Manichaeisms in the world, Martin simply says, "I cannot think any other way. I think that God has abandoned this globe, or rather this globule, to some maleficent being." The events of the novel confirm Martin's assessment. Bayle had said that the gnostic belief in several eternal beings, some good, some bad, in perpetual conflict, "is not so unlikely" to "men who think and reason." Voltaire says, in his own Philosophical Dictionary discussing the Gnostics and Manichaeisms, "to have imagined two all-powerful beings fighting each other" is not a "trivial" notion. He slyly describes Basilides' myth of "the creation of the world by god's lowest angels, and that these, not being skillful, arranged matters as we see them." In his story, Plato's Dream, Voltaire tells a nightmarish version of creation by an incompetent genie called Demogorgon. Dualist stories seem to have appealed to Voltaire's own sense of conflict. There is in his writings, as Roland Barthes puts it, "a kind of Manichaeism struggle between stupidity and intelligence." Or, as David Hume summed up the opposition in one breath, "Stupidity, Christianity, and Ignorance."

The Enlightenment writers created a sympathetic picture of the Gnostics because heterodoxy suited their anti-orthodoxy. They emphasized the dualist critique of the world, but ignored the dualist promise of transcendent escape. The philosophes thus created a version of the Gnostics that was, like themselves, secular. It is because we are still the heirs of that secular agenda that an assessment of any modern relevance of Gnosticism properly begins in the eighteenth century. There was, certainly, an interest in unorthodox, esoteric, and even occult matters in earlier centuries. In the Renaissance, for example, there was something of the spirit of exploration and conquest in such studies. Disparate traditions, hermetic and cabalistic, were appropriated and harmonized with Christianity. Ficino, Agrippa, Dee, and Bruno all considered themselves Christians. They were not at all, moreover, interested in the ancient Gnostics. The eighteenth-century philosophes regarded Gnosticism as a counter-tradition and wielded it as a weapon in their outflanking tactics to overthrow the received tradition.

That the “candid but rational inquiry” (the words with which Gibbon opens his chapter on Christianity) was often a relativist pose was mostly lost on following generations. The irony was ignored and Reason itself was regarded as absolutist and a threat to the human imagination. William Blake named the enemy in his poem Milton:

... this Newtonian Phantasm
 This Voltaire & Rousseau: this Hume & Gibbon
 ... the Reasoning Power in Man
 This is a false Body: an Incrustation over my Immortal Spirit; a Selfhood, which must be put off & annihilated alway ...
 I come in Self-annihilation & the grandeur of Inspiration
 To cast off Rational Demonstration by Faith in the Saviour
 To cast off the rotten rags of Memory by Inspiration
 To cast off Bacon, Locke & Newton from Albion's covering
 To take off his filthy garments, & clothe him with Imagination

This is a new use of dualist language. For Blake, salvation was the free expression of his own visionary imagination. Only a few months before his death, he wrote to a friend that he was “very near the gates of death ... but not in spirit and life, not in the real man, the imagination, which liveth for ever. In that I am stronger and stronger, as this foolish body decays.” Throughout his life, Blake expressed this vision in poetic myths with a strong gnostic character. The evil demiurge of these poems he calls Urizen, a polysemous figure who suggests so much more than the creator of the physical world, Jehovah. He is also, as “prince of Light,” Satan and the “Enlightenment” as his name (your Reason) signifies. He is evil for Blake because his creation limits (Horizen, his name implies, too) and his primary symbol is “the golden compasses.” Like the bearded figure in Blake’s famous print “The Ancient of Days,” Urizen leans out of eternity and reaches down into the dark void with his compasses to measure, to divide, and to imprison. In The Four Zoas Blake describes the creation in images that echo and parody, like some gnostic texts, both Genesis and Plato’s Timaeus:

... First the Architect divine his plan Unfolds, The wondrous scaffold reard all round the infinite Quadrangular the building rose the heavens squared by a line ...
 A wondrous golden Building; many a window many a door
 And many a division let in & out into the vast unknown
 Cubed in window square immoveable, within its walls & cielings
 The heavens were closed and spirits mournd their bondage night and day

When he finishes his creation Urizen, like Yaldabaoth, claims, “Am I not God. Who is Equal to me.”

Then he began to sow the seed he girded round his loins
 With a bright girdle & his skirt filld with immortal souls
 Howling & Wailing fly the souls from Urizen's strong hand

This evil creator depicted by Blake in his later poems helps remove some of the ambiguity from the question he had posed in "The Tyger": "What immortal hand or eye, / Dare frame thy fearful symmetry?" Where William Blake read or heard about the Gnostics is not exactly clear, but some of his views certainly echo them consciously. With the Gnostics he separates the true God from nature, and regards the creator of the natural universe as evil. Crabb Robinson, a friend of Wordsworth, talked with Blake and kept a diary. Discussing Wordsworth's "eloquent descriptions of Nature," Blake told Robinson that Wordsworth didn't believe in God, "For Nature is the work of the Devil." When Robinson pointed out the creation of the earth by God in Genesis, Blake "repeated the doctrine of the Gnostics with sufficient consistency" that his interviewer was silenced.

Harold Bloom, a contemporary interpreter of the Romantic tradition, compares Blake's Tyger with Melville's Moby Dick. Both beasts represent nature, and "nature is death." Nature "painted like a harlot," Melville wrote, "God's great, unflattering laureate, Nature." The material universe is, for Ahab, "but a mask," a cosmetic behind which lies death, like a white shroud, like the albino whale. In a short poem he called "Fragments of a Lost Gnostic Poem," Melville wrote "Matter in end will never abate / His ancient brutal claim." Two years before the publication of Moby Dick, Herman Melville purchased a copy of Piere Bayle's old Dictionary. What he read there (and elsewhere) found its way into the novel, and whether Ahab shakes his angry harpoon at a monstrous creature or a malicious gnostic creator is not distinct. "An inscrutable malice," Ahab says, "is chiefly what I hate; and be the white whale agent, or be the white whale principal, I will wreak that hate upon him. Talk not to me of blasphemy, man." Ishmael, attempting to explain this fury, compares Ahab's feelings to those of a sect of ancient Gnostics. These were the Ophites, a group that today's scholarship calls the Sethians, associated with several of our Nag Hammadi texts. Ahab, says Ishmael, deliriously transferred the idea of "that intangible malignity which has been from the beginning . . . which the ancient Ophites of the east revered . . . to the abhorred white whale." In the final pages of the book Ahab flings an accusation at the creator that conjures Yaldabaoth's ignorance of his own mother.

Thou knowest not how came ye, hence callest thyself unbegotten: certainly knowest not thy beginning, hence callest thyself unbegun. I know that of me, which thou knowest not of thyself, oh, thou omnipotent. There is some unsuffusing thing beyond thee, thou clear spirit, to whom all thy eternity is but time, all thy creativeness mechanical.

In these passages from Blake and Melville, the physical world is a barrier. Romantic writers regard that barrier with feelings from discomfort to open hostility. The present collection of texts from Nag Hammadi shows us that what we call Gnosticism can range between a hierarchical monism to strict dualism. In a similar manner texts from the Romantic tradition depict, with varying degrees of conflict, a drama of separation and reintegration. The "fall into Division," Blake wrote, "and Resurrection to Unity." Salvation consists in what Harold Bloom describes as "the post-Enlightenment passion for Genius and the Sublime." "The power of the mind," as Coleridge had put it, "over the universe of death." Scholars have found examples of "Gnosticism" in the writings of Baudelaire, Rimbaud, the early Flaubert (in The Temptation of Saint Antony, a book much inspired by his reading of Pierre Bayle), the French Symbolists, the German Idealists, the American Transcendentalists, Carlyle, and so on. "Indeed," writes Bloom, "it could be argued that a form of Gnosticism is endemic in Romantic tradition." His primary example of this gnostic tendency is W.B. Yeats. Yeat's lyrics internalize the dualism and dramatize a conflict between various aspects of the self. In such poems as "A Dialogue of Self and Soul," the two speakers, Bloom argues, "are precisely the pneuma and the psyche of Gnostic formulation. The place of the Gnostic alien or transmudane true God in Yeats is taken by the imagination, which in Yeats is closer to Gnostic transcendence than it is to the Romantic Sublime."

If but imagination scorn the earth
 And intellect its wandering
 To this and that and t'other thing,
 Deliver from the crime of death and birth.

This internalized antithetical conflict is more boldly stated in "Sailing to Byzantium":

Consume my heart away; sick with desire
 And fastened to a dying animal
 It knows not what it is; and gather me
 Into the artifice of eternity.
 Once out of nature I shall never take
 My bodily form from any natural thing.

Yeats's strange and famous poem "The Second Coming" historicizes this antithesis and envisions the approach of a world spirit signaling a new, post-Christian age.

Surely some revelation is at hand;
 Surely the Second Coming is at hand.
 The Second Coming! Hardly are those words out
 When a vast image out of Spiritus Mundi Troubles my sight . . .
 . . . but now I know
 That twenty centuries of stony sleep
 Were vexed to nightmare by a rocking cradle,
 And what rough beast, its hour come round at last,
 Slouches towards Bethlehem to be born?

How are we to read these difficult images? Is Yeats afraid, or simply struck with wonder? Have the twenty Christian centuries been a nightmare? And how much can we make of the antithesis between "know" and "sleep"? A lot. The rough beast's slumber recalls "Urizen laid in a stony sleep." Yeats, after all, had edited Blake's poems for publication. The turning of the ages was recorded by Yeats, acting as amanuensis to his wife who was in mediumistic trance, and published as A Vision. The anti-Christian tone is not unrelated to his involvement in various occult groups while he lived in London and to his membership in The Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn, which enthusiastically circulated exotic religious writings including gnostic texts.

What Yeats and the Golden Dawn read as "gnostic" were often greco-roman magical texts. He also read gnostic sources in the books published by his long time acquaintance G.R.S. Mead. Mead devoted his life to publishing English translations of the gnostic sources available at the turn of the century. In books like Fragments of a Faith Forgotten he promoted an interest in the subject among nonscholarly readers. Mead and Yeats had met as members of the esoteric section of the Theosophical Society, which gathered at the London flat of H.P. Blavatsky in the 1880s.

It was Madame Blavatsky who first claimed the Gnostics as precursors for the occult movement. In her program to divide speculative learning into esoteric and exoteric, truth and religion, the Gnostics were an obvious opposition to what she called "Churchianity." She absorbed the Gnostics, in her universal free-associative style, into a great occult synthesis:

Ialdabaoth, the creator of the material world, was made to inhabit the planet Saturn according to the Ophites. From Ialdabaoth emanate six spirits who respectively dwell with their father in the seven planets. . . . These seven planets are identical with the Hindu Sapta-lokas, the seven places or spheres, or the superior and inferior worlds; for they represent the kabalistic seven spheres. With the Ophites they belong to the lower spheres. The monograms of these Gnostic planets are also Buddhistic, the latter differing, albeit slightly, from those of the usual astrological "houses."

This, from Isis Unveiled, is a typical sample of Blavatsky's treatment of the Gnostics. There is an esoteric tradition, Blavatsky felt, within every religion teaching her "secret doctrine." "The Gnosis, or traditional secret knowledge, was never without its representatives in any age or country," she writes. The esoteric tradition within Christianity is represented by the Gnostics, but "it is the intense and cruel desire to crush out the last vestige of the old philosophies by perverting their meaning, for fear that their own dogmas should not be rightly fathered on them, which impels the Catholic Church to carry on such a systematic persecution in regard to Gnostics. Alas, alas!"

H.P. Blavatsky and her Theosophical Society wrote the book on secret traditions. Most esoteric movements ever since have found it almost impossible to step outside of her (sometimes unconscious) influence. A few recent groups calling themselves gnostic have appealed to an underground yet pervasive "gnosis" rather than to the ancient historical gnostic sects. This is true of La Asociacion Gnostica which is widespread throughout Latin America, as well as the Los Angeles based Ecclesia Gnostica.

Indeed, in our century there have been several appropriations of gnostic motifs. The psychologist, C.G. Jung, continually refers to the Gnostics in his writings and was often photographed "wearing his gnostic ring." His lifelong interest in the subject was rewarded in 1952 when the Jung Institute in Zurich purchased and presented to him on his birthday a recently discovered gnostic papyrus manuscript. This "Jung Codex" is now our Nag Hammadi Codex I. Jung wrote so much about the Gnostics simply because he liked them. In Psychological Types he writes of "the vastly superior [compared to that of the Church] intellectual content of gnosis, which in the light of our present mental development has not lost but has considerably gained in value." He goes on to praise its "Promethean and creative spirit . . . we find in Gnosticism what was lacking in the centuries that followed: a belief in the efficacy of individual revelation and individual knowledge. This belief was rooted in the proud feeling of man's affinity with the gods, subject to no human law, and so overmastering that it may even subdue the gods by the sheer power of gnosis."

In 1916, before he wrote his major works, during a period when he believed his house to be filled with parapsychological phenomena, Jung wrote a visionary piece called The Seven Sermons to the Dead and ascribed it pseudonymously to Basilides, the second-century Alexandrian Gnostic:

In the night the dead stood along the wall and cried:
 We would have knowledge of god. Where is god?
 Is god dead?
 God is not dead. Now, as ever, he liveth.
 This is a god whom ye know not, for mankind forgot it.
 We name it by its name ABRAXAS.
 Abraxas standeth above the sun and above the devil.
 It is improbable probability, unreal reality.
 Had the pleroma a being, Abraxas would be its manifestation.
 The dead now raised a great tumult for they were Christians.

But Jung's Basilides preaches on:

Abraxas begetteth truth and lying, good and evil, light and darkness, in the same word and in the same act.
 Wherefore is Abraxas terrible.
 It is love and love's murder.
 It is the saint and his betrayer.
 It is the brightest light of day and the darkest night of madness.

In the early 1950s Dr. Jung defended himself against an attack by Martin Buber. Under discussion was the entire body of Jung's work, but Buber pointed a particularly snide finger at "his little Abraxas opus." The criticism was that Jung had overstepped the boundaries of psychology into religion, and had located God in the unconscious (rather than in Buber's transcendent "Thou"). This god of the self was, he complained, "the Gnostic god who unites good and evil in himself." Jung took all of this seriously. "Why is so much attention devoted to the question of whether I am a Gnostic?" He apologized for "once having perpetrated a poem, a sin of my [41-year-old] youth . . . I am a psychiatrist," he responded, "whose prime concern is to record and interpret his empirical material, to investigate facts and make them more generally comprehensible." Jung's "empirical" defense was later to be complicated by the description in his autobiography of his composition of the Septem Sermones. "All my works, all my creative activity, has come from those initial fantasies . . . Everything that I accomplished in later life was already contained in them, although at first only in the form of emotions and images.”

The paradoxical Abraxas of the early poem thus prefigures “the self” which Jung discussed over the next four decades as “a complexio oppositorum.” Self-knowledge is achieved through the conscious assimilation of the contents of the unconscious, including its dark “shadow” side, towards a goal of “wholeness.” Jung, therefore, was deeply interested in the gnostic insistence on evil as an active principle as opposed to the incomplete Christian view of evil as the privatio boni, the absence of good. “The Gnostics,” he writes with approval, “exhaustively discussed the problem of evil,” and he quotes the famous question of Basilides, “Whence comes evil?” Their answer was to oppose “the good, perfect, spiritual God by an imperfect, vain, ignorant and incompetent demiurge.” In his book Aion, Jung performs a telling psychoanalytic turn on this myth. “The ignorant demiurge who imagined he was the highest divinity illustrates the perplexity of the ego when it can no longer hide from itself the knowledge that it has been dethroned by a supra-ordinate authority . . . that indescribable whole consisting of the sum of conscious and unconscious processes, the antithesis of the subjective ego-psyche, what I have called the self.” Jung pushes this interpretation to claim that “for the Gnostics – and this is their real secret – the psyche existed as a source of knowledge . . . that many of the Gnostics were nothing other than psychologists.” C.G. Jung, indeed, saw his own work as “a link in the Aurea Catena” (the Golden Chain) from Gnosticism through philosophical alchemy to the modern psychology of the unconscious. The chain had been broken by the Enlightenment with its “devilish developments, anti-christianity and rationalistic hybris.” The tradition was then revived “by Freud, who had introduced the classical Gnostic motifs of sexuality and the wicked paternal authority.” Freud, however, left out “that other essential aspect of Gnosticism: the primordial image of the spirit as another, higher god who gave mankind the vessel of spiritual transformation, a feminine principle.” Jung compensates by reintegrating these motifs and thus creating a version of psychic unity that not only paralleled his reading of Gnosticism, but was inspired by it. Jung’s psychology portrays a version of the self that is fragmented, as do many gnostic texts, and like them finds an image of divinity among these fragments. Unlike gnostic texts, however, Jungian psychology does not see salvation as a separation of that divine fragment from the mundane, and its removal to the divine. Rather, Jung takes the entire dualist myth and locates it within the psyche. The result, as his own judgment states, is “that my leanings are therefore towards the very reverse of dualism.”

Many of our century’s fiction writers have portrayed versions of this psychologized Gnosticism. Herman Hesse’s Demian, published in 1925, was written right after Hesse had undergone Jungian analysis. The characters and events of the novel constitute an allegory of the Jungian archetypes. The strongest character, Demian, appears to blur all distinctions of age, gender, or ethics. He is “unimaginably different.” Demian tells the hero “dismaying” gnostic revisions of scripture to point out that the “people with character tend to receive the short end of the stick in biblical stories.” Like a (Jungian) Gnostic also, Demian pushes the hero to transcend his limited view of reality. “Who would be born must first destroy a world,” he says, and fly to God, a God whose “name is Abraxas, uniting the godly and devilish elements.” That Demian represents an aspect of the hero’s own self is clarified as the novel ends by blurring the distinction between the “other” and the “inner.” In a mystical, homoerotic vision, the two characters merge into one. Hesse’s next novel, Steppenwolf, portrays a character dwelling in “this alien world . . . the homeless Steppenwolf, the solitary.” Steppenwolf, with an allusion to ancient Gnosticism’s most stunning image, sees “the whole of human life as a violent and ill-fated abortion of the primal mother, a savage and dismal catastrophe of nature.” At conflict with “nature” (Hesse identifies this with “bourgeois convention”) is “the spirit . . . driven to God.” In the course of the novel Steppenwolf is to discover that the conflict is more complicated, that there are not two but a thousand souls clamoring within him, “a chaos of potentialities and impulses.” In answer to his striving, Steppenwolf is given a very psychologizing, very modern message. “You have a longing to forsake this world and to penetrate to a world beyond time. You know, of course, where this other world lies hidden. Only within yourself exists that other reality . . .”

These novels of Hermann Hesse are early versions of a genre that has been important throughout this century: stories of conflict between the outer world and the inner reality discovered by journeying through psychological realms. It is not surprising that some of these writings are read as “gnostic.” Some, such as Doris Lessing’s Briefing for a Descent into Hell, are devastating in their criticism of normal life. Rather than promoting any integration towards a total personality, her novel valorizes the hero’s dissociated psychic fantasies at the expense of his mental “health.” His inner journey takes the hero to mythological lands, to outer space, and back to earth – his “descent into hell” – as a messenger of the gods. The character’s struggle to hold on to this reality, against the drugs and shock therapy of his psychiatrists, is described with the classical gnostic metaphors (and with the typically gnostic reversal) of sleeping and waking, forgetting and remembering.

Although they vary in the radicalness of their dualism, all of these psychological writings agree that meaning is not to be discovered in the manifest world. By situating meaning within the human psyche, and implicitly ignoring any transcendent location for meaning, these works are definitely modern. Other types of “immanent” salvation have also been described as “modern Gnosticism.” A vast description of modern Gnosticism – including psychology in its scope – was the predominate theme of the political philosopher Eric Voegelin. Beginning in 1952 with The New Science of Politics and in many further books such as Science, Politics and Gnosticism, Voegelin identifies “the essence of modernity as the growth of gnosticism.” He understands Gnosticism to be “the experience of the world as an alien place . . . a horror of existence and a desire to escape from it.” Rather than the ancient Gnostic achronic salvation from above, however, Voegelin sees modern Gnosticism promising salvation in the future, by means of the historical process. For this radically immanent salvation, without transcendental irruptions, he faults the eighteenth century, and has some harsh words especially for Condorcet and Voltaire. Voegelin proceeds, like some unhinged biblical prophet, to trace and decry the course of modern Gnosticism: Comte, “the first high priest of a new religion, positivism”; Hegelianism (although as early as 1835 Ferdinand Christian Baur had argued for the similarity between German idealism and Gnosticism, calling it “the philosophy of religion, the Godhead’s evolving self-knowledge through man”); Marxism, “the self-salvation of man, an intellectual swindle”; Communism, “left-wing gnosticism”; National Socialism, “right-wing gnosticism”; totalitarianism, “the end of the Gnostic search for a civil theology”; progressivism, “scientism and the immanentist pride in the variants of salvation through physics, economics, sociology, biology, and psychology.” All, all of this, Eric Voegelin calls Gnosticism. He appeals for “repressing Gnostic corruption and restoring the forces of civilization,” and concludes, “fate is in the balance.”

Voegelin’s writings could be regarded as silly were it not for their strong impact within and beyond his own field of political science. Academicians from various disciplines have gathered at conferences such as “Gnosticism and Modernity,” where they discussed such topics as

“The Gnosticism of Lincoln’s Political Rhetoric.” The literary critic, Cleanth Brooks, having absorbed Voegelin’s version of Gnosticism, described Walker Percy’s novel Lancelot as “modern Gnosticism.” The main character of this book, Lancelot Lamar, is confronted by his wife’s and daughter’s ongoing orgy with a group of sex and drug enthusiasts from Hollywood. In a fury of crazed self-righteousness, Lancelot decides to take matters into his own hands (immanent salvation) and burns down his house with everyone in it. It would appear that Voegelin’s influence has removed the distinction between “Gnosticism” and what we call “apocalypticism.”

Voegelin portrays Gnosticism as an attempt to solve the ills and evils of this world by the promise of a revolutionary new realm. An ironic complement to this portrait, and a tribute to the complexity and contradictions of the ancient sects, is that the rejection of this world and disentanglement from it is only one gnostic attitude. An ascetic withdrawal is one ethical response to anti-cosmic dualism, and one which characterizes most of the Nag Hammadi texts (“The World Haters,” Time magazine headlined its report on the present translation project). An opposite stance is to immerse oneself in worldly sins and pleasures, these being, after all, alien and uncorrupting things. This attitude, not found in our texts but attested in ancient descriptions of the gnostic sects, has inspired several recent novels of Lawrence Durrell. His four novels that make up The Alexandria Quartet depict a gnostic “cabal” led by a “homosexual goat” named Balthazar. “Indulge but refine” is Balthazar’s doctrine, which he claims to be uniquely Alexandrian, “a town of sects and gospels. And for every ascetic she has always thrown up one religious libertine – Carpocrates [the second-century gnostic], Anthony [the Christian monk] – who was prepared to founder in the senses as deeply and truly as any desert father in the mind . . . . It is the national peculiarity of the Alexandrians to seek a reconciliation (between extreme sensuality and intellectual asceticism). That is why we are hysterics and extremists. That is why we are the incomparable lovers we are.” One character, Justine, plays out on this earth the drama of the gnostic Wisdom goddess, “bending over the dirty sink with the foetus in it [like] poor Sophia of Valentinus.” Are we, she wonders, “the work of an inferior deity, a Demiurge, who wrongly believed himself to be God? Heavens, how probable it seems.” Justine quotes Balthazar, who in turn quotes E.M. Forster. Forster’s book Alexandria: A History and a Guide was the main source of Durrell’s understanding of Gnosticism, with its tragic combination of physical love and theology. Here is Forster’s lovely retelling of the creation myth of Valentinus: "He imagines a primal God, the centre of a divine harmony, who sent out manifestations of himself in pairs of male and female. Each pair was inferior to its predecessor, and Sophia the female of the thirtieth pair, least perfect of all. She showed her imperfection not, like Lucifer, by rebelling from God, but by desiring too ardently to be united to him. She fell through love . . . and the universe is formed out of her agony and remorse." Durrell went on in later novels like Monsieur to describe yet another modern sect of Egyptian Gnostics. In Monsieur the amorous interplay of genders and geometries is complex enough to rival any ancient gnostic cosmogony. "I am amazed," wrote Durrell's long time friend, that modern apostle of experience, Henry Miller, "that there has been no revival of this sect." Forster had attempted an answer: "it was pessimistic, imaginative, esoteric – three great obstacles to success."

One interpretation of ancient Gnosticism, combined with an assessment of its modern relevance, has won the favor of many scholarly specialists in gnostic studies. In the 1920s Hans Jonas was a student of both the philosopher Martin Heidegger and the New Testament scholar Rudolf Bultmann. He was thus in a unique position to participate, as a Bultmannian, in this century's investigation of ancient gnostic sources and, as a Heideggerian, in the philosophy of existentialism. Throughout his long career, Jonas has played these two themes against each other. The link between the two is provided by dualism. "Gnosticism," he claims "has been the most radical embodiment of dualism ever to have appeared on the stage of history. It is a split between self and world, men's alienation from nature, the metaphysical devaluation of nature, the cosmic solitude of the spirit and the nihilism of mundane norms." It is "a lasting paradigm of the human condition." Likewise, "the essence of existentialism is a certain dualism, an estrangement between man and the world." Existentialism also contains a "depreciation of the concept of nature." Gnosticism, therefore, has "an analogical modernity." In his book The Gnostic Religion, Jonas focuses on one specific image that is used by both the ancients and the moderns to describe "the self-experience of existence," the image of "having been thrown." Here is Heidegger in Being and Time: "This characteristic of Dasein's Being . . . we call it the 'thrownness' (Geworfenheit). This downward plunge into and within the groundlessness of the inauthentic Being, is characterized by temptation, tranquillizing, alienation . . ." Jonas compares this to the famous ancient Valentinian formula that freedom is the knowledge of, among other things, "wherein we have been thrown." He made this comparison before the availability of the Nag Hammadi translations, which describe how Yaldabaoth and the archons “threw” mankind into matter and distraction. Jonas expertly draws attention to the dissimilarities as well: “Gnostic man is thrown into an antagonistic, anti-divine, and therefore anti-human nature, modern man into an indifferent one.” The modern version is more nihilistic, “a dualism without metaphysics.” Thrownness is, in both systems, however, “an existential mode of the past,” nor is there, he argues, a mode of genuine existence in the future. Genuine existence, freedom, dwells “only in the crisis between past and future, the razor’s edge of decision, the existential present of the moment.”

Hans Jonas presents a compelling argument, and the similarities between ancient Gnosticism and modern existentialism do seem at least “analogical.” We should keep in mind, however, the surprising condemnation of Gnosticism made by Albert Camus. Gnosticism, he claims in The Rebel, is conciliatory. It alters the course of metaphysical rebellion by developing the theory of a wicked, inferior god against whom to direct its attack, and exalts a superior god. “The vast number of aeons invented by Valentinus,” for instance, “are the equivalent of the intermediary truths to be found in Hellenism. Their aim is to diminish the absurdity of an intimate relationship between suffering humanity and an implacable god.”

Existentialist alienation and modern versions of visionary romanticism have combined to give Gnosticism a powerful literary expression. Jack Kerouac and Allen Ginsberg, fellow students at Columbia University in the 1940’s, were introduced to Gnosticism by their professor Raymond Weaver. John Tytell, an historian of “the Beat Generation,” has shown that an interest in gnostic themes voiced itself in Kerouac’s 1959 novel Doctor Sax. This mythic reverie of a book (“Memory and dream are intermixed in this mad universe”) describes Doctor Sax, “the King of Anti Evil,” and his attempts to save the world from “the Great World Snake of evil” with its “moo mouth maw of death.” The snake, with its “scaly ululating back,” is “an unforgettable flow of evil and wrath and of Satan”; and Doctor Sax, in “his slouched hat” (like Ahab’s – Kerouac’s professor had been a Melville scholar), searches the world “for herbs that he knew someday he would perfect into an alchemic-almost poison art . . . that would make the Snake drop dead.” The novel climaxes in a grand nightmare that seems to draw in every stock character from both sides of the conflict between good and evil. Allen Ginsberg also employs gnostic imagery to voice his hatred of evil in the world. In his nuclear protest poem "Plutonian Ode," written in 1978 after reading Jonas's book on Gnosticism, he confronts our "Radioactive Nemesis . . . named for Death's planet." Ginsberg's poem, in the form of an exorcistic chant, evokes the planetary archons of the Gnostics:

I salute your dreadful presence lasting majestic as the Gods, Sabaot, Jehova, Astapheus, Adonaeus, Elohim, Iao, Ialdabaoth, Aeon from Aeon born ignorant in an Abyss of Light, Sophia's reflections glittering thoughtful galaxies, whirlpools of star-spume silver-thin as hairs of Einstein!

Gnostic motifs have been identified in that most visionary of our modern literary genres, science fiction. Historian William Irwin Thompson sees the gnostic myth in Nicholas Roeg's film The Man Who Fell to Earth and in Zena Henderson's novel Pilgrimage. Both of these stories are about characters whose sojourn on this planet is a tragic separation from their true home. Painfully alienated, they struggle through memory to regain identification with their higher origins. Superman, too, although he is not homesick, is an alien battling against the forces of evil. Good and evil in "The Myth of Superman," Umberto Eco has written, are "clearly divided into zones of Manichaen incontrovertibility." It is, however, in the science fiction novels of the prolific writer Philip K. Dick that Gnosticism is most consciously employed. In Valis, published in 1981, a year before Dick's death, the main character has an encounter with the divine which "fires information into his head by a beam of pink light." The divine is "Mind," but Mind divided against itself, as two contending principles, like the schizophrenic main character of the novel. "From loss and grief the Mind has become deranged," he says. "Therefore we, as parts of the universe, the Brain, are partly deranged." This character, called Horselover Fat, has the following conversation with his therapist:

"Do you believe man is created in God's image?"
"Yes," Fat said, "but the creator deity, not the true God."
"What?"
Fat said, "That's Yaldabaoth. Sometimes called Samael, the blind god. He's deranged."
"What the hell are you talking about?"

Fat is talking about On the Origin of the World from the first edition of The Nag Hammadi Library published in 1977, which Dick quotes elsewhere in the novel. "A lunatic blind creator and his screwed-up world" explained, for Dick, the "irrational, whacked out, psychotic" universe.

In the course of the novel, Fat attempts to recapture, beyond the irrational god (and beyond his own schizophrenia), the true God. This science fiction novel and its sequel, The Divine Invasion, tell a cosmic story where mental psychoses play out a drama of madness and intelligence, where fragments of divinity lose and remember themselves in human minds. It might be supposed that the Nag Hammadi texts inspired these novels, but Gnosticism, it seems, is never so simple. "Horselover Fat" is a multilingual pun for the author's own name, and Philip K. Dick claimed that Valis was autobiographical, that he, like his character, had an encounter with a beam of divine pink light in 1974. The publication of the Nag Hammadi translations only confirmed his revelation.

A quite self-conscious incorporation of Nag Hammadi texts into a science fiction novel appeared in Harold Bloom's 1979 novel The Flight to Lucifer: A Gnostic Fantasy. In it the reincarnated Valentinus and his companions fly to a planet called Lucifer. Quoting our gnostic texts, the heroes wage a violent battle against Saklas, the Demiurge who is worshipped in his "Saklaseum." Bloom, more successful as an interpreter of literature, later confessed that The Flight to Lucifer reads as though Walter Pater were writing Star Wars. But, then, so does much ancient gnostic writing.

Harold Bloom's strongest appropriation of Gnosticism is in his theoretical books of literary criticism. He describes his "mode of interpreting literary texts as a Valentinian approach," that is, "an antithetical and revisionist way of reading." In a series of books beginning with The Anxiety of Influence in 1973 he studies "the anxiety that blocks creativeness" when a writer faces his great precursors. "In Yeats," for instance, the precursor is "the Spectre of Blake." Bloom's argument is that literary influence always proceeds by "a deliberately perverse misreading . . . an act of creative correction, of distortion, of perverse, willful revisionism whose purpose is to clear away the precursor so as to open a space for oneself." A text is therefore "a psychic battlefield" where influence fights to move backwards. Bloom's model for this is "Gnosticism, the religion of belatedness." "Valentinus," he argues, "is troping upon and indeed against his precursor authorities, to reverse his relationship to the Bible and to Plato, by joining himself to an asserted earlier truth that they supposedly have distorted." In 1982, in Agon, Bloom "misread" his gnostic precursors and claimed them for the latest school of literary criticism: "Gnosticism was the inaugural and most powerful of Deconstructions because it undid all genealogies, scrambled all hierarchies, allegorized every microcosm/macrocosm relation, and rejected every representation of divinity as non-referential.” Bloom’s willfulness and enthusiasm bowl the reader over. “Abandon Heidegger for Valentinus,” he calls out. If his creative misprision is successful, it will be measured by our inability to read these old texts without feeling Harold Bloom’s influence upon them.

By turning reading into an activity upon the text, or rather, by his re-situating of meaning within the intertextual relationship between texts, Bloom has shifted the discussion of Gnosticism away from the modern into the postmodern situation. Ihab Hassan’s 1987 book The Postmodern Turn draws on Bloom and many other theorists to discuss a “New Gnosticism” characterized by the dematerialization of existence. The “New Gnosticism does not revert directly to the ancient cults,” yet it was “prefigured by the ancient Gnostics, authors of a passionate subjectivity.” Contemporary philosophy and literary criticism are on “a gnostic journey into subjectivity, that leaves texts behind and vanishes into consciousness.” Our own mental constructs, he claims, are our knowledge. Human beings are becoming “gnostic creatures constituting themselves, determining their universe by symbols of their own making,” and he indicates science fiction and fantasy literature as examples. As with the ancient Gnostics, the traditional codes no longer determine our meaning. The traditional canon of texts no longer has authority. Hassan sees “a vast, revisionary will” at work in our culture, unsettling and heterogeneous, and he quotes Jean-François Lyotard’s now famous clarion call of postmodernism: “Let us wage a war on totality.”

This postmodern appreciation of Gnosticism seems indeed to have an affinity with ancient sectarianism and revisionary mythologizing. Ihab Hassan considers “immanence” to be one of the main characteristics of the “New Gnosticism,” a quality of both modern and postmodern theory. Thus, as Charles Jencks describes postmodern art and architecture, we have personal invented mythology and metaphors with no shared metaphysical substance. Anatole France (himself a writer who never made it into modernism) wrote an eloquent version of immanent gnostic salvation in his 1914 novel The Revolt of the Angels:

The God of old is dispossessed of His terrestrial empire, and every thinking being on this globe disdains Him or knows Him not. But what matter that men should be no longer submissive to Ialdabaoth if the spirit of Ialdabaoth is still in them; if they, like Him, are jealous, violent, quarrelsome, and greedy, and the foes of the arts and of beauty? What matter that they have rejected the ferocious demiurge? It is in ourselves and in ourselves alone that we must attack and destroy Ialdabaoth.

How much do these attempts to see modern, or even postmodern, relevance in Gnosticism help us to understand our ancient texts? or do they misuse the evidence? The evidence, in any case, is conflicting, as James M. Robinson declares in the opening sentences of the introduction to this book. It has also been pointed out that none of the Nag Hammadi texts use “gnostic” as a term of self-designation. Other ancient sources tell us that “gnostic” was used by some sects as a self-designation, but certainly not by all of the various sects that came to be called Gnosticism. We might also notice that the only mention of the famous gnostic heresiarchs in this library (in The Testimony of Truth) is as opponents, and “they” are attacked as heretics! With the publication of the Nag Hammadi library the study of ancient Gnosticism has become increasingly problematic, so likewise its relevance. The frequently attempted etymological definition (gnostic comes from the Greek word for know) is frustratingly inadequate. We do better to avoid generalizations and to marvel at the variety of the sources. The variety was brought about more by the mundane issues of time and space, than by theological debates. The first issue was the authority of tradition against revealed interpretations; the other was hierarchical unification against sectarianism. By taking the wrongheaded side of both these issues, the sects and our texts were excluded, and “Gnosticism” became a symbol of heresy. Interpretive appropriations of Gnosticism have all used this element of otherness: the Gnostics as anti-Christians, as visionaries, as esotericists, as symbolists of the psyche, as alienated, and as violent misinterpreters and revisers.

The recent availability of this large number of primary texts has opened up new ways of discussing, new relevances for, the ancient sects we call gnostic. By their skewed readings, by animating the relationship between tradition and imagination, these texts capture our attention. If cultures define themselves not at their calm centers, but at their peripheral conflicts of inclusion and exclusion, then Gnosticism, whatever we mean by it, is more than an antiquarian curiosity. It stands as a continuing testament to difference in the face of our cultural tendencies toward closed homogeneity.

THE DEFINITIVE COLLECTION OF THE Gnostic WRITINGS, INCLUDING SUCH CONTROVERSIAL WORKS AS THE GOSPEL OF THOMAS AND THE GOSPEL OF MARY

This definitive edition of The Nag Hammadi Library is the only complete, one-volume, English-language edition of the renowned library of fourth-century manuscripts discovered in Egypt in 1945. It includes the Gospel of Thomas, the Gospel of Mary, and other Gnostic gospels and sacred texts. First published in 1978 and revised, expanded, and updated in 1988, The Nag Hammadi Library launched modern Gnostic studies and exposed a movement within Christianity whose teachings are in many ways—as bestselling author Elaine Pagels has shown—as relevant today as they were centuries ago.

This edition takes into account recent developments in Gnostic scholarship, including the significance of the Gospel of Thomas as a source of the authentic sayings of Jesus. The translators include such prominent scholars as Elaine Pagels, Marvin Meyer, Helmut Koester, and Bentley Layton.

Praise for The Nag Hammadi Library:

“Opens the secrets of a religion, which the Gnostics themselves had hoped would be kept sealed until the Last Day.”—The New York Review of Books

“This fascinating collection will become as welcome an addition to the understanding of the formative years of the early Christian Church as the books on the Dead Sea Scrolls.”—The Washington Star

“A tremendous achievement.”—Chicago Theological Seminary Register

“A significant event.”—Journal of the American Academy of Religion

General editor JAMES M. ROBINSON is Arthur J. Letts Professor Emeritus of Religion at the Claremont Graduate University. Professor Robinson is one of the world's great scholars of the New Testament and early Christianity and the leader of research on the Nag Hammadi codices and the Q Gospel.
